Board Ponders 4% Hike In District Education Fund

Members of the Board of Education of Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 began consideration Monday night of a preliminary budget for the 1972-73 school year which calls for about a 4 per cent increase in the district's education fund.

The budget, prepared by the district's administration, calls for expenditures in eight funds, each requiring its own tax levy. The total for the education fund, which is used for teacher's salaries and educational supplies, is projected to be $8,801,658, about 4 per cent more than the district's expenditures this year.

Erviti emphasized that many estimates reflected in the budget may change between now and the time the budget is adopted this summer. He said no estimate has been made of teacher salary increases above the increment for additional experience already contained in the contract and no provision has been made for an increased formula in state aid.

"We don't really know what Gov. Ogilvie meant when he said he would have $91 million for state aid, but we know that some of that money is in increased expense to the state but not extra money to the districts," he said.

The increased expense to the state would result because of a larger number of students in the schools, which will entitle school districts to larger amounts of money figured on a per pupil basis. That increase would not improve the financial position of school districts.

In addition, Erviti said the district is now in the process of paying back $573,000 in supplemental state aid it received when its enrollment was increasing at a rate of more than 2 per cent each year. Because the growth rate is no longer over 2 per cent, if the present state aid formula is continued, the district's share of state aid will decrease by $51,000.

He added that principals, when drawing up budgets, were asked to take into account the declining growth rate. "We expect enrollment in the K-5 (elementary) buildings to go down 3 per cent, so we told the principals their budgets would go down by 3 per cent. Since we expect a 5 per cent increase in the number of pupils in the junior high schools, those budgets increased by that amount," Erviti said.

The preliminary budget calls for issuing $4,427,175 in tax anticipation warrants, in the education fund which will allow the district to borrow 71 per cent of the taxes to be collected in 1973. Legally the district can borrow up to 75 per cent of those taxes.

The district will also issue tax anticipation warrants in the building fund, which is used for building maintenance and to pay custodial salaries, against 63 per cent of the taxes to be collected for that fund in 1973.

The warrant position of both the education and building funds will be slightly improved from last year and from previous years.

The board will meet at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the administration building to begin discussion of individual items in the proposed education fund budget.

Maurice Julius Becomes Third Board Candidate

A third candidate for a seat on the Schaumburg Township School Dist. 54 Board of Education has filed petitions for election to one of the two board seats open for April election.

Maurice (Jerry) Julius, 315 W. Berkeley Lane, Hoffman Estates, joined incumbent Gordon Thoren, president of the board and Dr. Bernard Powell.

Julius heads the instructional resources center in School District 63 and works in Adlai Stevenson School in Des Plaines.

He and his family have lived in Hoffman Estates for 8½ years.

Dr. Powell was an unsuccessful 1971 candidate for a board seat and now serves on the school board's building and sites committee.

Thoren is completing a three-year term. The second board seat up for election is Mrs. Mary B. Hannan's. She has decided not to run again.

Petitions for the April 8 elections may be obtained from Marvin Lapicola, business director for Dist. 54.

Friday, March 17, is the last day for Dist. 54 board candidates to file nominating petitions.

The first day for residents to make application for absentee ballots is March 9. This can be done in person at the administration office, 804 W. Bode Rd. or by mail.

Residents who will be out of the school district on election day or those incapacitated may vote by absentee ballot.

Last day for voting by absentee ballot is April 5.

To be eligible to vote in the election, residents must be registered voters, have resided in Illinois one year, the county 90 days and in the School District for 30 days.

College Entrance Night At EGHS

Parents of juniors at Elk Grove High School will be able to find out about college entrance procedures tomorrow at a meeting in the high school. The college orientation night, conducted by college counselor Vincent Carloti, will be held at 8 p.m. in the high school cafeteria for juniors and their parents.

Charge Woman With Passing Bogus Checks

A west suburban Norridge woman was arrested and charged by Schaumburg police last weekend for allegedly cashing over $7,000 in bogus checks in several communities.

Police said Jacquelin Menconi, 32, of 4341 Ozanam, Norridge, had cashed over $1,500 in bad checks in Schaumburg in recent weeks. She was charged with similar crimes in Mount Prospect, Niles and Elgin.

Mrs. Menconi allegedly opened two checking accounts, one in Schaumburg and another in Elmhurst, using fraudulent identification. She had listed a Hanover Park address on the fake checks.

Schaumburg police assisted state, county and Norridge police in making the arrest.

Mrs. Menconi had allegedly cashed more than 30 bogus checks in the Schaumburg area. Twenty bad checks were passed at the Sears, Roebuck and Co. Woodfield store.

She has been charged with deceptive practices by Schaumburg, Mount Prospect and Niles, and grand theft in Elgin.

Police credited Schaumburg Detective John Barabas with making the investigation that led to the weekend arrest. The arrest was made by Detective William King and Patrolman Arturo Pedraza.

Mrs. Menconi is scheduled to appear in circuit court at Schaumburg April 12. Her bond was set at $15,500.

Robert Birks, owner of the Elk Grove Village Cab Co., who said a six-day-a-week bus service could be provided for about $3,000 per month.

Birks estimated the village could lease a bus for $355 per month. The $3,000 cost would include all expenses involved in running the bus, he said.

But Birks, who indicated he would be willing to run such a service for the village, noted that he had found no com-

Village To Study Leasing Small Bus

Continuing their discussion of a possible Elk Grove Village bus service, village officials decided this week to contact area bus companies to determine the availability of leasing a small bus for village use.

The village board's bus committee agreed Monday night to study the possibility of getting a short-term lease of an 18-passenger bus, which could be used for a shuttle-type service in the village.

The committee met last month with

Service Unit Eyes $30,000 Budget Hike

Elk Grove Village Community Service has requested a $30,000 budget increase for the 1972-73 fiscal year to enable the agency to hire an additional social worker, and contract for the services of a psychiatrist.

Jordan Rosen, Community Service executive director, made the request Monday night at a meeting with village board members. Rosen requested a budget of $83,440 for the 1972-73 fiscal year, which begins May 1.

Included in the budget request is $66,805 for salaries and wages and $7,000 for professional services. The request compares to $45,605 granted for the 1971-72 fiscal year.

Rosen said the additional social worker is needed if the agency is to avoid setting up a waiting list for its services. "And it's usually had business for a counseling service to set up a waiting list," he noted.

The agency is currently getting between 15 and 20 cases per month, Rosen said, and with only two full-time social workers the caseload is becoming overburdened.

THE $20,000 INCREASE in salaries and wages would also finance a revamping of salary schedules for the agency, Rosen said. Most employees of the agency would receive significant raises, and be put into a structured salary schedule, which the agency does not now have, he said.

Rosen also noted Community Service's Farmhouse is in need of remodeling and air conditioning, but the agency will have enough money left over this year to pay for that work. Although the funds are in a different account, village officials indicated the money could be used to pay for the work.

The work involves installing a central air conditioner and shoring up a second floor room of the building on Biesterfeld Road next to Alexian Brothers Medical Center.

Village board members indicated they would contact Rosen later concerning the budget request. The board has been meeting with village department heads to discuss budget requests for the year and plans to meet with all departments before making any decision on the budget.

Budget requests for the year total $3,586,921, which is $1,144,171 more than expected revenue for the year. The amount is also $1 million more than the $2,627,640 approved for the 1971-72 fiscal year.

pany willing to lease a bus for less than a two-year period. Village officials have indicated they would like to try a bus service for a short time — possible six months — to determine if such a service is feasible.

Bus committee members also indicated Monday they would consider costs of conducting a mail survey of village residents concerning the use of a village bus service.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

The White House announced that Senate leaders Mike Mansfield and Hugh Scott would visit China at the invitation of Premier Chou En-lai. No date has been set but "it probably will be worked out that they will go together," said White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler.

The Pentagon said it stamps the number SPN3M on the records of servicemen discharged for using drugs, permanently identifying them to their prospective employers and supervisors as drug users. Sen. Harold Hughes, D-Iowa, promised legislation to stop the practice.

A mysterious letter released at the trial of the Rev. Philip Berrigan and six others indicates the government's FBI witness was being paid as an FBI in-former while an inmate at the Lewisburg, Pa., federal prison.

Judge Richard Arason ruled in San Jose, Calif., that a prospective juror in the Angela Davis murder-kidnap trial could not be removed solely because he didn't like communism.

The Senate approved a moderate anti-busing compromise after three presidential contenders returned to help kill a proposal which would have prohibited federal judges from ordering busing to integrate schools. The milder restriction, mainly supported by Northern moderates and liberals, would deny federal funds for racial-balance busing unless local school officials freely ask for the money without coercion from Washington.

The World

A sniper shot and wounded a British soldier in Londonderry and bombers mounted one of the most extensive series of attacks on Protestant-owned establishments in Northern Ireland in recent months.

One student was shot and killed and another injured in a shooting at Seal Residence on the Western Illinois University campus in Macomb. Identity of the dead student was withheld, pending notification of relatives.

The State

Gov. Richard Ogilvie said education continues to have his highest priority and recommended an increase of 190 million in the budget for elementary and secondary education. In his annual budget message, he estimated $2.073 billion would be spent in fiscal 1973 on all education.

The War

Communist guerrillas ambushed a major South Vietnamese ammunition convoy, wounding 40 men. In two other battles, government troops reported killing 38 guerrillas in fighting south of Da Nang. In the air war, U.S. B52 bombers hammered the Communist-held A Shau Valley and coastal plains north of the old imperial capital of Hue and struck in the Central Highlands.

Inverness: Island In The Suburbs

'Officials' Aren't Overburdened By Problems

BY MARCIA KRAMER
(Second of Four Parts)
When you call the Village of Inverness for information, you're liable to hear a kid howling in the background.

That's because the village clerk, Sandra Johnson, is a housewife and mother of two. Her "office" consists of a single telephone and a pile of papers and documents in her Inverness home.

It's not exactly your typical village hall. But then, Inverness is not your typical village.

It doesn't need a village hall any more than it needs any full-time employees.

The reason is simple: There is not enough business in Inverness to keep anyone (or any building) occupied for 40 hours a week.

Mrs. Johnson, one of two paid employees — the other is the building inspector — comes the closest at an estimated 20 to 25 hours a week. The village president puts in anywhere from five or six to 10 or 12 hours a week.

Because there is so little official business, the Inverness Village Board of Trustees meets just once a month. In fact, the community house where meetings are held resembles a living room more than a conference hall.

MANY OF THE issues the trustees are concerned with are all too familiar to other suburban governments — leaf disposal, snow removal, road repairs, tree removal.

But even these chores are less of a problem in Inverness than in other towns. The village has just 15.39 miles of roads to maintain, while nearby Palatine has about 100 miles and Arlington Heights 205.

But because of its unique development with no business or industry, Inverness is not swamped with matters that other suburbs face, such as rezoning permits, heavy traffic, annexation requests, liquor licenses and parking shortages.

Even such "essential" civic services as police and fire protection and garbage pickup are easily dispensed with — the village board contracts for the services with Palatine and Barrington.

Take away all of these concerns from any town and you'll have a town with little or no controversy, few or no problems.

Perhaps the most "controversial" issue in recent years in Inverness has been the proposed environmental ordinance. The controversy, however, is not so much over the content of the proposal; even its sponsor acknowledges there would be few, if any, violations.

RATHER, THE main reason many residents oppose the ordinance is simply that they view any increase in "legislative involvement" on the part of the village "with apprehension."

"Politicking" is virtually unheard of in Inverness, where there's been only one election ever offering voters a choice of candidates.

The resident who was recently "elected" president of the Inverness Association, in fact, had indicated he would have withdrawn if another candidate had sought the post, rather than "cause any hard feelings in the village" through a contested election.

That's a common attitude in Inverness. Village trustees and officers of village organizations are generally asked to serve, and, if they have the time and interest, are put on the ballot and "elected." If they choose to remain in office when their term expires, they merely give the word and are "reelected."

Actual qualifications are often incidental — the chairman of the Inverness Plan Commission, for example, is not an engineering authority or a city planner or a landscape architect, but is a dentist. Inverness can get away with a non-professional approach because it has so little business and so few problems.

Most residents are hard pressed to come up with a problem in Inverness and many couldn't think of any. A few mentioned a limited amount of recreational facilities for youngsters and a large amount of car pools because of the village's isolation.

ONE PROBLEM that's difficult to ignore is security. Most homes are equipped with burglar alarms and/or big dogs, yet fully 60 of 64 reported offenses in 1970 were attributed to theft or vandalism.

But in spite of this, most Inverness residents like their village, and they like it just the way it is.

That, ironically, is where "the real problem" comes in. Village president Forrest S. Elleman sees it as "the preservation of our village and its way of life."

Inverness' motto — "the village with a heritage" — is not to be taken lightly, he indicated.

Elleman elaborated: "I think that's the crux of everything. The world is changing very rapidly and I think the biggest problem we have is maintaining the character of Inverness in the face of Homes on the hillside provide a picturesque background for skating enthusiasts.

PROBLEMS MENTIONED by Inverness residents:

—"Getting rid of all these leaves": the owner of a lot including dozens of shedding trees.

—"Keeping people from emptying their swimming pools into the creek": the village trustee who drafted the proposed environmental ordinance.

—"Finding a decent maid; they're really hard to come by": a housewife who lives on Blackburn Drive.

these changes."

Elleman sees the changes on his way to work every day. He helped to design the offices of Union 76, where he is an executive, about 12 years ago. When construction was completed, the building was in the middle of nowhere, and it took Elleman only about six minutes to drive to work.

Now, he says, it takes about 22 minutes, and his office, just west of Rte. 53 on Golf Road, is in the midst of one of the fastest growing areas of the country and is directly across the street from the largest enclosed shopping center in the world.

Throughout all of this development, Inverness remained essentially as it was when Elleman and his family moved there from Des Plaines 10 years ago.

IT WAS THE one-acre lots, nice homes and "pleasant rural atmosphere" that attracted the Elleman family to Inverness. And that's precisely why they live there now.

From the very beginning, Inverness was intended to be "dedicated to an inspiring home life, happiness and peace of mind."

That's what Arthur T. McIntosh proclaimed in 1930. At that time, Inverness was but a conglomeration of 15 "gentleman farms" that McIntosh began acquiring in 1927.

Early residents could get both property and a home built for $9,000 to $16,000. The lots alone now go for $13,000 to $18,000, and homes already built cost an "absolute minimum" of $50,000, according to the real estate manager.

An effort in 1960 to incorporate the area as a village failed, mainly because residents feared Inverness would lose its peaceful, countrylike atmosphere to political squabbling.

But two years later, largely because of the threat of dense residential complexes being built just outside of Inverness' borders, residents voted overwhelmingly to form a village.

The benefits were clear: Inverness residents could have a say-so over land within 1½ miles of the village, and by keeping "undesirable elements" at a distance, could maintain both their privacy and high property values.

As one woman put it: "You pay for it, but McIntosh does protect the area. Even if they decide some day to put in apartments or condominiums, it would be done very nicely. They wouldn't be smack dab across the street."

INVERNESS is currently engaged in litigation over a proposed apartment structure in a nearby section of Hoffman Estates. Elleman says most Inverness residents "feel the apartments are incompatible with the area."

He acknowledges the inevitability of dense development near Inverness, though he does not look forward to it.

"We're not stupid," Elleman said. "We know there are things that are going to be built in the area."

"We just want to be sure they'll be attractive, low profile buildings."

TOMORROW: The people of Inverness — what makes them so special?

Timing Beats Speed

by Ed Landwehr

Speed records are broken with regularity. Faster cars, jet planes, even snowmobiles get faster. Track records are constantly bettered, and astronauts get to the moon a little sooner. But it all means nothing compared to the way most folks have the race to the refrigerator and the bathroom timed to meet the end of the TV commercial.

However, that TV service number 255-0700 at Landwehr's Home Appliances isn't so interested in speed as in timing. We'll time ourselves so we arrive at your best time with the right equipment to do an accurate and reliable servicing job right in your living room. Just another reason why our customers like us. You should try us, too.

Bachelor Becomes More Confirmed

Baby Sitter Much Like Lion Tamer

by BOB ANDERSEN

It just never occurred to me that tending to folks one-third your size, one-sixth your age, and, at least theoretically, a fraction of your mental capacity could be such a formidable task.

The conclusion, however, was forced as I, a semi-confirmed bachelor of 29, sat among some 75 attentive (and occasionally giggling) adolescent school girls and listened to an expert compare baby sitting to performing in a circus.

"You're going to have to be a little bit of everything," she cautioned.

AND SHE WASN'T kidding. Any baby-sitter worth her (or his) salt must be a combination "lion-tamer, tight-rope (oops, I mean baby-sitting) on these lethal, ever-energetic tots aged three through five.

IN THE MAIN, Mrs. Dodgion dealt with three basic baby-sitting realities which, in order, were:

—How to convince your temporary wards you are essentially a good Joe — or Jane — and deserving of their affection and respect. "Kids can spot a phony right away," Mrs. Dodgion said.

—How to occupy and entertain the little ones now that they love, respect and trust you.

—How to "cojole" the children to bed. The key to winning the kids over (the first step) is demonstrating sincere inter-er people in the world. Five-year-olds, having acquired a little sophistication by attending kindergarten, tend to be less selfish and more magnanimous than the three-year-olds.

Mrs. Dodgion's advice to us was to start becoming "scavengers." Everlastingly curious, preschoolers respond most quickly to new toys.

Thus, the child expert said, collect a variety of toys and keep them in a "Goody Bag." Moreover, she added, "don't put all your eggs in one basket."

"SURPRISE THE kids with a different toy every time you visit."

Little boys, Mrs. Dodgion claimed, are easier to entertain than little girls. The boys will often occupy themselves with toy trucks and cars and the like. Little girls are more demanding. For instance, they like to dress up which means one should keep a healthy assortment of "old fans, jewelry, etc." in the Goody Bag.

Also, she added, little girls love to "comb out" the long hair currently fashionable with young girls. This, I thought, shouldn't put the masculine gender at too much of a disadvantage given today's hair styles.

Okay. Now the tots love and respect you and you have succeeded in your role as ballerina and clown by keeping them entertained. It is time for the real test . . . bedtime.

IN A SOMEWHAT understated fashion, Mrs. Dodgion informed us preschoolers usually "don't want to go to bed." Again she suggests mixtures of the ring-master, the lion-tamer and the clown.

First, she says, "simmer" them down. Then, after getting them in their pajamas and showing them the bathroom, tuck them under the covers. Then what? Right . . . tell them a bedtime story. "Made-up stories" are the best, Mrs. Dodgion said.

The three and four-year-olds prefer picture books. Then, if your lucky, the kids, stirred by the pictures, will tell you the story, saving considerable mental anguish for the unimaginative.

WHAT HAPPENS IF, even after you have followed all the rules, the children refuse to sleep and instead fuss and act up?

Mrs. Dodgion did suggest alternative solutions. You can "tell them another story" or tell them their mother will be home soon or, perhaps, leave the hall light on. Some children are afraid of the dark.

Be aware, she said, they may still be testing you. Sometime firmness (the lion-tamer) is in order and other times humor (the clown) will suffice.

Baby-sitting is a responsibility, Mrs. Dodgion told the girls. It also can be an extremely beneficial and learning experience, she added, if approached with sincerity and understanding.

My conclusions? Well, I haven't started filling a "Goody Bag" and have never had a yen to be a circus performer. It requires a more versatile performer than I.

Suspended Elgin Hospital MD (?) Faces Discharge

Ricardo Munoz-Velez, figure of an investigation concerning 200 patients deaths at Elgin State Hospital, will be automatically discharged after 30 days if he fails to argue his suspension issued yesterday.

Although no criminal charges have been placed against Munoz, he has been implicated for practicing medicine without adequate credentials and for poor judgment in the treatment of up to 200 patients who died at the state institution.

Kane County States Atty. William Ketchum, meantime, is working with hospital authorities on an investigation of Munoz's credentials.

Ketchum also awaits a report he requested from Dr. George Leroy, of the University of Chicago, who has reviewed the 200 deaths.

Leroy yesterday refused to discuss the report, and termed news items about the exhumation of bodies a "fabrication."

Dr. Douglas Norcross, administrative assistant at Elgin State Hospital, took strong exception to the 200 deaths figure released by Ketchum.

"WE DON'T DENY the seriousness of the matter and personally started investigation of Dr. Munoz in November when staff reports of bizarre or questionable treatment were studied," said Norcross.

"However, Dr. Munoz took care of 25 First Weekly Lenten Service Is Tonight

Elk Grove Senior Finalist In Essay Contest

The Illinois Editors' Traffic Safety Seminar annually conducts an essay competition throughout the state. This year more than 800 boys and girls wrote on the topic, "My Program for Improving My Community's Teenage Traffic Safety Record."

One of the finalists, competing for one of ten $500 scholarships offered by the Chicago Motor Club is Suzanne Pollack of 399 Wellington Dr., Elk Grove Village. She is a student at Elk Grove High School. Her essay is reprinted below.

THOUGH THE automobile frequently receives the blame for traffic accidents, in most cases it is the highly fallible human being at the wheel who is at fault. The mistakes of today's drivers, however — their aggressive superiority and their general motoring incompetence — can be eliminated with thorough instruction of the car's operation; and an excellent place to start with this is in high school driver training programs.

Elk Grove teenagers may now elect to take driver's education in their junior cases, not 200, and it is those 25 cases that our staff and civil service board will be investigating," said Norcross.

Ketchum said late Tuesday his investigation concerns 200 patient deaths at the hospital in the period between April 1969 and August 1971.

"Dr. Munoz' name was in every one of those files. One way or the other he was concerned with their cases," said Ketchum.

The states attorney said charges against Munoz, could include incompetent treatment of patients, gross negligence and complete disregard for the welfare of patients.

State Mental Health Board representative Norman Hufford said "frankly we don't know where the department is on this thing. We knew in November that the Kane County states attorney was investigating Dr. Munoz but were advised by him to stay out of it, and did so."

HUFFORD SAID the department is attempting to update itself on the case and knows only that the doctor was assigned to a desk job in November and suspended Tuesday.

Dr. Norcross said Elgin State is working with the state's attorney to determine if possible criminal charges are in order.

"The next step is Dr. Munoz. He has 30 days to answer the suspension charge and if he does not he's fired," said Norcross adding, "further discussion of the case must wait until Dr. Leroy's report is reviewed."

The state attorney's investigation centers on doubts about Munoz' claims to have studied at the University of Havana.

It was learned that Dr. Munoz worked as a laboratory technician at St. Elizabeth's Hospital from Feb. 25, 1962 to June 10, 1966 when he resigned.

Munoz reportedly has flunked the Illinois Medical licensing test four times and the foreign medical equivalency test seven times.

However, he was allowed to practice medicine in state institutions under a section in the Illinois Medical Practices Act that allows practice permits to unlicensed physicians seeking employment in state hospitals.

year; the course, first of all, must be made compulsory, preferably before graduation and certainly before every young person obtains his first license. Driver training has been proven too effective in reducing accidents to be an optional subject; nationwide, trained teenagers have up to 50 per cent fewer accidents than their untrained contemporaries.

Secondly, the course itself should be revised. Every driver today must learn skills beyond what it takes to round corners on 25 mph residential streets; practicing only these basic driving skills, Elk Grove students are missing some vital training.

In Illinois' climate, for instance, winter driving is a necessity; without supervised practice, though, an uncertain student is quite likely to panic when he goes into his first skid. Night driving is another example where only experience can illustrate to the beginner the actual sensation and control.

Both of these skills are neglected in walker, ballerina, ring master and clown," Mrs. Marion Dodgion claimed.

Mrs. Dodgion, director of the Early Learners Nursery School in Hoffman Estates, was a guest lecturer at the third session of "You're In Charge," a baby-sitter clinic sponsored by the Hoffman Estates Jaycee Wives.

The clinic, featuring talks by local nurses and school, police and fire department officials, is being held at the Vogel Recreation Barn in Hoffman Estates. The clinic, costing $1, continues through March 29.

My assignment was to attend the session on preschoolers and return with a uniquely bachelor's view of riding herd est in them, Mrs. Dodgion told the girls and me. This, I found out, requires the combined talents of the tightrope walker, ballerina and clown.

ONE MUST, according to Mrs. Dodgion, mix a little vinegar with the sugar in this popularity quest. "Kids also need boundaries and rules," she explained. "They will test you." A bit of the lion-tamer or the ring-master, perhaps.

A vital part of entertaining and occupying the children is understanding them. Mrs. Dodgion said three-year-olds have short attention spans and tend to be more selfish than magnanimous. Four-year-olds think "everything is funny" and are finding out there are indeed oth-

Herald Wins Top Prize

The highest honor in newspaper design and typography has been awarded to Paddock Publications.

The chain's Arlington Heights Herald was among six first-place winners in the 33rd annual competition of the Inland Daily Press Association, a competition open to newspapers throughout North America.

The Herald was cited as best in its class (letterpress newspapers with circulation between 10,000 and 25,000) during the annual Inland meeting in Houston yesterday. The competition is jointly sponsored by Northwestern University's Medill School of Journalism.

Other first place winners were the Minneapolis Tribune, the Lafayette (Ind.) Journal and Courier, the Wheaton (Ill.) Journal, the Marion (Ind.) Chronicle Tribune, and the Portage (Wis.) Register.

The Inland awards for years have been regarded as the most prestigious in newspaper design and typography — assessing newspaper for their general attractiveness, readability and imagination of makeup. There were 268 entrants in this year's competition.

At the Herald, daily responsibility for design and makeup is under Copy Desk Chief Jim Harvey and copy editors Russ Bath, Tom Joachimiec, Karen Thompson and Ed Workman.

Adoptive Parents Keep Amy

The natural mother of three-year-old Amy Huebert Monday suffered a setback by the Colorado courts in her efforts to regain custody of the child.

El Paso County (Colo.) District Court Judge John Gallagher ruled that Amy could temporarily remain with Mr. and Mrs. Barry Huebert, the child's adoptive parents who reside in Colorado Springs, until a final decision on the custody case is reached.

Attorneys for Mrs. Paula Marshall of Arlington Heights, the natural mother, has asked the Colorado court to uphold a Cook County Court decision made in December ordering the immediate return of Amy to Mrs. Marshall.

The Hueberts refused to observe the Illinois court order, taking their case to the Colorado courts.

Huebert, a chemistry instructor at a Colorado college, accused the Illinois court of having failed to consider the rights of the child, "who is the most vulnerable party."

In Monday's decision, Judge Gallagher denied a motion for a summary judgment sought by Mrs. Marshall's attorneys and also refused to dismiss a petition for custody which had been filed by the Hueberts.

Joan T. Denley

Mrs. Joan T. Denley, 43, nee Post, of 101 Wolf Rd., Prospect Heights, died Sunday in Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge. She was born April 19, 1928, in Chicago.

Prayers will be said at 9:30 a.m. today in Oehler Funeral Home, Lee and Perry streets, Des Plaines. Then the body will be taken to St. Alphonsus Catholic Church, 411 N. Wheeling Rd., Prospect Heights, where a funeral Mass will be said at 10 a.m. Burial will be in All Saints Cemetery, Des Plaines.

Surviving are her husband, Robert; two sons, David and daughter-in-law, Cindy of Chicago, and Steve, at home; two daughters, Mary and Nancy Denley, both at home; mother, Mrs. Mary (the late Alex) Post of Chicago, and a brother, James Post of Mount Prospect.

Family requests, in lieu of flowers, contributions may be made to American Cancer Society.

Raymond Goldstein

Raymond L. Goldstein, 63, of 2500 Campbell St., Rolling Meadows, was pronounced dead on arrival Monday at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, after an apparent heart attack.

Visitation is today from 3 to 10 p.m. in Haire Funeral Home, Northwest Highway and Vail Avenue, Arlington Heights.

Prior to retirement in 1965, Mr. Goldstein was employed as a cashier for the Checker Cab Co. in Chicago. He was veteran of World War II, and was a life member of VFW Henry Honah Post No. 1583 in Chicago. He was born March 17, 1908, in Forestville, Conn.

Surviving are his widow, Betty J.; daughter, Mrs. LaVerne (Edward) Steidle of Glen Ellyn; two grandsons: one great-granddaughter, and four sisters, Mrs. Bertha Chatham of California, Mrs. Helen Feldhaus of Chicago, Mrs. Louis Kurfurst of Berwyn and Mrs. Evelyn Reilly of Arlington Heights.

Graveside service and interment will be held Saturday in the family lot in Clovis, New Mexico.

Leslie R. Meier

Leslie R. Meier, 45, of 747 Meier Rd., Mount Prospect, a milkman for Modern Dairy in Arlington Heights, with 15 years of service, died Monday in his home, after a long illness. He was born Dec. 3, 1926, in Mount Prospect.

Surviving are his widow, Marion J., nee Sievers; three sons, James L., Wayne R. and Danny A. Meier, all at home, and parents, Louis and Anna Meier of Mount Prospect.

Visitation is today from 3 to 10 p.m. in Lauterburg and Oehler Funeral Home, 2000 E. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights.

The body will lie in state tomorrow in St. Paul Lutheran Church, 100 S. School St., Mount Prospect, from noon until time of funeral services at 1:30 p.m. Officiating will be the Rev. E. A. Zeile and the Rev. Clifford Kaufmann. Burial will be in Memory Gardens Cemetery, Arlington Heights.

Obituaries

Scrap metal bales are loaded for processing.

The electric furnace melts the scrap into white hot liquid.

And out comes coiled rod stock ready for reuse.

Steel that used to rust into junk can now be processed into new steel.

It's called recycling and it's one answer to pollution.

Recycling is more than just a method for solving a disposal problem—it conserves our natural resources. Junk autos, for instance, are compressed into bales. The steel fragments are separated from the brass, copper, aluminum, rubber, wood and glass. Then the steel pieces are ready for the furnaces, where they're melted back into new steel.

The machinery used—the furnaces, electromagnets, conveyor belts, cranes—is powered by electricity. Electricity is the power behind recycling.

We're proud that electricity helps make all kinds of recycling possible. Because reducing litter and conserving resources is as important to us as it is to you.

Education Today

by Betsy Brooker

You have a free evening. Would you spend it watching your school board and teachers negotiating salaries?

In the past the question would have been strictly academic. However, two local districts, 21 and 23, recently set a precedent by opening their bargaining sessions to the public.

Chances are you would choose a lively hour of "Laugh-In" or a good two-hour TV movie over a salary negotiations meeting. But your representative — the press — will probably sit in on these laborious meetings, recording every haggles, every step forward, penny by penny.

After years of heavily guarded secrecy, school board members have voted to open the doors to negotiations because they want your support. For the most part, teachers always have favored open sessions, but times have changed and now the school boards think public opinion is swinging in their favor.

You are tired of hearing about strikes and the unions' plea for more money. Your taxes are jumping every year and the biggest offender is your local school district. Where does a big hunk of your tax money go? To the teachers.

There also is the teachers' new mil-lancy to contend with. For years they were obedient, model employees. The thought of arguing over their paycheck may have crossed their minds, but such a step was likely to end their job. Then the teachers organized, and with the power of numbers behind them, were able to force negotiations on their employers. Some school administrators are still muttering about the good old days when teachers knew their place.

School board members and administrators have found themselves in a bind. They gave an inch and now they say they are being asked to give a mile. Many feel they have gone beyond the call of duty in granting concessions to the teachers.

They fear the final repercussion of not playing it the teachers' way — a strike. The Decatur school board, for example, not only has been faced with a strike but is now involved in litigation over several teacher firings.

TEACHERS, ON the other hand, feel they have finally won their just rights. For years, they say, they were in a position where they had little voice in employee benefits. Now they have a voice and are eager to improve their lot.

Whether you will side with the school board or the teachers, or even become interested in the salary issue, remains to be seen. What is important is the cloak and dagger trappings of negotiations are being stripped away.

Salary negotiations have taken up far too much time and attention of both the teachers and the school boards. Now the negotiating teams are holding themselves accountable to the public, perhaps the entire procedure can be tightened and professionalized.

Unfortunately, public exposure also could have a negative effect — both teams could become so engrossed in a battle for public sympathy they would prolong the sessions even more.

It is important for both sides to remember their primary concern should be education of children. They are new to the bargaining table and can be expected to have a few growing pains.

But now it is time that the whole thing be put in perspective. Teacher rights should be recognized. But the school board should not be put in a position where those rights overshadow all other employee groups. Both sides should make a greater effort to cooperate, and not become involved in a game that can only be detrimental to the students.

Talent Departments Fading

by RICK DuBROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — One of the reasons talent departments went into oblivion at Hollywood studios was that short-sighted executives, when faced with television's original inroads, cut back on contract players to reduce overhead.

Today there is only one sizable talent department still operating at a major Hollywood movie and television studio. The place is Universal, for long a tremendous supplier of video shows in addition to its movie output. Universal reports it has about 40 contract players in its stable. The other film companies have few or no performers under contract. Nor do they have a real counterpart for Universal's Monique James, Hollywood boss of the studio's talent operation.

Paris-born, Vassar-educated, Miss James is a former agent who runs this operation in conjunction with the New York-based Eleanor Kilgallen, who also covers such areas as London and Canada seeking out talent.

MISS JAMES NOTES that other studios tried unsuccessfully to reorganize in the field of talent development. Commenting on one such failure, she observed that the studio "signed contract players but there was no one to guide them, to tell them what to do. There was no point of view. Signing them is only the beginning." She adds:

"Eleanor and I had the great advantage of not having to do things by committee. To get three people to agree on a young person without a track record is almost impossible. When I first came to the studio, we did these things by screen tests. The problem was that the film then existed, and a whole bunch of people were in a room looking at it. After some years we agreed this whole committee idea wouldn't work."

Some years ago a Hollywood wag commented that Universal was a studio that operated under the theory that Jill St. John and Doug McClure were major stars. And Miss James admits "there was the old cliché: Who wants to go to work at the sausage factory?" But television helped keep the studio alive and prospering while other film companies teetered.

And now Miss James observes Universal not only is back in the movie business but has lately had its label on such exceptional video dramas as: "The Snow Goose" Richard Harris, "My Sweet Charlie" Patty Duke, Al Freeman, "The Neon Ceiling" Gig Young, Lee Grant, "The Harness" Lorne Greene and "The Impatient Heart" Carrie Snodgrass.

Harper Veterans Seek Federal Aid

The Harper College Veterans Club, representing 900 students, has thrown its support behind federal legislation calling for more education benefits for veterans.

The bill, before the House of Representatives this week, has four points. It extends the period of benefit eligibility from 36 to 48 months and it authorizes federal aid for tuition, fees, books and medical expenses up to $1,000 per student each year. The bill also raises the federal government's present monthly allotment from $175 to $210 for single veterans and from $210 to $246 for married veterans. Finally, the bill calls for advance payment of up to two months of these allotments.

The bill was submitted to Congress on Feb. 1 by the National Association of Collegiate Veterans Inc. The association claims the federal allotments leave veterans with only $75 for monthly living expenses after all school costs are paid.

"This is the same amount of money a veteran received for living expenses under the post World War II GI Bill," said

Michael Embrey, vice president of the Harper club. "In many ways the World War II veteran had it much easier because most universities also provided low-cost housing."

To promote the legislation, the Harper veterans have written letters to 50 representatives and 14 senators asking for a "yes" vote. If the bill fails, Embrey says the Harper veterans will "become more active and solicit help from the community."

A Heart Attack Can Resemble Angina Pains

by LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I read your article on nitroglycerin tablets. In 1966 I had a myocardial infarction, and in March, 1971, I had a heart attack. It is now diagnosed as severe angina. I am taking nitroglycerin pills all the time and they do help the pain. Doctors have told me the nitroglycerin tablets would not hurt me. In case of another heart attack and I am taking nitroglycerin tablets is it death or shock? Is it possible that one of the anginal pains could be the start of another heart attack? Also, what are the right amounts in the taking of these pills?

Dear Reader — A myocardial infarction and a heart attack are the same thing. So basically you have had two episodes of the same problem, both of which are complications of coronary artery disease. Angina or chest discomfort that you have is also a manifestation of coronary artery disease.

It is quite true that the onset of a heart attack can be exactly like angina. In fact one of the old medical differentiations between the two is that if the chest discomfort lasted for more than "half of a quarter of an hour," it was more than just angina. The implication being that it was a heart attack.

Now it is quite all right for you to be taking nitroglycerin tablets and your doctors are perfectly correct in telling you they won't hurt you. The discomfort you have experienced has been successfully relieved by the tablets which in itself is a diagnostic test for your problem. It is an entirely different matter to be taking nitroglycerin tablets for recurring attacks of chest pain that are known to be angina as opposed to the first episode of chest pain after months of no difficulty whatsoever.

Basically, if a person has not had anginal discomfort for a long period of time and then suddenly has an episode it is more likely heart attack.

I understand your concern that one of your anginal episodes might be a heart attack and the best thing I can tell you is that a person who repeatedly takes nitroglycerin for angina does develop a tolerance to the medicine. Thus, one pill is not likely to cause any major problems in someone who has been repeatedly taking the pills for anginal pain. Now, if the pain or discomfort is unusually severe or considerably different than previous episodes, then you would be wise to contact the doctor. The other point that will keep you out of trouble is that if one pill doesn't work and the discomfort persists, it is not angina. Don't take another tablet. See your doctor, since as I stated above true anginal attacks are of short duration.

Abortions: Allow Them

The American Bar Assn. has attached its considerable prestige to one of the most pressing social issues of our time: abortion reform.

The ABA's house of delegates—admittedly to the anger of some of its own members—voted overwhelmingly to call on the states to liberalize their abortion laws.

We applaud the ABA's position, very close to that taken by the Herald on this sensitive issue almost two years ago.

In its essence, the ideal abortion law outlined by the ABA would allow any woman to have an abortion within the first 20 weeks of pregnancy—performed by a licensed physician, or by herself under a doctor's direct care.

After 20 weeks, abortion still would be allowed if: there would be a risk that continuing the pregnancy could endanger the life of the mother, or her mental or physical health; the child would be born with grave physical or mental defects; the pregnancy resulted from rape, incest or illicit intercourse with a girl under the age of 16.

The position differs from the Herald's position essentially only in allowing a woman to perform an abortion herself, although under a doctor's care. There is a risk there, and we still feel a doctor should be the one performing the abortion process.

Our basic position still stands; abortion law—as it is written in Illinois—is very much in need of reform. The state law is antiquated, allowing abortion only in extremely restricted medical cases, and it still treats abortion as a crime, instead of a basic and profound human problem.

The General Assembly has failed consistently to tackle the issue, obviously sidestepping it as the explosive issue it is.

That simply isn't good enough. The issue grows more pressing; it does not shrink. It can't continually be dodged, which really is what the ABA was saying in its action.

Abortion should be a matter between the individual woman and her physician, and it should be allowed by law with 20 weeks a sound cut-off for its unrestricted practice. After that, there should be good medical and psychological reasons for its use.

There are ample reasons for it:

—To get abortion out of back alleys, from performance by charlatans, hacks and worse, where it is manifestly unsafe;

—To save women from the immeasurable mental anguish of an unwanted pregnancy, especially in cases of rape;

—Obviously, to save women from physical danger of an unwise pregnancy; —To prevent bringing into the world unwanted children, visited on society without choice or love, and facing the possibility of a lifetime of rejection;

—In cases of truly unwanted pregnancies, as a legal and legitimate means of population control.

We acknowledge with profound caution and respect the one primary argument against abortion: that it may be taking of human life, even if in an unformed fetal stage.

We have to deeply respect the strong moral and religious arguments made on that ground, and the right of anyone holding those beliefs to counsel anyone contemplating abortion.

But in the end, we still feel—equally profoundly—that the decision for abortion must be one of individual conscience. It is wrong for civil law to prohibit that act of conscience, just as it is wrong for civil law—as it does now—to impose the moral, religious and spiritual objections on society at large.

The law universally should make abortion safe, legal and free of choice, and we want Illinois to be in the lead in that direction.

Caucus System Needs Reform

Last Wednesday, Tom Mead, chairman of this year's Arlington Heights Dist. 25 nominating caucus, spoke for the caucus system. There's another constructive view of caucuses, and it comes from Frank Splitt of Arlington Heights.

Splitt is director of engineering of Cook Electric Co. and has been active in long-range planning in industry, as well as in church and educational activities.

We invite your response to his thoughts.

by FRANK G. SPLITT

Much has been written about the nominating system utilized to select candidates for local school boards. The issue of concern here is the apparent lack of understanding and/or regard for the seemingly well stated observations and constructive criticisms concerning caucuses that appeared in the Feb. 18 Herald editorial. The essence of this editorial was that many caucus systems effectively distort the elective process and that caucuses can revitalize themselves by reviewing their bylaws to insure as much participation as possible.

Thomas Mead, chairman of this year's Dist. 25 caucus, and advisor to next year's caucus, spoke out for the caucus system in the Feb. 23 "Public's Issues" column. The article dealt with the operation of the caucus and ended with the contention that "Arlington Heights and its school board nominating committee will continue to be strong and to produce the finest available candidates to serve this constituency through its present means of selection."

On the basis of this statement one could conclude that Mead considers the matter closed—in effect, any suggestions as to how the caucus system might be improved or made more viable need not be considered since the Dist. 25 caucus has satisfied its "goal" by establishing an "outstanding unblemished record of 18 years of providing the community with the best available persons." If this truly reflects the thinking of the Dist. 25 caucus, then the situations should give some pause to all those affected by caucus decisions—the administration, the school board and the taxpayers.

Why so? The answer, simply stated, is that caucus systems which operate under a set of by-laws that stifle the elective process assume the awesome burden of having to demonstrate a Solomon-like wisdom in the selection of its candidates.

This seems to be asking a lot of the people who, as interested in education and as dedicated as they may be, are really little more qualified to pass judgment on the credentials of the candidates than the electorate. Much can be done to improve this situation if an effort is made; surely nothing will be done if those affected by the operation of the caucus are apathetic and assume a passive role of acceptance.

It is my belief that caucuses can enhance their value to the community if their role is limited to the review and recommendation of candidates and to meaningful communication with the electorate. Some specific suggestions are as follows:

—Inform the electorate: The background and experience of all candidates could be published in more detail than has been done heretofore; similar formats could be utilized so as to facilitate comparison. Consideration could also be given to the publication of the questions posed to the candidates (possibly with summarized responses to key questions written by the candidate) as well as the criteria utilized in appraising a candidate's qualifications. This would not only result in an informed electorate but would also make maximum utilization of the efforts of a candidate-reviewing committee.

—Encourage maximum participation by all concerned: Open some, if not all, of the caucus meetings to the public. Of most importance is the final slating meeting where the candidates are given the opportunity to present themselves and their ideas to the caucus membership. Delegates and participating organization should be free to support the election of any candidate without penalty.

—Assure the balance of the caucus: Means could be provided for assuring balanced points of view and representation. Without such means there is the danger that the often-discussed balance of the caucus will only be realized on paper. When it is most needed is at the time of slating. The advantages and disadvantages of public participation in the slating might be considered (e.g. method employed by the Arlington Heights Village Caucus).

—Allow the electorate to exercise its franchise: Endorse more than one candidate for each vacancy so that the voter would not only benefit from the caucus review but would also have a choice among qualified candidates.

Caucuses might also consider the fact that they assume the burden of historical conscience. By the very nature of its power influence on board membership, a caucus implicitly takes on the responsibility for what a school board will be. A caucus which is an ongoing entity provides the link of continuity between past and future boards—between what boards have been and what they can or should be. A caucus must not only learn from the past and appraise the present, but it must also consider the charting of the future. This historical perspective is essential to the formation of school boards that are relevant to these changing times.

With this in mind, it is indeed difficult for me to believe that some caucuses hold their views with such intense conviction that they have ceased discussing the issues, the implication of their role and have in effect been stopped studying how they can improve their entire method of operation—for the benefit of all concerned. Though what is offered here is by no means an exhaustive analysis, or list of suggestions, it is hoped that it is adequate as a stepping off point for those caucuses who recognized that they can be better than what they are today.

One Distant Moon

You'd think that the discovery that another celestial body besides the moon lies within earth's gravitational field would be big news. Maybe it's because "Toro," the body in question, is so small, little more than a mile in diameter.

The tiny asteroid was actually discovered back in 1964 by UCLA astronomer Samuel Herrick, but it was not until recently that its orbit was computer-plotted and found to intersect earth's path twice every eight years—once every eight years in January and once every eight years in August, but in different years. The next August "encounter" will be in 1972 and the next January one in 1975.

The latter year could see an unmanned space mission sent to Toro as another step in unlocking the secrets of the origin of the solar system. The asteroids, which may be leftovers from the formation of the planets, have been orbiting in space undisturbed and unchanged for eons.

At its closest Toro is 9.3 million miles from earth, about 50 times farther away than the moon. According to calculations made by Dr. Hannes Alfvén of the University of California in San Diego and graduate student Wing-Huen Ip, chances of a collision between earth and Toro are remote, "at least for the next 20 years."

'Phosphate Evil Not Yet Defined'

This is in response to a news story headlined, "Phosphate Sale Ban? Des Plaines Council to Weigh Proposal," which appeared in the December 28 issue of the Herald. That story raised several points which I would like to comment on.

The FENCE POST Letters to the Editor

I would like to point out that the role phosphate detergents play in contributing to eutrophication is still a disputed point among many knowledgeable scientists. For example, I would like to refer you to the attached testimony from Dr. Daniel Okun, head of the Department of Environmental Sciences and Engineering, University of North Carolina. Dr. Okun spoke on the question of phosphates and eutrophication at recent Federal Trade Commission hearings. Dr. Okun told the FTC:

"The phosphates present in detergents used by approximately 85 per cent of the total population of the United States cannot be claimed to have any effect whatsoever on the waters into which wastewaters containing these detergents are discharged. For example, all of the rural population and the population in unsewered communities, approximately 30 per cent of the total population of the United States, discharges its wastewater to the ground, where the phosphate concentration is of no consequence. About 55 per cent of the population of the United States reside in cities and towns whose municipal wastewaters discharge into rivers or the ocean, where there is no danger of eutrophication. In this latter category are New York, Pittsburgh, St. Louis, Chicago, Los Angeles, and many other large and moderate-sized cities."

Tomorrow . . .

—Editorials: At last there's a driver licensing station coming to the Northwest suburbs.

Even in those areas where eutrophication does or could exist, and where phosphates are involved, there is a question whether the elimination of phosphates from detergents will likely lead to a significant decrease in algal growth. Dr. William J. Oswald, Professor of Public Health and Sanitary Engineering at the University of California, testifying before recent hearings of the House Public Works Committee stated:

"Independent of any increment due to detergent phosphate, the average domestic sewage contains sufficient phosphorus from uncontrollable origins to support the growth of more than 1,000 mg per liter of blue-green algae. Such an algal concentration is 50 times the average concentration found in most eutrophic bodies of water, 100 times the average found in Lake Erie, and 1,000 times that found in the oceans."

Later in the ninth paragraph, Mr. Abrams asserts that:

"Two compounds, nitrilotriacetic (NTA) acid and alkali metal silicates, have both been found in some cases to be highly irritating to the skin, and a possible cause of chemical burns . . . These two compounds and phosphates are used with detergent to prevent redeposit of dirt."

To our knowledge, NTA has not been incorporated in any detergents sold in this country for over a year now. NTA is presently the subject of intensive research to determine if it has carcinogenic properties. If it should receive a clean bill of health, it might well make an excellent replacement for phosphates since it emphatically does not, as your news story states, irritate the skin or cause chemical burns as highly alkaline metal silicates do.

Incidentally, the role of phosphates in detergents goes far beyond preventing the redeposition of dirt in clothing as Mr. Abrams suggests. They also soften water, increase the efficiency of the surface active agent, furnish necessary alkalinity for cleaning and provide resistance to change in alkalinity during washing, emulsify oil and grease stains, as well as reducing the redeposition of dirt by keeping dirt particles in suspension.

County Stickers Hit

I am a resident of an unincorporated area of Mount Prospect. It seems that Cook County has levied an unfair and possibly unconstitutional tax upon the residents of all of the unincorporated areas of Cook County. This is a ridiculous vehicle license fee of up to $15 for passenger automobiles.

I say ridiculous because first, it is higher (by $5) than that of the neighboring incorporated areas and secondly, although it is more costly than the vehicle sticker fees of the incorporated areas, there are no extra services or privileges given to us in return.

The incorporated areas receive library privileges, prompt snow removal from arterial streets, etc. for their smaller sticker fee. Our streets are usually plowed last and we must pay $15 in order to obtain a library card in an incorporated library. This, according to an official of the County Collectors Office with whom I spoke, is the way things will remain.

I would suggest that all residents of unincorporated sections band together and petition to have this contemptible tax repealed. I am certain that those corporations that have fleets will fight this tax and with them on our side we can defeat this tax. If this fails, then incorporate! At least then you will have something to show for your money and for less money at that.

If anyone knows of any other ways of fighting this tax, I am sure many others as well as I would be interested in hearing of them through your newspaper.

Personal Finance

by CARLTON SMITH

"I have brought my intellect fiercely to bear on all the news stories and editorials about the devaluation of the dollar," Snively told the Financial Wizard. "And I am frankly floundering. I don't know whether it's something I should be worried about or not. That worries me."

"As I understand it," said the Wizard, "you are worried because you don't know whether or not you should be worried. This is a condition of life in our society, and merely demonstrates that you are normal. Therefore, you have nothing to worry about. On the other hand, if you weren't worried about something you would not be normal, and that would be cause for worry. Now, about the dollar."

"My dollars more precisely," said Snively. "Should I clean out my savings account and buy gold-mine stocks? Diamonds? French impressionist paintings? Or should I —"

"One moment," said the Wizard. "It is the word 'devaluation' that bothers you. Let us test your reaction to this." He drew a large dollar sign on a sheet of paper and held it up. "Do you feel worried about what you see on the paper?"

Snively pondered a moment. "No."

"Quite normal," said the Wizard. "Because that was not a dollar you were looking at, but a dollar sign. A symbol.

Not the thing itself. Agreed?"

Snively nodded.

"Very well. Now, the devaluation that you are worried about — or rather, uncertain whether you should worry about — is also only symbolical. The dollar was in fact devalued last August. Certain high-ranking officials denied, at the time, that devaluation had occurred, and this has created a certain amount of confusion.

"It is rather as if Uncle Harry had expired some time ago, and you buried him, but the doctor said that, although Uncle Harry should indeed be removed to the cemetery, he wasn't really dead. Now, four months later, he tells you that Uncle Harry is breathing his last and you should start making plans for the funeral."

"You're suggesting the dollar is dead?" Snively asked in alarm.

"This depends on which dollar we are talking about," said the Wizard. "There was formerly a dollar which foreign debtors could hope to have redeemed by the United States for 1/35 of an ounce of gold. That dollar has been dead since last August, when Washington announced that gold parity had suddenly departed, some time during the night, without leaving a forwarding address."

"The dollar your wife exchanges at the grocery for potatoes or whatever — and the dollar you have in your savings account — is alive and more or less well. It is still worth, and will continue to be worth, whatever a dollar is worth in the American economy.

"As for our late friend, the gold-at-$35-an-ounce dollar, who has been dead for some while, it is high time the poor fellow was buried. This dollar has been floating around in the limbo of international monetary waters, where it has been devalued some 8½ per cent through natural attrition.

"Now Washington has agreed to a formal devaluation, or funeral. The appropriate sentiment should not be pain or grief, but simple relief that we can at last erect a headstone reading, 'Here lies the 91-cent dollar' — or whatever the figure turns out to be."

Snively grasped the Wizard's hand and shook it warmly. "Really appreciate this," he said. "Not a bit worried now."

"Abnormal fellow," the Wizard muttered as he departed. "Oh, well — wait till he reads tomorrow's paper."

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — Although the market has been going through a price consolidation phase, the market indexes have not fallen as much as usual in such a situation, according to Alexander Hamilton Institute. And, despite a general surge in general business activity, inflation appears to be under control, it notes. However, it suggests that "new commitments should be made with great care since many issues have become overpriced."

Spear & Staff, Inc., advises investors to pay close attention to any remarks made by President Nixon on his return from Peking. Spear says, "The tone of these statements could very well determine the mood along Wall Street during ensuing sessions." The firm expects the DJIA to continue upward and even resist any oncoming corrections. He adds, "confidence is fairly well restored in our economy and the market."

Business Today

by LEROY POPE

UPI Business Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — Alcoholism has turned out to be twice as big a nightmare for Americans as previously assumed.

A recent report to Congress by the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse put its cost at $25 billion and nine million warped lives each year.

It's the best researched estimate ever made. In recent years, industrial leaders have calculated industry's loss through alcoholism at $4 billion. The new report says that cost is nearer $8 billion to $10 billion and that state and local government agencies lost another $3 billion to $5 billion because of drunken employees.

In addition to the workers' time lost and the medical expenses, the report says alcohol is responsible for nearly half of all arrests for crimes and misdemeanors in the United States.

In spite of this huge cost, Walter M. Ringer of Foley Manufacturing Co., Minneapolis, who is active in the fight on alcoholism, says it usually is cheaper for an employer to try to cure an alcoholic worker than to get rid of him.

RINGER WAS particularly impressed by one western firm's statement that it saved $1 million a year by attacking alcoholism among its workers.

In a low-profit manufacturing operation it might take $30 million in sales to create an extra $1 million in net profit.

That James Rocha, the recently retired chairman of General Motors, has accepted the chairmanship of the Labor-Management Committee of the National Council on Alcoholism underlines industry's growing concern about the problem.

Many companies have anti-alcoholism programs that get results. But Ringer's statement that it is cheaper to help cure an alcoholic than to fire him merits further examination.

President Robert Moore of Searle Educational Systems, Inc., a division of G. D. Searle & Co., the pharmaceutical makers, sheds some light on the matter.

CONTRARY TO popular belief, says Moore, alcoholism is more common among workers in the higher wage brackets than among marginal workers. Skid Row burns account for only 3 per cent of all alcoholics. This means that firing an alcoholic worker usually means jettisoning a man in whom the company has a substantial investment.

The largest group of alcoholics is made up of men in the middle or late thirties, married, steadily employed and steady church goers. These men caused 800,000 automobile accidents a year and weakened their employers' businesses. To replace such a man would cost from $8,000 to $28,000.

Analysts Agree Prospects For Year Ahead Look Good

CHICAGO — Seldom before have economic analysts been so closely in agreement on prospects for a new year, said the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago in the annual Review and Outlook issue of its monthly publication, "Business Conditions."

The rise in total real activity in 1972 is expected to be double the less-than-3 per cent gain for 1971. Price inflation is expected to moderate, and employment is expected to increase at a faster pace. Unused resources are expected to decline.

The bank cites several factors to support the more optimistic forecasts. Residential construction — with a record, breaking 2 million starts in 1971 — retains a strong momentum. Both hard and soft goods inventories almost certainly will have to expand to meet any further increase in consumer sales. Recent surveys of business plans to invest in new plant and equipment indicate good growth potential in 1972. Total public expenditures probably will increase as fast as private spending, partly due to higher government salaries and higher employment in state and local governments. Public construction will increase because of a backlog of pressing needs.

Farm income rose sharply in the second half of 1971, reflecting larger crops and higher livestock prices. In 1972, higher cash receipts are anticipated for both categories. With increased government payments, expected and with a reduced rate of increase in production costs due to price controls, net farm income could rise by 5 per cent or more for the year, says the bank.

THE REALIGNMENT of international currencies that occurred late in 1971 will help reduce the deficit in the U.S. trade balance, the bank said. A rise in exports relative to imports would increase factory outputs.

Monetary policy provided for rapid growth in money and credit in 1971. Many businesses and consumers were able to rebuild their liquidity to desired levels. At the start of 1972, lending institutions had ample loanable funds available to all classes of borrowers on favorable terms.

In late 1971, pervasive uncertainties restrained many decision-makers. But, says the bank, some uncertainties were resolved by year-end. The Economic Stabilization Act and the Revenue Act were approved after hanging fire for months. Faster depreciation, the investment tax credit, and a variety of tax changes beneficial to individual taxpayers were in force and would help support private spending according to the report.

According to the bank, the primary uncertainty facing decision-makers, public and private, was the question of the true strength of the economy as reflected in income, sales, and new orders.

Railroads Could Introduce 'Trainjacking'

by DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Although now is his 80th year, my father remains something of a visionary.
When I saw him a couple of months ago, I was deploring the problems that had arisen from mass transportation by automobile. My father laid a hand on my shoulder and gazed westward into the setting sun.

"Some day," he said, "vast numbers of people will be moving across this land in rail cars pulled by big locomotives. Maybe we won't see it in our lifetimes, but it's coming." At the time, I wrote that off as the gingerbread dreams of a wishful old man whose mind had slipped into reverie.

Imagine, then, my astonishment when I subsequently learned that a government corporation named AMTRAK was actually promoting such a venture. It is called "passenger train."

A few days ago, caught up in the pioneering spirit, I took an overnight trip on a train. Some improvements are needed, but the basic idea is sound and once they get the bugs out it just might work.

TOWARD THAT end, AMTRAK might be wise to borrow a few concepts from our traditional modes of travel, the jet plane and the motor car. Here are three suggestions:

I noticed that when the train reached its destination it immediately stopped and discharged its passengers.

This was unsettling to those of us accustomed to airline travel and gave us a feeling of unreality.

Dick West

Secondly, the boarding facilities I saw were too compact compared to many airports.

The trainmen have tried to overcome that handicap by making sure the car you wish to board is at the far end of the boarding platform.

Even so, one misses the bracing hikes one gets at air terminals. A regular train passenger would, I fear, soon become debilitated for lack of exercise.

AS THE TRAINS become more popular, and more cars are added, this problem should correct itself, however.

Finally, most train stations are located in the cities they serve. If AMTRAK is to compete with the airlines, it must move the terminals at least 20 miles away from the nearest urban area.

The trip you take before your trip begins is half the fun.

Win At Bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

Jim: "Who invented the suit-preference signal?"

Oswald: "It was probably invented by several different people, but the most likely candidate is Hy Lavinthal of Trenton, N.J. It is a good convention provided it's not abused."

Jim: "Let's see if we can give specific rules for its use."

Oswald: "Here is a hand to illustrate the convention. South lets East's queen of spades hold the first trick, but he must win the second spade lead. At this point West wants to tell his partner to put him on lead with a heart, provided that his partner can gain the lead. He signals by playing his king of spades. Had he wanted a club lead, he would have played his lowest spade."

Jim: "Note it's quite obvious that West would not want a diamond lead."

Oswald: "It is also noteworthy that without guidance East would surely try to get West in with a club."

Jim: "Thus the suit preference is that a high card asks for the higher of two suits; a low card for the lower."

Oswald: "Unfortunately many players get to be suit-preference happy. They should realize that the suit preference is only a secondary convention and does not take away the standard signals of high cards to show strength and low cards to

Benefit Dinner To Aid Girl

Reservations for the March 10 benefit to raise money to help pay medical expenses of Jan Kathy Peterson, 9, Rolling Meadows, will be taken through Friday, March 3.

The benefit dinner for the girl, who was born with a heart defect and recently had open heart surgery, is being coordinated by the Aid Association for Lutherans, an insurance company.

They have scheduled the dinner at Trinity Lutheran Church in Rolling Meadows from 5 to 7:30 p.m. on March 10. Guests will not pay flat ticket rates but will be asked to contribute to a fund that will go to meet the hospital expenses being incurred by Jan Kathy's parents, Neal and Winifred Peterson.

Reservations can be made by calling Arnold H. Hildebrandt, local branch chairman of the Aid Association for Lutherans, at CL 5-2686.

ON ROAD TO TITLE. Jeff Alvis of Fremd has control of match at Illinois wrestling finals. Alvis won this match, East Moline's Bonnie Montez in 112-pound semi-final 7-5, and went on to win the state title.

Fremd's Jeff Alvis: Portrait Of A Champ

by KEITH REINHARD
Wrestling Editor

Advice is something adults are good at presenting but youth are not always so good at accepting.

Jeff Alvis is one who obviously listened.

The hardworking senior with the curly reddish hair let Illinois know Fremd High School produces something other than cross country champions last weekend.

Making his way to the state wrestling finals for the first time after reigning as a district winner for three successive years, Alvis turned back four of the state's finest to wear the 112-pound Illinois mat crown.

His coach, Guy Henriksen, felt it was just a matter of time.

"Jeff knew he could compete with the best since his sophomore year. He's never lacked confidence," Henriksen observed, pointing to a 78-16 record logged by his star grappler over a three-year span.

When asked if he passed on any special suggestions to Alvis prior to their trek down to Illinois State University for the championship tourney last Thursday Henriksen noted, "I just reminded him to stay on the aggressive, to keep shooting, and make the other guy go on the defensive. It's pretty common advice but wrestlers don't always follow it once they take to the mat."

Alvis did though. Whether ahead or behind, he kept moving in on his foes, kept the pressure on, and the dividends lie in the results . . . four straight decisions over competition with a composite record of 107-12-2.

"One of Jeff's strong points is the fact that he moves well on the bottom," Henriksen continued. "Because he can escape quickly, he usually gets that longer opportunity to go for the takedown. This was critical in both his first and last matches at the state meet."

In his first encounter in Normal Alvis came from behind to forge a 6-4 verdict.

He got the decisive takedown in his championship bout with only a few seconds remaining in the final round.

Unlike many others, Alvis does not come from a family with a wrestling background. His father is a former boxer, his older brother played football at Fremd, but he's the first to don mat gear.

"His folks have backed him one hundred per cent though," Henriksen interjected, and he pointed out that the elder Alvis comes from Bloomington and drummed up as many relatives as he could to come out for the meet Friday and Saturday to cheer Jeff on.

Alvis, who is 55-6 over the past two campaigns, is the third Viking to make it as far as the Illinois championship tourney. In 1963 Ray Steerbo made it to the finals at Northwestern but lost his opening 180-pound bout.

Last year Tim Tuerk made the trip to Champaign for the finals as a heavy-weight entry and dropped his opener, won in the wrestlebacks and then lost again to finish in sixth place.

Hawks Impressive In Region Action

Nationals Next For Harper Matmen

Next stop: Worthington, Minn., and the National NJCAA Wrestling Tournament.

Six wrestlers, including two regional champions, will be trying to bring a national championship back for Harper College.

The Hawks won the Region IV championship Saturday compiling a total of 91 points to top their closest rivals Kennedy-King, 78, Triton, 73½, Blackhawk, 66, and Morton and College of DuPage, 40½ in the meet held at Triton College.

Fred Wideman at 134 pounds, and Scott Ravan at 177 pounds were Region IV champions for Harper and will lead the six-man delegation to the national tournament.

Ravan was Harper's most spectacular winner, as he pinned Kennedy-King's Tyrone Everhart in the finals. Ravan had built a 15-0 lead on Everhart through the first two periods of the match as he kept Everhart on his back throughout the match.

Wideman defeated Triton's Rich Skelnik 5-4 in the 134 pound class to capture Harper's first championship.

Harper's victory margin was wide enough that they had clinched the team title before entering the championship round.

Three other Hawks made it to the finals, Tom Moore at 126, Mike Weber at 142, and John Majors at 167. Moore forfeited to Kennedy-King's Melvin Bland due to a rib injury he sustained in the semifinal round. Moore could have wrestled, if needed, but the Hawks had already won the team championship and Moore was already assured of a spot at the national tournament.

Majors lost a one point decision to Wright's Ron Ray, 8-7, on a controversial stalling call. The referee awarded Ray one point when Majors jumped off the mat to avoid a Ray move. When the referee conferred with the two judges who were present during the finals to help the referee, neither judge had seen the action.

Weber was a 5-3 victim of Triton's Joe DiPrizio. The first three finishers in each weight class advance to the finals. The advantage of being a regional champion is the possibility of receiving higher seeds in the nationals.

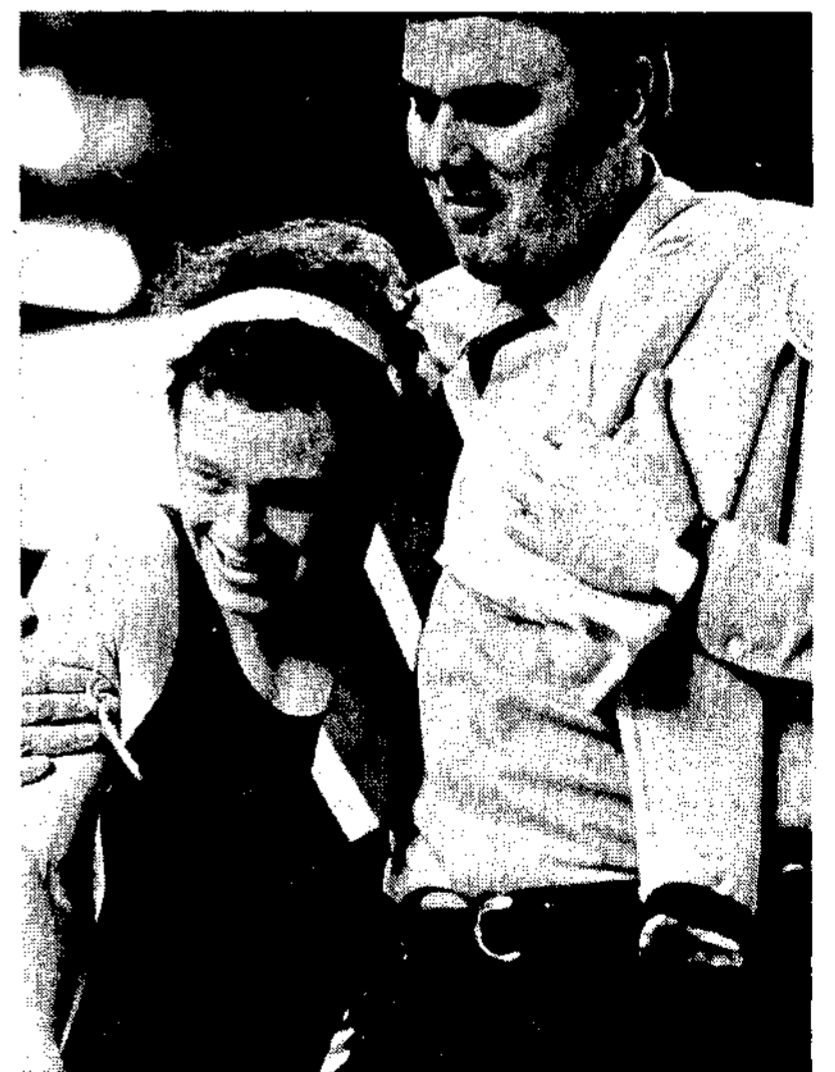

The sixth member of the Harper team who will advance to the national meet is Jerry Ancona. Ancona lost his semifinal match to Waubesa's Terry McGinn, who won the 118 pound championship. But Ancona wrestled back to win the consolation bracket and a trip to Worthington.

"GEE, COACH. I only wanted to show the guys how high I could jump. I didn't want to hang on the rim that long. I'm sorry."

"I don't know where my shoulder pads are, they were in my locker yesterday. I'm sorry."

"I was running to the finish line and the watch bounced out of my shirt pocket, sir. I'm sorry."

"I thought the label of the bat was up. I'm sorry."

A bent basketball rim, a case of missing shoulder pads, a shattered stopwatch and a splintered baseball bat only cost athletes four "sorries."

Back in the athletic director's office where the invoices are received, the "sorries" are converted into dollars and cents. Of course high schools receive discounts on the merchandise they purchase from sports and athletic equipment distributors, but during the course of an average season, these figures may easily reach the astronomical level.

Cunningham-Reilly, MacGregor, Wilson, Rawlings, Southern, Nissen, Parrish and Porter are just some of the major equipment supply houses that satisfy sport's soup-to-nuts requirements. Where large quantities or more expensive materials are needed, competitive bids are accepted from several companies for the purpose of filtering out the best possible price.

"You still only get what you pay for," was one athletic director's consensus. "If you buy cheap equipment, you can't expect it to last."

The basketball hoop that was bent out of shape may be replaced for as "little" as $15, but if the glass backboard was cracked too, the athletic director better be ready to swallow another $200-$300 figure on his bill.

Shoulder pads are a commodity that could almost single-handedly wipe out a school's athletic program with constant purchases and replacements. They list anywhere from $25 all the way up to $75 and like the man said, you only get what you pay for.

Stopwatches aren't a dime a dozen either. Sure, the catalogs will show you a "five Jewel, big sweeping-hand watch that will make you an expert timer for only $10 (Mickey Mouse's head and hands are extra), but any coach will tell you to shop for the $50, $60 or $70 list price models for reliability and durability.

Baseball bats? Very simple. First decide whether you want selected or seasoned white ash timber, a clear or antiqued finish, flame treatment, the length, weight and autograph and then shell out five, six or seven dollars and wait for somebody to crack the bat while swinging through a missed bunt sign.

At least the kid should look good while he's causing the bill-payers fits. And that brings us to uniforms.

It's surprising that football players don't wear "handle with care" tags out on the gridiron. Without helmet, pads or shoes, today's young hero is still probably donning over $40 in his jersey, pants and socks alone. Maybe that's why not all coaches smile when their star runner picks up that extra yard at the total expense of a tear-away jersey.

And when the weatherman doesn't feel like cooperating, hooded capes (at about $20 a throw) are the only solution. Oh, by the way, the players don't practice in their skivvies during the week while the game uniforms are being washed. Those are just 40 or so "extra" outfits.

Basketball players and swimmers, especially, are economical. Cagers can get by on about $25, but wait, they need warmups, and that will cost another $25. Swim suits are negligible in both cost and appearance.

Baseball uniforms (shirt, pants and socks) run into the mid $30 range, one-piece wrestling uniforms about $16 (another $25 for warmups) and track uniforms about $16 with an additional $21 for warmups. It almost pays not to warm up before games or meets.

Playing fields and gymnasiums don't just bloom around a school once the foundation is laid, but throwing out five-digit figures at this stage of the game would almost be irrelevant.

Scoreboards don't exactly grow on trees either. The basketball model commonly displayed in our area's gyms is very informative and very expensive.

The primary board that lists the player's names, numbers and fouls sells for a mere $970, but so everyone can see, you'd better have an auxiliary model with just the score, quarter and time at the other end of the court. They're only $621.

The other "must" scoreboard is the all-weather brand that aids football fans. With the time, score, quarter, down and yards-to-go information, the half-ton monster sells at about two dollars a pound!

These are only a few samples of what cost means in terms of a high school athletic program. But is it any wonder, now, why institutions are cutting back in sports?

How can a university such as Miami in Coral Gables, Fla. phase out a basketball program after producing a superstar like Rick Barry?

Athletic equipment is a taxing subject. Sorry 'bout that.

by LARRY EVERHART

How would the Mid-Suburban League all-conference team do against the best in the state?

Probably not badly if it ever had a chance to work together for a while... which, unfortunately, it won't.

As most all-conference squads, this one — voted by league coaches — lacks nothing. Perhaps its most prominent feature is scoring punch. The 16-man group all is found in the top 19 in scoring in the MSL.

The other skills are all there in abundance, too... accuracy, rebounding, ball-handling ability, speed, quickness, aggressiveness and unselfishness.

Thirteen of the 16 honored are seniors. The exceptions are juniors Don Woodsmall and Bob Prince and sophomore Dave Corzine.

Every team in the 11-man league is represented, except Rolling Meadows, which played mostly junior varsity games. There is a well-distributed balance with no team having more than two boys named. Those landing a pair of spots were champion Hershey, Prospect, Arlington, Conant and Wheeling.

Exactly half of the all-stars were unanimous picks. Four are in the top 13 in all-time league scoring, including the top two ever. There were seven guards, six forwards and three centers named this year.

In order of final league scoring, here were some of the accomplishments of each boy this season:

KEN PETERS, Arlington guard — Won the league scoring title with 285 points in 12 games for a nifty 23.7 average... Was a constant threat from anywhere on the floor and often had big games against double coverage... Extremely quick... Shot up to 10th place on the all-time MSL scoring list even though most of his career points came this season.

DAVE CORZINE, Hershey center — Was sensational in the last two weeks of the season, first tying the all-time league scoring mark with 42 points, then breaking it with 45 in the championship game... Quite possibly the best soph in MSL history... Fine moves underneath for such a big (6-11) man... Averaged 20.9 in league scoring and was near the top in rebounding with about a 13 average... Racked up 293 points for all games.

ROGER WOOD, Wheeling center — Finished out spectacular career as top MSL scorer of all time with 750 points in three seasons... Used his 6-11 height to good advantage for third in the league with 18.6 average and one of top rebounders... Topped 30 points for one game several times in his three-year stint.

JOHN BLASCO, Schaumburg forward — Fourth in league in scoring with 17.7 average despite standing less than six feet tall... A fine shooter and driver with good quickness... Closed out MSL career with 20-point explosion.

TOM WITUCKI, Glenbard center — At 6-5, he kept Glenbard North respectable with several big explosions... Ended up fifth in the league with 16.0 average and had about 10 rebounds per game.

DON WOODSMALL, Forest View forward — Exceptional shooter for his 6-4 height... Averaged 15.7 in league play as Falcons' top scorer and was high in league in rebounding with about 12 per league game... Almost surely will be in top 10 in all time league scoring before he's through with another season to go.

ANDY PANCRAZ, Hershey forward — A team man who was capable of big scoring nights but concentrated more on defense and rebounding... Still averaged 15.6 in MSL action and about 13 rebounds a game... No. 2 on all-time league scoring list with four-year total of 686.

STEVE GAROUTTE, Palatine guard — This 6-2 backcourt performer was fine all-around man and steady scorer with 15.5 average in MSL... Enjoyed fine three-year career at Palatine, finishing up tied for 13th on all-time league scoring list... One of three repeaters from last year's stars.

JOHN VON BERG, Prospect guard — Paced a high-scoring Knight team with a 15.4 average for ninth in the league... Hit well in the clutch and exhibited fine quickness on defense.

CHET PUDLOSKY, Conant forward — Main value of his muscular 6-4 specimen was on boards as he led the league in rebounding with close to 17 per game... Found time to average 15.4 points a game.

BILL ARKUS, Conant guard — Had exactly the same number of points as Pudlosky for league games and was team's scoring leader in all contests... Used his quickness to drive well and offset his 5-10 height.

TIM WILL, Arlington forward — Improved steadily and hit a high of 29 points... A scrappy type who at 6-3 hit the boards hard on both ends of the court... carried 15.3 conference average in scoring and helped take pressure off Peters.

MARK HOLLINGER, Fremd forward — A reliable scorer who averaged 14 points per MSL game as top scorer for the Vikings... Hit 75 per cent of free throws.

JIM KASS, Wheeling guard — Used his quickness to complement Wood and averaged four assists a game... Added speed to Wildcat attack and shot well from outside for 13.9 league scoring average.

ANDY BITTA, Prospect guard — Another very quick and speedy backcourt wizard, dangerous on fast break and in driving... A consistent scorer who averaged 13.7 in MSL.

BOB PRINCE, Elk Grove guard — A hot shooter on occasion, this 5-10 speedster handled the ball superbly and knew how to get open... Averaged 13.0 in league and undoubtedly will move high on all-time MSL scoring list with another season to go.

Gaare Handles Leaders; It's Getting Close Again

It's a race again, fans. Gaare Oil made sure of that Saturday evening at Rolling Meadows Bowl.

After dropping the first match, and falling seven points behind pace-setting Uncle Andy's Cow Palace, Gaare stormed for two straight victories and a 5-2 success in the Paddock Classic Traveling League.

Only four points now separate the 1-2 teams, and there's still time for several outfits to make their moves in the second half of men's action.

Uncle Andy's opened Saturday with class, flashing four 200-plus games in a 997-912 success. Joe Simonis paved the way with a 210, Tom Kouros rolled 202, and Mike Wagner and Don Eberl hit 201.

Gaare didn't let that first setback bother them because they roared back with a big 1044 and easy victory, as Al Jordan rolled 258, Fred Chase 234, and Hank Thullen 213.

Gene Kirkham's 236 paced a third game victory that gave Gaare the match and five points.

Jordan, the league's leading bowler with a 194 average, rolled a 622 series for Gaare, and Thullen supplied a steady 609. Eberl was high for Uncle Andy's with a 610.

Buick-in-Evanston moved past Morton Pontiac into third place after the position ruff scuffling with a 5-2 victory.

Russ Grosch and Ray Olson staged a match within the match as they battled for team leadership. Russ opened at 24 and then added a 205 and 210 in a 659 series. Ray had games of 236-235 before cooling off a bit to a 180 and a 651.

Buick hit 1048 in the opener, and Morton Pontiac, with Bob Glaser rolling a 226, fired a 1005 third game to salvage two points. Bill Smith had a 605 for Morton.

Leone Pools wrapped up a 5-2 victory over Buffalo Striker Lanes with wins in the first and third games and an 18-pin advantage in total series.

Warren Olson rolled a 203 finish for a team-leading 598 for Leone. Bob Leahy, who had a 234 middle game as Striker hit 1021, topped the losers with a 593. Mike Cregan chipped in with a 222 second game.

Hoffman Lanes turned in three steady efforts but couldn't get a sweep against Des Plaines Ace Hardware. Des Plaines took the opener 320-317, but Hoffman closed last for a 5-2 victory.

Ray Lofthouse fashioned a big 621 for Hoffman with games of 200-210-202. Dick Garchie had a 222 finish.

Barry Stjernberg rolled a 586 for Des Plaines Ace. Doug Verdonek had a 222 third game.

Huskies, 'Cats, Cougars Capture Regional Contests

HERSEY NIPS GROVE, 79-76

Hersey, using some accurate second-half free throw shooting and taking advantage of a key Elk Grove turnover, beat back a desperate Grenadier rally to win a hair-raising 79-76 victory last night in the Huskies' own regional.

Hersey now advances into the championship Friday night.

Andy Pancratz hit two free throws with 11 seconds left to ice the game after Elk Grove's Bob Prince had sunk a basket to bring the Grenadiers within one point.

With 23 seconds left, Grove's Jeff Stewart was called for traveling as he sank the would-be go-ahead basket.

Dave Corzine's seven third-quarter points and his tough rebounding helped the Huskies overcome their many mistakes and build 63-52 third-quarter lead. However, Prince's shooting turned the game into a close contest.

Mark Leonhard led the winner's scoring with 23 points. Pancratz had 20, Steve Heldt 15 and Corzine 12.

Prince paced all scorers with 26 points, 16 coming in the second half. Ken Pollitz had 18 and Dave Chernick had 14.

Leonhard's sharp-shooting early in the first quarter allowed Hersey to jump off to a 14-4 lead. The Huskies built it to 22-10 when Dave Corzine, their 6-11 sophomore center, went to the bench with three fouls. From that point on in the first half, the two teams played on fairly even terms.

The Huskies hiked the margin to 33-20 midway through the second period, but the Grenadiers scored a moral victory in that Corzine was tagged with his fourth foul just 15 seconds after he reported in.

A pair of free throws by Bob Prince in the waning moments of the half allowed the Grove to only trail 43-36 at the intermission.

WHEELING OUSTS ST. VIATOR

A stellar opening quarter of basketball was all Wheeling needed to churn past St. Viator and knock the Lions' from the Wildcat hosted Regional Tournament last night, 64-56.

Wheeling now advances to the championship game Friday night.

Behind Roger Wood's handywork around the net, the 'Cats assumed an eight-point command after one period of action and were still clinging to the same lead when the final buzzer sounded.

Big Rog flicked in five in a row during the first stanza, coming up with more moves than he's made all season, and the 6-11 senior went on to ring up 18 by halftime as the hosts even managed to up their advantage a bit.

Following a first half of solid play by both sides, the contest turned sloppy after intermission. Neither team was able to capitalize on a rash of missed field goals, free throws and turnovers, however, and the Lions were still trailing by nine when the last began.

The Lions, playing in their second game in as many days, shaved the gap to seven on a couple of occasions. Ken Martin went full court for a layup at 5:04 and cut the span to 64-47. Ed Foreman hit a couple of free throws a minute later to make the score 66-49.

Wheeling snapped back with an eight-point rally in the closing minutes to put the game on ice.

Wood led all scorers with 26 points and had 14 rebounds. Jim Kass added 14 points and seven assists to the cause. St. Viator was led by Ken Martin with 17.

CONANT OUSTS PALATINE

Chet Pudlosky's 25 points and 17 rebounds paced Conant to a 62-56 victory over Palatine in the opening game of the Palatine Regional last night.

Conant upped its record to 16-5, while the Pirates led by Doug Fyfe's 18 points, finished 9-12.

It was a sloppy contest with 46 turnovers in all (27 by Palatine), 30 per cent shooting from the field for the Pirates, and 35 per cent for Conant.

Palatine held a brief 4-2 lead in the first two minutes, but Conant went on top for the rest of the half after a fast break basket by Bill Arkus. The Cougar guard injured his knee on the play and did not return.

All five players scored for Conant as it took a 13-9 lead after one period and held it until halftime, when it was 28-25.

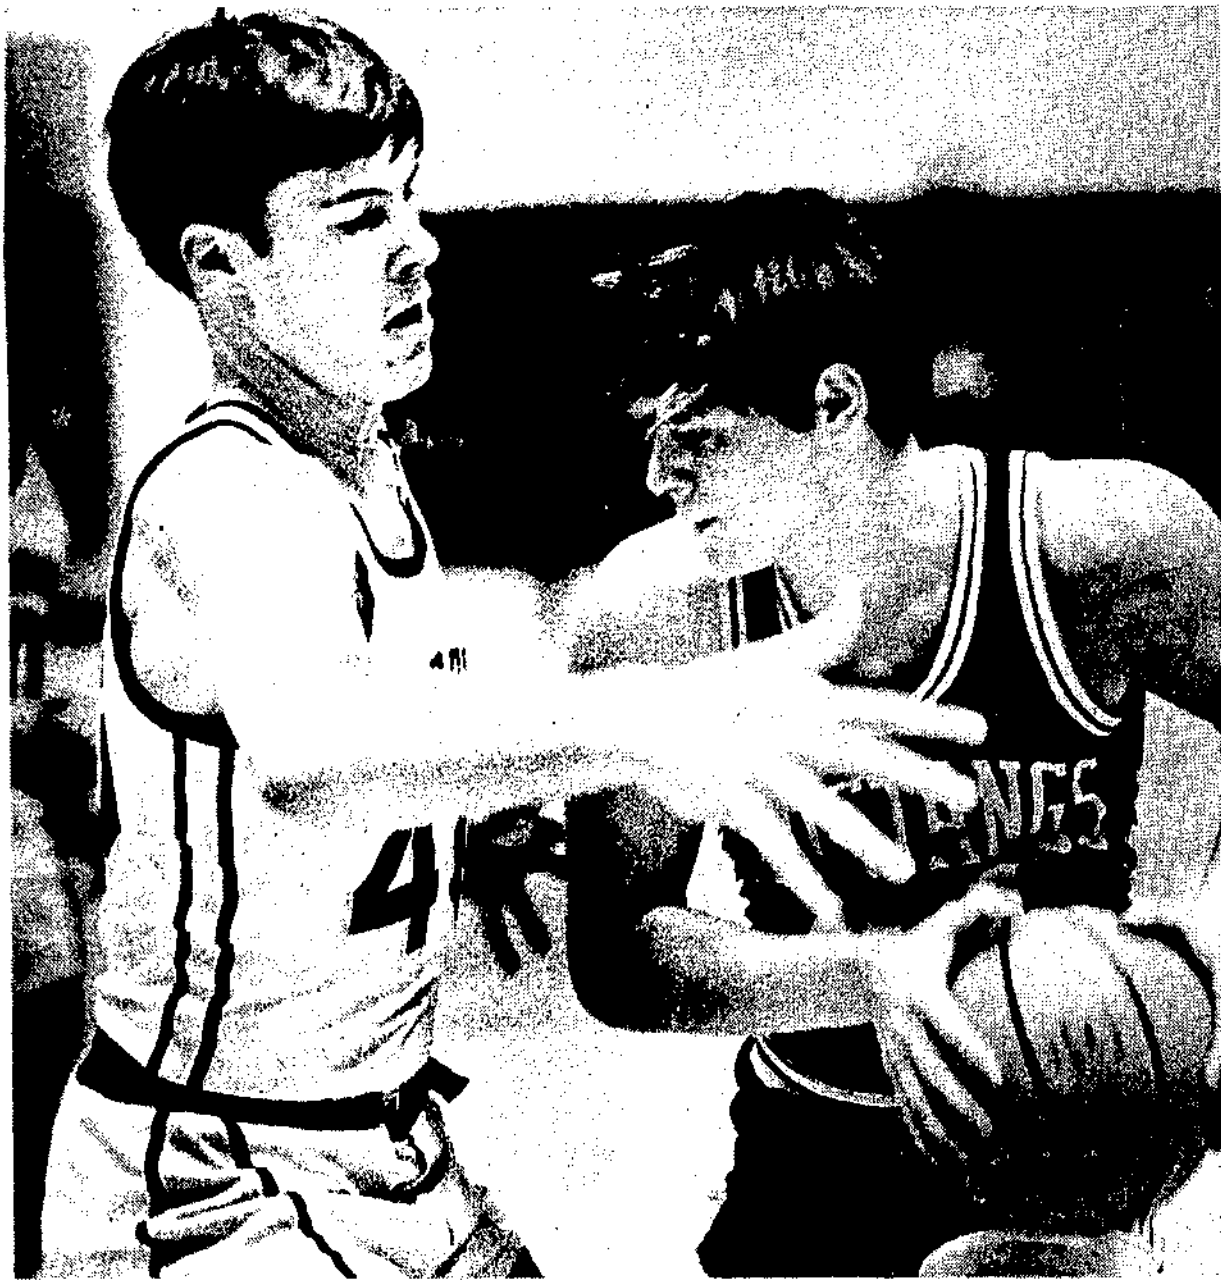

Palatine got within one point in the second quarter, as guard Rick McCormick hit three long shots, but Pudlosky's three baskets helped keep the Cougars ahead.

In the third quarter the Pirates took the lead after three and one-half minutes on a long shot by Steve Garoutte. Palatine led just once more before the end of the quarter.

Conant broke a 42-all tie with 6:54 left in the game and was never headed.

Doyle's-Striking Has Big Weekend

Doyle's-Striking Lanes was double trouble in the Paddock Women's Classic Traveling League last weekend.

Rarely, if ever, has one team shown as much profit in one weekend as Doyle's did in a short span of less than 24 hours in PWCTL action. Result: This hot unit leaped from nine points out of first place to only two behind Des Plaines Lanes, still clinging to its lead.

Doyle's-Striking did it with a pair of 7-0 shutouts — 14 points gained — as it posted high series in the league both Saturday evening at Thunderbird Lanes and Sunday afternoon at Hoffman Lanes.

The league schedule was a departure from usual form. Reason for the double weekend was that the Ladies Sunday were pre-bowling the March 25 schedule, when some of the women will be involved in a state tournament.

Sunday's session was like an instant replay of Saturday for veteran Lu Schoenberger of Doyle's, threatening to take over the league lead in individual average. She posted carbon-copy 615's for both gatherings to lead the big charge, grabbing two of only four 600 series for the weekend out of a possible 80.

Another lady who enjoyed a banner weekend was Dee Kachelmuss of Arlington Park Towers, who followed a 592 Saturday night with 591 Sunday.

In Saturday's slate, Doyle's was over 900 for all three games in recording a fine 27-46 and a 7-0 shutout over Franklin-Weber Pontiac. Only the first game was fairly close. Following Lu Schoenberger's 615, which included a 235 game, was Bette Brelle with 591. Alice Nichols had a 225 game for the winners.

Des Plaines Lanes protected its slim first-place margin with a 5-2 triumph over Morton Pontiac. Des Plaines just missed a sweep, losing the second game by seven pins. Winnie Lohse finished with a 235 game to lead with a 569 series.

Arlington Park Towers posted a decisive 7-0 win over L-Tran Engineering and KoHo Office Supplies downed Thunderbird Country Club, 5-2, in Saturday's other matches.

On Sunday, Doyle's was even hotter than the night before with a 2811 serieson three more 900 games. Lu this time was helped by Judy Croston and Bette Brelle, each with 559. Dee rolled a 234 game for Arlington Park but Doyle's moved up another notch in the standings into second.

Franklin-Weber Pontiac also stayed close — only three points out of the lead — with a 5-2 triumph over L-Tran in a high-scoring match. Joan Plywack led the winners with a big 622, including a closing 241 for the highest league game of the weekend. Lee Winski added a pair of 200 games and a 587 series, while L-Tran's Isobel Kosi was hot with 599 including a 230 game. Teammate Lorie Koch added a 570.

Thunderbird Country Club kept Des Plaines Lanes from padding its lead with a 5-2 victory. Marilyn Lange led the way with a 582 series while Winnie Lohse's 571 was important for Des Plaines.

Morton Pontiac gained a 5-2 triumph over KoHo as Ruth Baurhyte led the victors with a 577 series. Peggy Harris recorded a 575 for KoHo.

The league will convene at Des Plaines Lanes Saturday night with the schedule reading: Doyle's vs. KoHo, L-Tran vs. Des Plaines, Morton vs. Thunderbird and Arlington Park vs. Franklin-Weber.

Sportsman's Notebook

by Bob Holiday

STITCHING UP LOOSE ENDS: Turkey hunting has deteriorated considerably since the days when sergeant Gary Cooper York used to poke his head out of the brush, spit on his rifle sight and "gobble" like a hen. In fact, this year's turkey season in Illinois will be only the third one since 1900.

Turkeys were restocked by the Department of Conservation in four downstate counties in 1960 and the first open season on the "new" game bird was in the spring of 1970. Except this year the season will be split: April 14, 15 and 16, and April 21, 22 and 23. Hunting will be from sunrise to noon. One thousand and six hundred hunters will receive special turkey permits for Alexander, Jackson, Pope and Union counties.

Last year, hunters bagged 52 gobblers (males), and 23 in 1970. Estimates are for 100 gobblers this year and the Department has the permits at $5 a copy.

THE BASS ANGLERS SPORTSMAN SOCIETY (BASS), sponsor of most of the "big" money bass tournaments throughout the southeast, has launched a worthwhile campaign to encourage boat manufacturers to build a live-well into their boats. Most bass fishermen, the Association contends, keep only a small percentage of the fish they catch (and during tournaments they keep none). The idea is to keep the bass alive until "sorting" time, when they can be released.

A live-well that can circulate water will keep a bass alive and well. And, you don't have to remember to pick up the stringer each time you move your boat to a new location.

AN EXPERIMENT being conducted by Salmon Unlimited, a Chicago fisherman's club, may find a new use for sewage treatment settling ponds. The organization, with the cooperation of the Hinde Engineering Co. of Highland Park, has stocked chinook salmon fry in treatment lagoons at Spring Valley, Lindenhurst, Waterman and some other suburban cities.

Using non-turbulent induced-air aeration systems, it is hoped these small ponds will sustain enough small animal life, such as daphnia and crayfish to feed the young salmon.

Eventually the organization hopes to stock 200,000 salmon fry and 30,000 rainbow fry in sewage lagoons. The fish will then be transferred to Lake Michigan.

THE MASONITE CORPORATION, always willing to find new uses for their pressed-board product, offers plans for construction of a portable ice fishing shelter. It's built-in sections of framed hardboard panels that you carry in your station wagon and put together "on location" with screen couplings. Complete instructions and plans are free for a postcard to: Masonite Home Service Bureau, Box B, Chicago, 60690.

THIS TIME OF year always brings queries from men who are considering building their own boat. (Although we have never heard again from the guy who built his own 16 foot boat for less than $500. Then he spent $750 to put in sliding patio doors so he could get the thing out of his workshop.)

The best advice is: Buy a boat. It's easier and, very often, cheaper. Kit boats are not as common as they were a few years ago, because, quite simply, manufacturers can mass-produce boats in any price range they choose. A used boat that you can spend your winter days putting back in new condition is a much better bargain. And it will have a better resale value.

EVERY YEAR at about this time, people take a frozen bird they have found to the neighborhood taxidermist for mounting... only to discover that the fellow can't or won't mount it. The fact is that most species of birds cannot be lawfully mounted without permission from the Department of Conservation.

Federal and state laws state that no "insectivorous or song bird can be in a citizen's possession." Owls, hawks, eagles, cranes, herons, etc., are all protected. Only birds which have been legally taken can be mounted, plus a few other species such as starlings, pigeons and sparrows.

IN WISCONSIN cold weather has made it "only for the hardy," but snow and ice conditions are good for snowmobiling, skiing and fishing.

In the northwest, fishing has been good in the Washburn and Bayfield areas for brown trout, lake trout and perch. Hayward reports good snowmobiling, but there is slush on the lake ice.

In northern Wood and Portage counties there's 12 to 14 inches of snow. Fishing is excellent around Woodruff and coyote hunting is good. Marsh Miller Lake in Chippewa County is hot as a pistol for panfish and walleyes.

Along Lake Michigan trout fishing is best at Bailey's Harbor in Door County and, nearer to home, walleyes are hitting very well on Winnebago.

And if you can clear your time from March 17 to March 26, Ace Extrom, the bearded apostle of the Illinois Wildlife Federation, invites you to join him for a fishing trip to Managua, Nicaragua. The trips leave on a Friday evening with a nonstop jet flight to Miami and then another nonstop to San Jose, Costa Rica... and then a short flight to Managua.

Fishing the El Toro rapids, the angler will expect to catch Tarpon up to 100 pounds. $945 includes everything, air transportation, hotel and camp accommodations, food, motor, your own dugout canoe and a guide who can speak only Spanish.

Complete information on the trip can be obtained from extrom at the IWF in Blue Island. Telephone 388-3995.

Ace also reports that there is no truth to the rumor that Howard Hughes has bought Nicaragua; however it may be true that he paid $100,000 for Clifford Irving's address book.

International premium lists

Premium lists are now available for the 32nd annual International Kennel Club of Chicago All-Breed Dog Show scheduled for April 1 and 2, at the International Amphitheatre.

The entry deadline is March 15, so get on the move if you intend to enter. Premium lists may be obtained by writing the International Kennel Club, 4300 S. Halsted St., Chicago, Ill., 60609, or the Foley Dog Show Organization, 2009 Ransstead St., Philadelphia, Pa., 19103.

The Amphitheatre not only provides an excellent opportunity for people to view all the dogs in the benching area but also provides facilities for sled dog racing, Whippet, Afghan and Saluki racing, indoor field trials and obedience classes.

Younger exhibitors are also in the spotlight with junior showmanship and junior dog judging supervised by professional show judges. The Junior Dog Judging Contest is open to juniors 10-20 years of age, including Boy and Girl Scouts and 4-H members with dog projects.

Gaines anatomy film best
"Anatomy of the Dog," a 23-minute color film produced by the Gaines Dog Research Center, has been named "Best Motion Picture on Dogs" for 1971 by the Dog Writers' Association of America.

Announcement of the award was made at the Association's annual banquet in New York City on the eve of the Westminster Kennel Club Dog Show.

The film, which was under the technical direction of J. Kilburn King of New Rochelle, N.Y., is narrated by Dr. Frank R. Booth, retired veterinarian, former dog breeder and now an American Kennel Club approved all-breed judge.

Using anatomical drawings and live dogs representing different types of breeds, Dr. Booth defines the structure of canines in order to aid breeders in gaining increased knowledge applicable to the raising of sound animals. Eleven top-winning show dogs are featured in the film.

Dog club secretaries can obtain the film for showing by writing to the Gaines Dog Research Center, 250 North St., White Plains, N.Y., 10625. Requests should be made on club stationery at least four weeks in advance of the planned showing date, with an alternate date included.

Take it easy
Don't rush into giving your dog a bath. We still have cold weather on hand. Unless you have a professional type electric dryer built especially for use on dogs, better keep that brush going instead.

Regular brushing and grooming will keep him in shape during the winter. You can wash his feet and his face after he has been out in mud or slush, but make sure he is thoroughly dry.

Barks & Bays
Dogs produce higher ratio of male to female offspring than other animals.

Forest View Trackmen Roll To 68-23 Victory

Forest View opened its indoor track season with an "exhibition" meet with Fenton Monday night in Prospect High School's facility.

In a matchup "that did both teams some good," according to Falcon coach Bill Mohrmann, Forest View easily won, 68-23. It was the first indoor meet ever hosted by a Falcon team.

Highlighting the abbreviated meet (no high jumping or pole vaulting) was the mile run of Rick Wise. He smashed both the indoor and outdoor record with a 4:38.0. Wise held the old mark of 4:41.3.

Posting other individual wins for Mohrmann were Scott McGovney in the two-mile run (10:00), Dean Ballotti in the high hurdles (8.2), Rick Mirro in the 60-yard dash (7.0), Bill Bates in the 880-yard run (2:03.4), Dave Borgardt in the long jump (18-5 1/4) and Craig Brinkman in the shot put (44-4 1/2).

The mile relay of Larry Keen, Bates, Borgardt and Ralph Voyta won in 3:58.3. The four-lap relay of Mirro, Borgardt, Pat Buhrke and Joel Soderberg also won with 1:07.1.

The Falcons will be at Wheeling this afternoon for a duel beginning at 4:30.

Six Area Teams Launch Regional Play Tonight

Six more area basketball teams get into the tournament act tonight as action continues in three nearby regionals.

Arlington will meet Deerfield at Wheeling, Prospect will take on Forest View at Hersey and Fremd will contest Schaumburg at Palatine. The winners all move into championship contests while the losers, of course, are through for another year. All games start at 7:30.

The championships will be decided Friday evening.

Prospect, 12-8, and South Division winner in the Mid-Suburban League before losing to Hersey by 22 in the title tussle, will be trying for its third win over Forest View (11-9). The first two times these teams met the Knights prevailed by scores of 67-54 and 40-39. The latter game decided first place in the South.

In Forest View's last outing, it shot only 35 per cent and was outbounded by a wide margin in losing 56-46 to Wheeling.

Arlington, coming on strong lately and carrying a 15-6 record, will meet a Deerfield unit that finished second in the Central Suburban League.

The Warriors have been inconsistent, having handed state-ranked LaSalle-Peru its only defeat (60-58) yet winning by only six over a Maine North team that won but once all season. Deerfield is known as a physical team.

Arlington finished second in the North Division of the MSL with a 6-2 record (both losses being against unbeaten Hersey). The Cards took third overall in the MSL with an 82-71 victory over Conant last Friday.

Fremd and Schaumburg both have experienced plenty of troubles. The Vikings have won just once in their last seven games and the Saxons just three times all season. Fremd stands 7-14; Schaumburg 3-16.

In their most recent outings, the Saxons drubbed first-year Rolling Meadows 97-74 and the Vikes dropped a 67-53 decision to Elk Grove.

Decision Delayed

The High School Dist. 214 board has postponed a decision on the Northwest Education Cooperative's (NEC) proposal to lease a new computer.

The NEC Data Services program is currently operated with a computer located in the Dist. 214 Rolling Meadows High School and a computer owned by Harper College. In a recent budget proposal NEC administrators included the cost of leasing a new computer to replace the existing machines.

NEC cannot lease the new computer without the approval of every member school board in the cooperative. The cooperative includes districts 15, 21, 23, 25, 26, 57, 59, 54, 211 and 214.

At this time only districts 15, 21 and 57 have approved the proposal. At a meeting Monday, the Dist. 214 School Board voted to adjourn discussion on the proposal until a later meeting. The board members questioned whether the Xerox computer and the cooperative itself will be able to provide the necessary services.

ESPECIALLY FOR THE FAMILY

Speaking Of . . .

The Gender Benders

by KAY MARSH

Do you approve or disapprove of sexist child rearing? You can't really decide until you realize how strong and subtle the tradition is in our society. One of the best ways to sharpen awareness is to reverse roles: to substitute "he" for "she," and vice versa, in some typical situations of childhood. For instance:

Happily pregnant, you buy baby clothes in a neutral yellow. But once baby arrives your friends and family give you pink for a boy, blue for a girl.

Come nursery rhyme time, timid Little Master Muffet sits around on his tuffet while Roberta Shafto sails away for adventures at sea. Fairy tales, too, star girls who act, boys who are acted upon. Cinderella, for example, is a Cinder-fella, passively waiting for Princess Charming to bring him lifelong happiness.

Santa is a sexist, too. Your daughter receives cars, tricycles, basketballs and, later, chemistry sets. Your son gets dolls and a Sammy Homemaker mini-oven. In nursery school, he plays in the doll corner. She opts for building blocks and the jungle gym.

Primary schools build on a solid base of sexual conditioning. He is cautioned not to get dirty, or tear his pretty clothes on the playground. She collects patches and scratches like so many badges of honor. In the event of injury, he is cuddled and cuddled. She is told that "big girls never cry."

PRIMERS PRIME the sexual stereotypes. Jane and the girls are forever doing active, interesting things. Dick and the boys help around the house, or learn to make doll clothes. Mommies in the story books go out to work, become astronauts, run for office, et cetera. Daddies stay home and bake those all-American apple pies.

History is her-story. There will be an occasional paragraph or so on some outstanding man, or a tribute to the brave men who accompanied their women beyond the frontiers. But, generally speaking, there are few hero models, only heroines.

Even the workbooks are slanted. Somehow, a boy is usually chosen to explain the first and easiest step in a process. In math, for instance, he may practically count on his fingers to show that one plus one plus one add up to three.

It's a girl who makes the great intellectual leap forward, figuring out that you arrive at the same answer faster if you multiply three times one.

At home, your son is taught to help his househusband father cook and clean, though he may do a little babysitting. Your daughter's encouraged to take a paper route or find a part-time job. He studies piano and/or ballet; she joins Little League.

HIS AND HER sports start well before the teens. He learns to figure skate; she plays hockey. Even when they participate in the same sports, they compete on different teams. And it's her teams that receive major attention plus about 90 percent of the athletic funds. Of course, he can always be a cheerleader of a pompon boy.

Great sex-pretations enter early into career planning. The jet pilot who talks to gradesters about her job will pass out pilot's wings to the girls and steward's wings to the boys. And, from kindergarten on, your son will be gently encouraged to settle for less. After all, he will probably just get married anyway. Thus, he will be told how convenient it is that the elementary teacher's vacations usually coincide with his children's.

A daughter, however, will be sold on graduate school as a requisite for college teaching. Or she may be applauded for her decision to apply for medical school, while he will be steered toward nurse's training. Whatever their career goals, he will surely be advised to learn how to type to help him get an "entry job" that's often a dead end.

TYPING AND other office skills will probably be the only vocational offerings scheduled for boys who don't plan on college. She can choose from a wide range of high school vocational and technical courses to help her make a living.

He will be encouraged from an early age to make a "good" marriage. He will be given away by his mother and take his bride's name. He may continue to work, if it doesn't interfere with her career and if he continues to assume major domestic responsibility. In the event of divorce, he will naturally be awarded custody of the children, especially young children. Who will, of course, wear pink if a boy and blue if a girl . . .

by ELEANOR RIVES

The woman in the room next to yours on the maternity floor who received a single yellow rosebud and a card . . .

The brand new neighbor down the block who moved in already equipped with a circle of close friends . . .

The shy, retiring friend who suddenly blossomed and found she could lead a group as well as anyone else . . .

Chances are these women are members of Beta Sigma Phi, cultural and social sorority of 225,000 women in 24 countries and territories. Its object is the fellowship and friendship of its members, their cultural development through definite courses of study and the pursuit of liberal arts. Service is an integral part of the program.

There are approximately 150 members in the northwest suburbs. Between 10 and 25 women compose a chapter. Chapters meet twice a month — 18 times a year — usually in the evening in a member's home.

CHAPTERS ARE organized not by area but by the progression of members from one degree to another. Nu Phi Mu chapters are composed mostly of young single women between 17 and 22 who complete pledge training and devote three years to cultural programs guided by a cultural program book, adding local service projects, arts and crafts and ways and means events.

After this period, a member progresses to a Ritual of Jewels chapter, usually composed of young marrieds, many with small children. Pledges may enter Beta Sigma Phi at this level too. Four years active membership, following a book of prescribed cultural programs, qualifies a member to advance to an Exemplar chapter.

Exemplars have a wide variety of cultural programs to choose from, such as "On Being Alive," "Who We Are," "How to be a Real Person," "The Great Beliefs," and "Ideals of Liberty and Justice." New programs emerge each year. Arts and crafts, service projects and social functions enrich the meetings.

AFTER SIX active years in an Exemplar chapter, a member is eligible for the Exemplar Preceptor degree. Exemplar Preceptor chapters plan their cultural programs, choosing from 100 subjects in 10 categories.

After 15 active years in Beta Sigma Phi, a member may, by unanimous vote of all active members of her chapter, be awarded the Order of the Rose.

Mrs. Luther Legg of Arlington Heights has spent seven years in Beta Sigma Phi chapters in the northwest area. Five years ago, she and Mrs. John Shibona of Bartlett organized the Bartlett Coordinating Council, representing four suburban chapters, with Mrs. Shibona as president.

In September 1970, the council name was changed to the Northwest Suburban Council. Subsequent presidents have been Mrs. Melvyn Van Buren, formerly of Bartlett; Mrs. James Campbell of Roselle; Mrs. Legg; and currently Mrs. Donovan Collins of Schaumburg.

SEVEN BETA SIGMA Phi chapters are now represented in this council. Seven more chapters, not a part of this council, are also active in the northwest suburbs.

Sybil Collins joined Beta Sigma Phi 14 years ago in Seattle. "All my other activities had been for someone else's benefit," she said. "This time I did something that was just for me . . . for my own pleasure and improvement."

What did she gain? "Confidence, poise, many new friends and a great deal of satisfaction."

Pat Barrett of Des Plaines, secretary of the council, said, "I was a retiring type person but underneath I really wanted to go out and do things. A girl friend invited me. Now I've been a member for five years."

BETA SIGMA PHI was founded in 1931 in Abilene, Kan. Seven young women in search of cultural and social activities comprised the first chapter.

Membership today is by invitation only, following one or two "rush" parties and an open meeting to which prospective pledges, usually friends of members, are invited. "Rush" culminates in a "preferential tea" for those who have accepted the sorority's "bid."

Some annual activities are council-wide, such as the Valentine Ball at which the Valentine Queen of each chapter is crowned, and the annual art fair to raise money for the Mark Lund Home in Bloomingdale (for children with terminal diseases). This year the fair will be held April 22 at the Rolling Meadows shopping center.

All Beta Sigma Phi chapters at their Founder's Day celebration on April 30 honor the woman who has worked hardest for her chapter, presenting her with the "Girl of the Year" award.

SERVICE TO others plays an important part in the lives of Beta Sigma Phi women, not only in their contribution to national and international programs, but in local projects chosen and carried out by each individual chapter. Xi Eta Rho in Des Plaines, an Exemplar chapter founded by Mrs. Legg and four other women three years ago, has for the past year sponsored a boy and a girl in Lydia Children's Home, visiting them, bringing gifts, holding birthday parties for them and contributing to their support.

Other northwest suburban chapters have chosen their own local charities, such as Clearbrook Center for the Retarded, Little City, various old people's homes, the Mark Lund Home in Bloomingdale and local needy families.

A PHENOMENAL record of service to mankind are the international philanthropies of Beta Sigma Phi. By January 1972, the sorority had, over the years, contributed staggering totals to various funds: $75,000 for Cystic Fibrosis Research; $251,000 for Cancer Research; $50,000 for Ranch Hope for Boys in New Jersey; $266,000 emergency loans to members; $267,000 to Girlstown in Texas; $96,000 to Literacy Village in India; $84,000 to the Canadian Cultural Program; $30,000 to Pediatric Care Center in Florida; and $6,000 to Memorial Scholarship Awards.

Beta and Sigma and Phi are the first letters of three Greek words which mean life, learning and friendship. Although the sorority was not conceived as a service organization, according to Hallie Morris, director of international funds, "It has followed as naturally as night follows day . . . that Beta Sigma Phi members going forth from their first ritual, think and act in loving service to others."

ARTS AND CRAFTS are often incorporated into Beta Sigma Phi meetings. Mrs. Luther Legg of Arlington Heights became interested in plaster figurine painting following a demonstration given during the past year by a sorority sister, Mrs. Richard Nemeth of Xi Eta Rho chapter.

Nurse-Educator Believes

Day Care Must Focus On Children

by KATHLEEN NEUMEYER

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Betty Dimond is concerned that day care advocates are focusing in the wrong direction.

"They're focusing in on the family need, or the community need," says the former director of UCLA's day care program. "The concern is with freeing women to do what they are capable of, and then incidentally setting up a program for the children. That's where the problem lies."

"We should be geared to deciding what is needed to care for the children, and then setting up that kind of program."

Miss Dimond, a registered nurse and former instructor at Pacific Oaks College in Pasadena, where pre-school teachers are trained, resigned several months ago after heading UCLA's program from the day it opened its door last April 12 to 85 youngsters from eight weeks to five years. The youngsters were offspring of students, faculty and university employees and paid about 50 cents an hour to stay there.

"I'M NOT PESSIMISTIC about university sponsored child care, because universities could be prime centers," Miss Dimond said in an interview. "But the situation at UCLA — and it could happen anywhere — was too budget oriented. It wound up a business venture. Not a profit-making one, but it had to be self-supporting. I tried to keep it financially viable, and we ended up with only a small deficit."

"But it wasn't humanly viable."

Miss Dimond feels that day care centers inevitably "are going to have to be subsidized."

"When you build a bomber, you don't start with a budget of half a million dollars, and then find out you have run out of money, and leave off the tail," she said.

In addition to plenty of money, Miss Dimond feels the only way to make a child care center work is to have small groups — probably not more than 15 children in each.

"As a general rule, with more than 15 children of any age, you pass the point of having enough familiar people around, so that you negate the value of socialization."

MISS DIMOND said another problem with many day care centers is a lack of full-time help.

Because there was a heavy reliance on volunteers, the children saw many unfamiliar faces, and began clinging to the knees of the seven full-time paid professionals.

"We have to realize that children are a resource," she said. "It's not expensive. Little children are too important to be considered expensive."

A HUMORIST WAS on the luncheon program for Wheeling Township Women's Republican Club last Thursday but Mrs. Richard C. Dye, Mrs. Lewis J. Mehl, Mrs. George Dutro and Mrs. Edward Mika were in a happy mood even before luncheon began. The affair was held at Lancer's Steak House during which Mrs. Dye and Mrs. Dutro were installed as vice presidents. New president of the GOP Women is Mrs. Thomas Hanlon of Arlington Heights.

VIRGINIA MACDONALD, (center) candidate for the Republican nomination for the general assembly in the March 21 primaries, was a popular guest at the Wheeling Township Women's Republican luncheon last week at Lancer's With Mrs. Macdonald are Mrs. Earl Schmidt, who was installed as sergeant-at-arms, and Mrs. Lela Benford.

'Y' Mermaid Mamas To Stage Water Show In New Pool

A floating poker game?

It's one of the intriguing numbers for this spring's water show staged by the Mermaid Mamas of Northwest Suburban YMCA. The game will be played in the 'Y's olympic-size pool, an unusual setting for poker, featuring the Neptune Kings who are a counterpart of the Mamas' synchronized swim group.

This 11th annual water show, entitled "Let Us Entertain You," is the first to be presented in the new pool which opened last summer. There will be two evening performances, one Saturday and one Sunday, March 18-19. Saturday's show time is 8:30, Sunday's is 7.

TICKETS ARE $1.25 for adults, 50 cents for children under 12. They can be purchased at the 'Y' office, 300 E. Northwest Hwy., Des Plaines.

The Mermaid Mamas are in rehearsal for several original numbers, to be performed to the tunes of Rubber Ducky, Aquarius and Man from LaMancha. There will also be a number representing the Big Band era and a duet written and performed by Laura Williams of Palatine and Nancy Reub of Deerfield.

The Mermaid Maidens, a group of local teenage girls, will do four numbers, including a duet by Mary Kay Male of Rolling Meadows and Sue Dragoon of Palatine.

An Afternoon Of Recollection

An afternoon of recollection will be conducted Sunday by the Rev. John Powell, S. J. at Nazareth Hall of St. Joseph the Worker School, 171 W. Dundee Road, Wheeling.

The brief retreat, sponsored by the Catholic Women's Club of the parish, will begin at 1 p.m. and conclude at 4:30 p.m. It will include two one-hour talks by Father Powell, a question and answer period, and a special mass at 4 p.m. Refreshments will be served during the afternoon.

Father Powell is a counselor and teacher at Loyola University in Chicago. He is known as a lecturer and as the author of "Why Am I Afraid to Love?" and "Why Am I Afraid to Tell You Who I Am?," books which deal with self-awareness, growth and communication.

All women of the parish as well as from the surrounding areas are invited. Further information may be obtained by calling Mrs. Edward D'Argo, spiritual committee chairman, 537-2929.

Phonathon Sunday For ORT Members

Members of all the area ORT (Organization for Rehabilitation through Training) groups will be participating in a phonathon on Sunday for membership in the Greater Chicago area. The event coincides with similar activities held across the nation by over 100,000 members of Women's American ORT in 750 chapters.

The phonathon will emphasize the vital role of ORT in uplifting the lives of individuals and strengthening the economics of free nations.

Volunteers from the entire area will place calls to encourage membership in the organization. The area chapters include Twin Acres, Far Acres, Countryside, Woodfield, River Trails, Kingswood, Cypress and Fairway.

ORT, which began in Russia 92 years ago, has established a worldwide system of vocational schools designed to help build individuals by teaching them modern skills.

Benefactors' Dinner, Style Show Mar. 10

Mrs. D. Berger of 509 N. Forest, Mount Prospect, is among the models for Bensenville Benefactors' fifth annual dinner and fashion show. "Soaring Styles" is the title of the show which takes place Friday, March 10, at O'Hareport Hotel in Northlake.

Ensembles will come from Gilmores of Oak Park, with Maggie Daly, syndicated columnist whose feature appears in the Chicago Today, as commentator.

Proceeds go to the children's division of Bensenville Home Society which administers foster care placement, adoptions, counseling for unmarried parents, foster family care and day care consultation.

Fashion-Lunch At Villa Olivia

Birth Notes

A Baby Brother For His Birthday

There are now two little boys celebrating a Feb. 8 birthday in the Gordon L. Johnson home, 17 Charles Court, Buffalo Grove. On 4-year-old Michael's birthday this year, he received an unusual gift—a real, live baby brother, Matthew Daryl is his name, and he weighed 5 pounds 9 ounces at birth in Lutheran General Hospital. The two boys have a sister, too, 13-month-old Michelle.

They are all grandchildren of Mr. and Mrs. Ranse Johnson of Chicago and the Robert Heilmeyers of Decatur, Ill.

LUTHERAN GENERAL
Thomas Gregory Wagner Jr. is the new grandchild for the Joseph John Hanleys, 1691 Webster, Des Plaines, and the Corvin Wagners, 1743 Farwell, Des Plaines. Son of the Thomas G. Wagners of Rolling Meadows, the baby was born Feb. 3 weighing 7 pounds 6 1/4 ounces. Cindy, 2, is the baby's sister.

Eric Adam Hokanson is the first child for Mr. and Mrs. Richard G. Hokanson, 628 Sycamore Road, Buffalo Grove. Eric arrived Feb. 8 and weighed 7 pounds 3 1/2 ounces. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Carl Guthrie and Mr. and Mrs. George Hokanson, all of Chicago.

James Patrick Maloney joins a 21-month-old sister Michelle in the Michael J. Maloney household at 201 Third St., Wheeling. James was born Feb. 9 and weighed 8 pounds 10 ounces. His grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Frank Maloney of Farmington, Mich., and Mr. and Mrs. George Rogge of Detroit, Mich.

Chad Uland Houke is the first child for Mr. and Mrs. David E. Houke, 2301 Algonquin Pkwy., Rolling Meadows. He weighed 7 pounds 3 1/2 ounces upon arrival Feb. 15. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Dobbins of Clarkburg, W. Va., and Mr. and Mrs. Manual Issac of Boynton Beach, Fla.

Eric John White is the new arrival at 480 N. Third, Des Plaines. He is the second child of Mr. and Mrs. Steven White. Eric was born Feb. 8 weighing 7 pounds 11 1/2 ounces and joins 4-year-old Shannon. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. John M. White of Northbrook and Mrs. Lisa L. Schmidt of Denver, Colo.

Katherine Theresa Holt is the first child of Mr. and Mrs. Paul K. Holt, 550 S. Fourth Ave., Des Plaines. The 7-pound 11-ounce baby girl was born Feb. 10. Grandparents include the Anton Bittels of Des Plaines and the Christian P. Holts of Florida.

Stefan Denega Jr. was the best Valentine his mom or dad, Mr. and Mrs. Stefan Denega Sr., have ever received. Stefan was born Feb. 14 weighing 7 pounds 13 ounces. The Denegas brought their first-born home to 1764 Oakton Blvd., Des Plaines. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. R. Makos of Des Plaines and Mr. and Mrs. F. Denega of Chicago.

Marc Alan Hietpas is the second child of Mr. and Mrs. Alan J. Hietpas, 8094 Jody Lane, Des Plaines. The Feb. 15 arrival weighed 8 pounds 5 ounces at birth.

HOLY FAMILY
Michael Roy McMahon is the first child of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Eston McMahon, 9588 Terrace Place, Des Plaines. Nine-pound 2-ounce Michael arrived Feb. 7. Mr. and Mrs. Peter Walton of Chicago and Mr. and Mrs. Roy E. McMahon of Potomac, Ill., are grandparents.

Laura Jane Sell was born Feb. 12 to Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth C. Sell of Hanover Park. Laura, who weighed 6 pounds 14 ounces, is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Sell of Des Plaines and the William Schmankes of Mount Prospect.

NORTHWEST COMMUNITY
Dana Lynn Whitcomb, daughter of Spec. 4 and Mrs. Clyde Whitcomb, 3 E. Berkshire Lane, Mount Prospect, was born Feb. 20 weighing 7 pounds 2 ounces. Bradley, 18 months, is the brother of the baby, whose daddy is serving in Saigon, Viet Nam. Grandparents of the children are the Harvey Cleavens, Mount Prospect, and the junior Walter Whitcombs of Simsbury, Conn., former Mount Prospect residents. Great-grandparents, also from Mount Prospect, are the Willard Links and the senior Walter Whitcombs.

Michael Allen Wiedenbeck was a Feb. 19 arrival for Mr. and Mrs. Bill Wiedenbeck of Hanover Park. The 7-pound 6-ounce baby is a grandson for the H. Wiedenbecks, Hoffman Estates, and the F. Stencels, Hanover Park. Michael is the first child for his parents.

Eric Jason Witteck joins a 4-year-old sister Yvette Raye in the Raymond C. Witteck home in Arlington Heights. Born Feb. 24 the baby weighed 8 pounds 4 ounces. Mr. and Mrs. Howard Witteck, Arlington Heights, are the grandparents of Eric.

Julie Allison Steinberg was a Feb. 23 arrival for Mr. and Mrs. William A. Steinberg, 2717 Brighton Place, Arlington Heights. The 8-pound 12-ounce baby is the daughter of Beth Amber, 4, and Chad Jonathan, 1. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Efron, Hammond, Ind., and Mr. and Mrs. Erv Roberts, Atlanta, Ga., are the grandparents of the three children.

Douglas Craig Hanshaw, second child for Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. Hanshaw, 4702 Arbor Drive, Rolling Meadows, was born Feb. 8 weighing 7 pounds 5 1/2 ounces. Angela Lynn, 18 months, is the sister of the baby. The Edward M. Windles, Palatine, and the Walter H. Hanshaws, Houston, Texas, are the grandparents. Mrs. Delia Windle, Arlington Heights, is great-grandmother of the children.

OTHER HOSPITALS
Judith Arlene Friedler arrived Feb. 13 in Highland Park Hospital for Mr. and Mrs. John E. Friedler, 1130 W. Glenn Trail, Elk Grove Village. She has a sister, Laura Jean, who is 18 months old. The little girls' grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Warren L. Warchus who are stationed in Frankfurt, Germany, and the Joseph J. Friedlers of Highland Park.

U Of I Pair Are February Newlyweds

Cheryl Anne Dombrowski of Arlington Heights met Stephen Martin Szabados of Bloomington while both were students at the University of Illinois, Urbana, and on Feb. 5 they were married in St. Edna's Church, Arlington Heights.

Cheryl also studied at Southern Illinois University in Carbondale where she majored in radio and television. Stephen received his B.S. degree in industrial engineering from the U of I in 1970. He was affiliated with Phi Kappa Sigma Fraternity. Stephen is employed by E. I. Du Pont de Nemours, Waynesboro, Va., where he and Cheryl are also making their home.

An ivory, green, yellow and white color scheme was used for the candlelight service at 6:15 p.m. Cheryl's attendants were in ivory crepe gowns with emerald green velvet vests, and they carried white daisies, yellow poms, yellow tulips and Snow Drift.

Patricia Dyszel, Chicago, was maid of honor, and Cynthia Ewanic, a cousin from Bellwood, and Mary Ann Egan, Chicago, were bridesmaids. Cynthia and Mary Ann had yellow roses added to their bouquets.

CHERYL'S VICTORIAN gown with train was of sata peau trimmed in Venice lace. Her lace headpiece and veil were made by her mother, and she carried a large nosegay of yellow mums and poms, white daisies with a touch of blue, heather and baby's breath.

Lisa Schamns, Arlington Heights, 7, and the groom's niece, Brenda VanHook, Bloomington, 7, were flower girls. They were also in long ivory crepe gowns trimmed with emerald green velvet ribbon sashes, and they carried baskets of yellow mums, white daisies and baby's breath. Five-year-old John VanHook, Bloomington, nephew of the groom, was ring bearer.

Ray Podjasek, Oak Park, was best man to the groom, and Scott Striblein, Mount Prospect, and the bride's brother, Leonard Dombrowski, Arlington Heights, were ushers.

Cheryl is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs.

Leonard Dombrowski, 1019 E. Waverly Drive, Arlington Heights. Mr. and Mrs. Martin Szabados, Bloomington, are the parents of Stephen. Following the double ring service the Dombrowskis hosted 200 guests at a reception in the Starlight Inn, Schiller Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen M. Szabados

Cheryl and Stephen honeymooned in the Bahamas.

Barbara Britton Refreshing In Pheasant Run 'Forty Carats'

by PAT ADAM

You tell folks you're 36. You will admit to 38. But you are really 40. How would you react if a rich, intelligent, handsome young man of 22 professed to be in love with you?

You'd be flattered . . . touched . . . even honored, right? And that's exactly how Ann Stanley reacts in "Forty Carats." The situation is impossible, even scandalous. She can't let it continue.

But rich, intelligent, handsome young Peter Latham is also persistent, and his pursuit of the still attractive Mrs. Stanley — she's twice divorced and the mother of a 17-year-old daughter — makes for a highly entertaining evening at Pheasant Run Playhouse where Barbara Britton and Robert Dannenberg are now playing the principals in this offbeat romance.

The love affair starts when Ann's car breaks down while she's vacationing in Greece, and Peter comes to her rescue. They spend a romantic evening together, and then, feeling guilty about her "cradle robbing," Ann takes off without a goodbye.

THEIR JUNE-SEPTEMBER romance resumes when Peter calls at Ann's New York apartment for her daughter Trina, played by Stephanie Diller, daughter of Phyllis Diller.

Things are further complicated by Trina's falling in love with 45-year-old Eddy Edwards, played by John Dutra, a rental client of her mother. Ann is in no position to protest very loudly considering she's smitten with young Peter.

Add one ex-husband and stepfather, Billy Boylan, actor, a role played by Warde Donovan (Stephanie's real life stepfather as well), and you have a near triangle. Ann doesn't love Billy any more, but she needs him in moments of crisis. Billy doesn't love her either, though he finds her still attractive — partly because she lends him money — and he experiences some jealousy. Peter frankly admits he's jealous of Billy.

Well, the situation may seem a bit implausible, but it makes a good play. There are loads of funny lines, particularly those of Ann's scheming mother, Maud Hayes, played by Barbara Stanton, and by Ann's business associate, Mrs. Margolin, played by Roma.

THIS PRODUCTION is well cast for the most part. It moves smoothly in spite of numerous set changes in the first half of the play. But watching the stage crew move props around in the dim lighting has its own reward, and nobody seems to mind.

Barbara Britton carries off the role of the mature Ann in love with a much younger man with aplomb. Though she has been touring in "Forty Carats" for the past year, she brings freshness to her interpretation. And her agonizing over what people will think and whether she is right for Peter is most convincing. You admire Ann's spunk when she dresses in fringed vest and headband and goes riding with Peter on his motorbike . . . and to a discotheque.

Robert Dannenberg also plays a familiar role. He's been touring in national and stock companies with Miss Britton but his enthusiasm seems undimmed. And most surely he has been endearing himself to hundreds of over-30 women.

AS BILLY BOYLAN Warde Donovan strides about stage a lot, but that could be considered integral to his role as an actor — some actors seem never to be off stage. He does create sympathy for the man who suddenly has doubts about his profession of 20 years.

Barbara Stanton, another from Miss Britton's touring company, is superb as the granny who wears her granddaughter's clothes and would love to have a rich young man in the family.

John Dutra was in the Blackstone Theatre production of "Forty Carats." He comes on a little too strong as the gregarious Eddy Edwards. The program notes mention his being a sportscaster as well as actor. Maybe that accounts for his effusiveness. I had the feeling he should be calling the races at Arlington Park.

Stephanie Diller makes an impressive stage debut in her role as Trina, a precocious teen-ager. As the daughter of an independent and successful woman, she seems to fit the role quite naturally. Her only weak spot is in Trina's confrontation with her mother when she announces her determination to marry Eddy.

WHILE ROMA'S role as Ann's associate is a lesser one, she makes the most of the good lines she has.

Helen Merrier appears as Mrs. Adams, another of Ann's clients. Jean David is good as Peter's mother, but Robert Morgan is not so believable as his father, who was supposed to have ruthlessly nudged out his rich father-in-law as top dog in the family business.

Stan Catlett makes a brief appearance as Pat, Mrs. Latham's golf protegee.

Next On The Agenda

MIAMI CONFEDERACY

Pewter is the topic of discussion tonight for Miami Confederacy Chapter of Quarters. James Williams will be guest speaker. There has been a change in location for the 8 p.m. program. Mrs. Rodney Neumann, 421 S. Prindle, Arlington Heights, will be hostess.

BETA SIGMA PHI

Art is the cultural program for tonight's meeting of Lambda Delta Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi. Mrs. Thomas Longwell of Buffalo Grove will present the subject for this model meeting, which begins at 8 in the home of Mrs. Kenton Jens of Arlington Heights. Mrs. Dave Dumm, Arlington Heights, is co-hostess.

ELK GROVE NEWCOMERS

A Green Elephant Exchange highlights the program for tonight's meeting of Elk Grove Newcomers Club. Since this is the month of shamrocks and leprechauns, the women will be playing a game with the green elephants as prizes. The prizes are in reality white elephants wrapped in green paper.

The party takes place at Salt Creek Country Club. Mrs. William Kapela is chairman.

ST. JOSEPH THE WORKER

The Catholic Women's Club of St. Joseph the Worker parish will meet Thursday in Nazareth Hall, 171 W. Dundee Road, Wheeling, at 8:30 p.m. In keeping with the spirit of Lent, a film titled "Until I Die," will be shown, followed by a talk by the pastor and spiritual director, the Rev. George Mulcahey. Miss Louise Stinson will host the social hour.

Mrs. Edward D'Argo, spiritual committee chairman, reminds all women of the parish of other Lenten activities sponsored by the club. They include an afternoon of recollection conducted by the Rev. John Powell, S.J., this Sunday at 1 and a housewives' Mass each Monday morning at 9:30 during Lent, followed by coffee and discussion with free babysitting available.

PHI MU

Members of Northwest Suburban Alumnae Chapter of Phi Mu will observe Founders Day Thursday with a dessert-coffee at Mrs. Donald Spruill's home, 919 Cardiff Court, Schaumburg. Mrs. R. O. Hauschild, Arlington Heights, is co-hostess for the 8 p.m. meeting.

Honored guests will be three women who receive the Golden Shield Award for 50 years of Phi Mu membership. They are Mrs. William Mair, Palatine; Mrs. Murray Smith, Des Plaines; and Mrs. Martin Wise, Chicago.

TWIN ACRES ORT

Twin Acres Chapter of Women's American ORT will hear a talk on home decorating Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at Willow Grove School, Buffalo Grove.

Interior designer Ned Schechter will give tips on decorating and answer questions from the audience at the end of the program.

ALPHA CHI OMEGA

Northwest Suburban Alumnae Club of Alpha Chi Omega will take a trip to the Easter Seal Center in Elgin next Monday at 1 p.m. Since the center is Alpha Chi's main philanthropic project, all alumnae are urged to go along. Mrs. Robert LeFevre, 359-4458, has details.

The group's next bridge party is March 13 at 1 p.m. in Mrs. Becky Booth's home, 546 S. Cedar, Palatine.

SCHAUMBURG WOMAN'S CLUB

The next meeting for Schaumburg Woman's Club is Monday at 8 p.m. in the Great Hall, Illinois Bell Telephone Co. will show a film, "When Trouble Comes Calling." The Illinois-General Federation committee will also have a bake and boutique sale of items made by club members.

MT. PROSPECT WOMEN

There are two meetings on next week's agenda for Mount Prospect Women's Club. The art department meets Monday at 9:30 a.m. in the Fountain Room of the local community center, and the general March meeting is Tuesday at 1 p.m., also at the center.

A program from American Airlines will be featured at the general meeting. Mrs. Richard Arens of Hinsdale will give "plane and fancy" tips on travel, demonstrating how to pack for a two-week trip. She is president of the Chicago Chapter of Kiwis, a group of former stewardesses with American.

Mrs. K. C. Silgen urges all members of the club to attend this meeting, promising a pleasant surprise at the conclusion.

TWA CLIPPED WINGS

La Margarita Restaurant in Morton Grove is the setting for next Tuesday's luncheon meeting of TWA Clipped Wings, Chicago Chapter. Mrs. Russell Gould, whose child has been helped by the Human Growth Foundation, will speak informally on the subject. Human Growth, Inc., deals with dwarfism and other growth problems in children.

Luncheon reservations are due by noon Monday with Mrs. Jerome Ruther, 446-6911. All former Trans World Airlines stewardesses are welcome.

ZETA TAU ALPHA

Officer Landers of the juvenile division of Elk Grove Village Police Department will be guest speaker for next Tuesday's meeting of Northwest Suburban Alumnae of Zeta Tau Alpha. The meeting begins at 7:45 p.m. in the home of Mrs. Hans Krick, 611 Pinewood Drive, Elk Grove Village.

There's Music At Antique Show

An added attraction to the Fourth Annual Antique Show of Palatine Junior Woman's Club, which opens tonight at Lancer's, Meacham and Algonquin Roads, will be the appearance of The Chord Chums, a barber shop quartet. The group will serenade antiquers while they browse and shop.

The show opens at 7 p.m., remaining open until 10. It opens again at 11 a.m. Thursday, closing at 10 p.m. Friday hours are 11 a.m. to 5 p.m., according to Mrs. David Mojonier Jr., chairman.

Proceeds of the show, which features 29 dealers, will go toward club philanthropies.

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

Every once in a while I've mentioned shallots, the delicate member of the onion family. Many food stores don't carry them and those who have tried to buy them grow frustrated over the effort. Happily, our married daughter just presented me with a lovely supply — and it offers the opportunity to give one of my own prized recipes (call it Chicken Ritz, if you wish). One of the nicest things about it is that it's a party dish almost anyone can afford.

I buy chicken breasts and legs and thighs and skin them, then coat them lightly with seasoned flour and fry them to a golden brown in corn oil. The pieces then go into a roasting pan after which you put into the frying pan about a cup of water and scrape up the browned particles. Then add 2 tablespoons chicken concentrate powder, 2 flowing tablespoons sour cream (this very carefully so you don't get any curdling) and 1/4 cup white wine. This mixture is poured over the chicken and then place about 4 or 5 sliced medium-size shallots on top. This is baked for about an hour at 300 degrees and basted occasionally. Add a little water if the sauce seems to evaporate while baking.

Dear Dorothy: I notice that all our vitamins are in dark-color bottles. Do they also have to be kept in a dark place? — Marian T.

The pharmacist says it is important to keep these bottles out of the sun as the vitamins could lose their strength. He says keeping the dark-color bottles away from the light is double protection.

Dear Dorothy: We live in a mobile home with wood paneling. It needs frequent cleaning. We have found that 2 tablespoons of kerosene in a gallon of warm water is the perfect cleaner. Just wash, then dry with a soft towel. The walls retain their shine and do not dry out. — Mrs. Richard L. Vosper.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes hints and questions. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped self-addressed envelope. Write to Mrs. Ritz in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

No Criminal Charges Filed

Suspended Elgin Hospital Doctor (?) Faces Discharge

Ricardo Munoz-Velez, figure of an investigation concerning 200 patients deaths at Elgin State Hospital, will be automatically discharged after 30 days if he fails to argue his suspension issued yesterday.

Although no criminal charges have been placed against Munoz, he has been implicated for practicing medicine without adequate credentials and for poor judgment in the treatment of up to 200 patients who died at the state institution.

Kane County States Atty. William Ketchum, meantime, is working with hospital authorities on an investigation of Munoz's credentials.

Ketchum also awaits a report he requested from Dr. George Leroy, of the University of Chicago, who has reviewed the 200 deaths.

Leroy yesterday refused to discuss the report, and termed news items about the exhumation of bodies a "fabrication."

Dr. Douglas Norcross, administrative assistant at Elgin State Hospital, took strong exception to the 200 deaths figure released by Ketchum.

"WE DON'T DENY the seriousness of the matter and personally started investigation of Dr. Munoz in November when staff reports of bizarre or questionable treatment were studied," said Norcross.

"However, Dr. Munoz took care of 25 cases, not 200, and it is those 25 cases that our staff and civil service board will be investigating," said Norcross.

Ketchum said late Tuesday his investigation concerns 200 patient deaths at the hospital in the period between April 1969 and August 1971.

"Dr. Munoz' name was in every one of those files. One way or the other he was concerned with their cases," said Ketchum.

The states attorney said charges against Munoz, could include incompetent treatment of patients, gross negligence and complete disregard for the welfare of patients.

State Mental Health Board representative Norman Hufford said "frankly we don't know where the department is on this thing. We knew in November that the Kane County states attorney was investigating Dr. Munoz but were advised by him to stay out of it, and did so."

HUFFORD SAID the department is attempting to update itself on the case and knows only that the doctor was assigned to a desk job in November and suspended Tuesday.

Dr. Norcross said Elgin State is working with the state's attorney to determine if possible criminal charges are in order.

"The next step is Dr. Munoz. He has 30 days to answer the suspension charge and if he does not he's fired," said Norcross adding, "further discussion of the case must wait until Dr. Leroy's report is reviewed."

The state attorney's investigation centers on doubts about Munoz' claims to have studied at the University of Havana.

It was learned that Dr. Munoz worked as a laboratory technician at St. Elizabeth's Hospital from Feb. 25, 1962 to June 10, 1966 when he resigned.

Munoz reportedly has flunked the Illinois Medical licensing test four times and the foreign medical equivalency test seven times.

However, he was allowed to practice medicine in state institutions under a section in the Illinois Medical Practices Act that allows practice permits to unlicensed physicians seeking employment in state hospitals.

Opportunity Center Asks Village Funds

A Hoffman Estates father of 10 children, unable to work for several months after he fractured one leg, heads one of 33 families in the village receiving assistance in the second half of 1971 from the Northwest Opportunity Center, Rolling Meadows.

The man was $700 in arrears on a Veterans Administration mortgage when he went to the center for help in 1970, said Miss Angela Rojas, center social worker, at Monday's Hoffman Estates village board meeting. In 1971 the tenth child was born, and his financial difficulties increased, she said.

The center arranged for immediate payment of $400 on the mortgage, and provided emergency assistance with food, clothing and furnishings. Since then the center has continued to help the family, and offered it both legal and family planning counseling, she said.

Miss Rojas was accompanied by Dr. Jack Fuller and Mrs. Rena Trevor, both members of the center board of directors. They asked the village board to contribute $21.67 for each of the 33 families, or a total of $715.11 in public funds, to help the center continue operating in 1972-73. The board deferred action on the request for one week.

MISS ROJAS also described the situation.

Board To Probe Fate Of Beefy Drawing Card Here

by NANCY COWGER

While Chicagoans woo Chinese Pandas for Brookfield Zoo, Hoffman Estates officials turned their efforts to eliminating less exotic and unwanted animals, cows, cats and dogs, from village streets.

One cow in particular, not a live one, was the focus of village board interest Monday night.

"What's a cow doing on Roselle Road?" asked Trustee Diane Jensen.

A fellow trustee pointed out the extra-large replica was a steer, not a cow, and suggested the animal in front of the Ground Round Restaurant might have wandered over from the nearby Cal's Roast Beef stand in Schaumburg.

The steer is about five feet from Roselle Road, in front of the restaurant between Higgins and Golf roads.

"IS THAT legal? Do we allow this kind of thing?" asked Mrs. Jensen.

The board delegated Village Mgr. George Longmeyer to investigate the beefy drawing card, in hopes of having it removed.

While the steer received a frosty reception, the dogs and cats are not to be turned out into the cold.

Rogers Ponders Board Race

James Rogers of 905 Williams Ct., Schaumburg, is contemplating running for one of two board seats up for election on the Schaumburg Township School Dist. 54 Board of Education.

Rogers, a sales manager for Union Carbide and his family have lived in the village for two years.

Mrs. Rogers said her husband picked up a petition Tuesday but has not solicited signatures. "He's still thinking about it but has said it's time he got involved in school news since our child starts kindergarten next year," she said.

Other candidates who have filed are incumbent board president Gordon Thoren; Dr. Bernard Powell and Maurice (Jerry) Julius.

Bachelor Now MORE Confirmed

Baby-Sitter Vs. Lion-Tamer

by BOB ANDERSEN

It just never occurred to me that tending to folks one-third your size, one-sixth your age, and, at least theoretically, a fraction of your mental capacity could be such a formidable task.

The conclusion, however, was forced as I, a semi-confirmed bachelor of 29, sat among some 75 attentive (and occasionally giggling) adolescent school girls and listened to an expert compare baby sitting to performing in a circus.

"You're going to have to be a little bit of everything," she cautioned.

AND SHE WASN'T kidding. Any baby-sitter worth her (or his) salt must be a combination "lion-tamer, tight-rope walker, ballerina, ring master and clown," Mrs. Marion Dodgion claimed.

Mrs. Dodgion, director of the Early Learners Nursery School in Hoffman Estates, was a guest lecturer at the third session of "You're In Charge," a baby-sitter clinic sponsored by the Hoffman Estates Jaycee Wives.

The clinic, featuring talks by local nurses and school, police and fire department officials, is being held at the Vogelei Recreation Barn in Hoffman Estates. The clinic, costing $1, continues through March 29.

My assignment was to attend the session on preschoolers and return with a uniquely bachelor's view of riding herd (oops, I mean baby-sitting) on these lethal, ever-energetic tots aged three through five.

IN THE MAIN, Mrs. Dodgion dealt with three basic baby-sitting realities which, in order, were:

—How to convince your temporary wards you are essentially a good Joe—or Jane—and deserving of their affection and respect. "Kids can spot a phony right away," Mrs. Dodgion said.

—How to occupy and entertain the little ones now that they love, respect and trust you.

—How to "cajole" the children to bed.

The key to winning the kids over (the first step) is demonstrating sincere interest in them, Mrs. Dodgion told the girls and me. This, I found out, requires the combined talents of the tightrope walker, ballerina and clown.

ONE MUST, according to Mrs. Dodgion, mix a little vinegar with the sugar in this popularity quest. "Kids also need boundaries and rules," she explained. "They will test you." A bit of the lion-tamer or the ring-master, perhaps.

A vital part of entertaining and occupying the children is understanding them. Mrs. Dodgion said three-year-olds

The White House announced that Senate leaders Mike Mansfield and Hugh Scott would visit China at the invitation of Premier Chou En-lai. No date has been set but "it probably will be worked out that they will go together," said White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler.

The Pentagon said it stamps the number SPN384 on the records of servicemen discharged for using drugs, permanently identifying them to their prospective employers and supervisors as drug users. Sen. Harold Hughes, D-Iowa, promised legislation to stop the practice.

A mysterious letter released at the trial of the Rev. Philip Berrigan and six others indicates the government's star witness was being paid as an FBI in-former while an inmate at the Lewisburg, Pa., federal prison.

The House voted to authorize government noise standards for new products ranging from motorcycles to rock music amplifiers. The standards would make America a quieter place to live, sponsors said.

The Senate approved a moderate antibusing compromise after three presidential contenders returned to help kill a proposal which would have prohibited federal judges from ordering busing to integrate schools. The milder restriction, mainly supported by Northern moderates and liberals, would deny federal funds for racial-balance busing unless local school officials freely ask for the money without coercion from Washington.

The World

Gunman shot to death a part-time soldier in the hallway of his home and wounded his 11-year-old daughter, the British Army said. A British soldier and a Northern Ireland policeman were wounded seriously in shooting attacks in Londerry and Newry.

The National Assembly in Taipei issued a statement declaring "null and void any compromise or understanding" President Nixon may have reached with Peking leaders regarding Nationalist China during his weekend visit.

The State

Gov. Richard Ogilvie said education continues to have his highest priority and recommended an increase of 190 million in the budget for elementary and secondary education. In his annual budget message, he estimated $2.073 billion would be spent in fiscal 1973 on all education.

The War

Communist guerrillas ambushed a major South Vietnamese ammunition convoy, wounding 40 men. In two other battles, government troops reported killing 38 guerrillas in fighting south of Da Nang. In the air war, U.S. B52 bombers hammered the Communist-held A Shau Valley and coastal plains north of the old imperial capitol of Hue and struck in the Central Highlands.

Comments By Atcher Irk Hoffman Estates Officials

Hoffman Estates officials expressed outrage Monday over comments attributed in a recent newspaper article to Schaumburg Mayor Robert O. Atcher. However, Atcher said Tuesday the remarks that aroused their ire were not made by him.

"I'm not disturbed by statements of opinion, but I am concerned by misstatements of fact by the mayor of Schaumburg which are untrue," said Hoffman Estates Mayor Frederick Downey.

Downey added he's "just had it up to here with the village of Schaumburg; with their derogatory remarks and personal insults." Downey said Hoffman Estates has "always invited Schaumburg" officials to community functions, but "I've never been invited to things there," adding "I wouldn't go now."

Downey and village trustees cited statements quoted in a recent Sunday supplement magazine feature. Some of the remarks were attributed to Atcher, although some were quoted as statements by other people, and in some cases, the speaker was not identified.

Atcher, however, disclaimed having made any disparaging comments concerning Hoffman Estates.

"When contacted, I certainly did not make derogatory comments against Hoffman Estates. I am aware there is a master plan there, and certainly did not use the term 'annex' about a discussed merger. Merger is the only term I would use," said Atcher.

"The story has other persons quoted besides me, some very disparaging; not about Hoffman Estates, but about Schaumburg," he added.

Trustee Virginia Hayter, reacting to a statement that Hoffman Estates "is not planned," replied "maybe 10 or 15 years ago, or even five years ago, we were not doing a great planning job." But for at least the past four years, she said, the village plan commission has worked hard and done a commendable job.

Trustee William Cowan suggested the newspaper was not to be blamed for the story, because "when you're interviewing a Diety you don't question his half-truths."

Downey especially questioned the article's claims Schaumburg is the larger of the two villages, and surrounds Hoffman Estates. Neither one is true, he said.

Commenting on Schaumburg's planning, Downey asked "If Schaumburg is such a well-planned community, why did the village of Hoffman Estates have to for so many years provide water to the Churchill subdivision?"

"I don't know of any example of worse planning than the strip in the Village of Schaumburg along Higgins Road," added Downey. The area is heavy with short-order restaurants, which the residents of Schaumburg do not support, he said.

"It's very nice of the Village of Schaumburg to put in a bank for the Village of Hoffman Estates. Its too bad the wealthy people of Schaumburg can't support a bank," said Downey, referring to Schaumburg State Bank, 320 W. Higgins Rd., which Downey claimed is supported by Hoffman Estates residents.

THE DEVIL'S HAND is unseen but plays a role in the painting of sets for James B. Conant High School's variety show, "The Devil Made Me Do It," this weekend. Tom Goodrich and Jo Smiley paint a set for one act. Performances will be at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

Tickets, available at the door, are $1.25 for adults and 75 cents for students. The show will be presented in the school's cafeteria, Plum Grove Road and Cougar Trail in Hoffman Estates.

Herald Wins Top Prize

The highest honor in newspaper design and typography has been awarded to Paddock Publications.

The chain's Arlington Heights Herald was among six first-place winners in the 33rd annual competition of the Inland Daily Press Association, a competition open to newspapers throughout North America.

The Herald was cited as best in its class (letterpress newspapers with circulation between 10,000 and 25,000) during the annual Inland meeting in Houston yesterday. The competition is jointly sponsored by Northwestern University's Medill School of Journalism.

Other first place winners were the Minneapolis Tribune, the Lafayette (Ind.) Journal and Courier, the Wheaton (Ill.) Journal, the Marion (Ind.) Chronicle Tribune, and the Portage (Wis.) Register.

The Inland awards for years have been regarded as the most prestigious in newspaper design and typography — assessing newspaper for their general attractiveness, readability and imagination of makeup. There were 288 entrants in this year's competition.

At the Herald, daily responsibility for design and makeup is under Copy Desk Chief Jim Harvey and copy editors Russ Bath, Tom Jachimiec, Karen Thompson and Ed Workman.

Summer School Programs To Cost Dist. $122,000

The 1972 Summer School Program for an anticipated 2,400 students in Schaumburg Township School Dist. 54 should cost $122,000 but pay for itself through student fees and state aid, school officials report.

A report from John Jones and Douglas Williams, principals in the district who direct the June 19 to July 21 session, has been accepted by the board of education and the summer school plan approved.

Eight schools, Churchill, Dooley, Fox, Hale, Lakeview, MacArthur, Addams Junior High and Keller Junior High will be used, with Hoffman School utilized as a speech center.

Registration day for summer school will be May 3 at each of the 21 schools in the district with registration closing Jun 9.

Jones and Williams' financial projection shows 175 teachers paid at $6.50 an hour will cost the program $95,550; clerical help at $2.25 an hour, $5,670; and supplies and equipment, $20,780.

THE $5 MATERIALS fee charged students will bring in $12,000 in revenue and the state aid contribute $110,000 to make the program self paying.

School hours would be 9 a.m. to noon with teachers required to stay in the schools from 8:45 a.m. to 12:15.

This year's summer program includes a psychologist and guidance counselor to work with children in the Summer Diagnostic Special Education Program and in other situations where needed.

The Schaumburg Transportation Company has been hired to transport students, an option available for the fee of $10. May 26 is the last day to sign up for

Book Drive Slated For County Hospital

A children's book drive, jointly sponsored by the Hoffman Estates Woman's Club, Camp Fire Girls and Blue Bird Troops, is under way in Hoffman Estates.

The drive is aimed at collecting books for various hospital children's wards. Cook County Hospital will be among the recipients of the collection.

Besides a village-wide door-to-door canvass, collection points have been established at Guido's Food Store, Higgins and Roselle roads and the Jewel Food Store in the Hoffman Plaza shopping center.

More information about the book drive can be obtained by calling Claudette Gaston at 882-5273.

The tentative program for grades one to four includes, Art, Basic Communication Skills, Bilingual Language Development, Class Piano second to fourth, Creative Writing and Enriched Reading, Dramatics and Mathematics.

Other classes are, nature and field studies and physical skill development for third and fourth graders, remedial reading, speech, and the summer diagnostic special education program.

Grades five through eighth will hold class in the same subjects and in addition classes in advanced band, intermediate band, string orchestra, typing and wood crafts.

have short attention spans and tend to be more selfish than magnanimous. Four-year-olds think "everything is funny" and are finding out there are indeed other people in the world. Five-year-olds, having acquired a little sophistication by attending kindergarten, tend to be less selfish and more magnanimous than the three-year-olds.

Mrs. Dodgion's advice to us was to start becoming "scavengers." Everlastingly curious, preschoolers respond most quickly to new toys.

Thus, the child expert said, collect a variety of toys and keep them in a "Goody Bag." Moreover, she added, "don't put all your eggs in one basket."

"SURPRISE THE kids with a different toy every time you visit."

Little boys, Mrs. Dodgion claimed, are easier to entertain than little girls. The boys will often occupy themselves with toy trucks and cars and the like. Little girls are more demanding. For instance, they like to dress up which means one should keep a healthy assortment of "old fans, jewelry, etc." in the Goody Bag.

Also, she added, little girls love to "comb out" the long hair currently fashionable with young girls. This, I thought, shouldn't put the masculine gender at too much of a disadvantage given today's hair styles.

Okay. Now the tots love and respect you and you have succeeded in your role as ballerina and clown by keeping them entertained. It is time for the real test... bedtime.

Methodist Church Plans Mission Fest

An African missions festival will be held at Our Redeemer United Methodist Church in Schaumburg on March 12. The festival will feature a lecture by Mrs. John Heyer at the 10:45 a.m. worship service. She has worked in a Sierra Leone mission for the past three years.

A potluck supper with a display of African music and art objects presented by John and Julia Steward will be held in the evening from 5 until 7 p.m.

The church is located at Schaumburg and Springguth roads in Schaumburg.

Mrs. Dodgion informed us preschoolers usually "don't want to go to bed." Again she suggests mixtures of the ring-master, the lion-tamer and the clown.

First, she says, "simmer" them down. Then, after getting them in their pajamas and showing them the bathroom, tuck them under the covers.

Then what? Right... tell them a bedtime story. "Made-up stories" are the best, Mrs. Dodgion said.

The three and four-year-olds prefer picture books. Then, if your lucky, the kids, stirred by the pictures, will tell you the story, saving considerable mental anguish for the unimaginative.

WHAT HAPPENS IF, even after you have followed all the rules, the children refuse to sleep and instead fuss and act up?

Mrs. Dodgion did suggest alternative solutions. You can "tell them another story" or tell them their mother will be home soon or, perhaps, leave the hall light on. Some children are afraid of the dark.

Be aware, she said, they may still be testing you. Sometime firmness (the lion-tamer) is in order and other times humor (the clown) will suffice.

Baby-sitting is a responsibility, Mrs. Dodgion told the girls. It also can be an extremely beneficial and learning experience, she added, if approached with sincerity and understanding.

My conclusions? Well, I haven't started filling a "Goody Bag" and have never had a yea to be a circus performer. It requires a more versatile performer than I.

Two Girls Flee Abductor

Two teen-age girls from Buffalo Grove were abducted at knife point by a man who offered them a ride in his car in Wheeling Monday night.

The girls, one 14 and one 15 years old, told Wheeling Police the man threatened them with a knife when they tried to get out of his car near their homes.

The man drove the girls to a deadend street in Lincolnshire, where he told them to take off their clothes because he was going to rape them.

THE GIRLS ran to a nearby house for help but found no one home. At a second home the residents answered the door and allowed the girls to call police.

The two girls, who both live in the Cook County section of Buffalo Grove, had been going home from a drive-in restaurant in eastern Wheeling when they were picked up by the man.

The girls told police they had gotten a ride from the drive-in west on Dundee Road to near Jack London Junior High School.

They were walking down Dundee toward Buffalo Grove when the man stopped and offered them a ride, they told police.

THE MAN drove the girls down Dundee Road to Buffalo Grove Road and north on Buffalo Grove Road to near Lake-Cook Road.

When the girls asked to get out of the car there, the man put a knife up to one girl's head and ordered the girls onto the floor of the car.

He then drove them to the deadend street in Lincolnshire.

The girls told police the man said he was going to trade them to another man who had abducted the man's girl friend earlier in the evening. He also told them he could sell them for $5,000, the girls said.

Wheeling police were in contact with Indiana State Police about a possible suspect in the case yesterday.

A LINCOLNSHIRE man who saw the car parked on the deadend street had provided police with an Indiana license plate number.

The girls had told the police the man he was not from the Northwest suburban area.

Dedication Of Municipal Building Eyed

Plans are steadily progressing for the move of Hoffman Estates village offices from the old municipal building on Illinois Boulevard to the new structure going up along Higgins Road west of Golf Road.

Trustee Bruce Lind, chairman of the village board municipal building committee, reported Monday night his committee planned a tour of the new building last night. After the tour, the committee was to meet for about an hour to discuss plans for the dedication ceremony, he said.

A sub-committee is to meet tomorrow to determine a final recommendation for disposal of the old municipal hall, said Lind, urging the mayor and trustees to attend.

Several village organizations have expressed interest in taking over the old village building for their own use, and the committee was formed several months ago to review alternatives. It is possible the costs of renovating the structure to make it safe for use would be prohibitive, and the committee is to determine whether demolition is the best solution.

INSTEAD, THE committee could recommend putting the building in control of one organization, while retaining title and with the stipulation space be made available to other groups wishing to use offices or meeting rooms. The village board must make the final decision.

Action taken by the trustees' board Monday included approval to secure bids for construction of a pump house at the village well northeast of Hassell and Barrington roads.

Awarding a contract for seven new police patrol cars also was approved by the board, although Trustee Dyrle Rathman questioned the economy of buying new cars after only one year of use of existing vehicles. The contract went to Grand Spaulding Dodge, which submitted a low bid of $17,028.

Rathman, who eventually voted in favor of the contract, commented the village is allowed only $1,290 per car trade-in value, to be deducted from the per car cost of $3,354. It might be more economical to keep the cars another six months before the trade-in, he suggested. However, other trustees claimed the upkeep costs as mileage increases might outweigh the trade-in savings, and said they preferred newer, less worn cars for emergency vehicles.

The board deferred action on a request from Ronald Cigelnik for a license to operate a package goods liquor store, Gold Eagle Liquors, at the Eagle shopping center under construction at Golf and Higgins roads. Cigelnik, who operates a similar store at the Eagle center in Mt. Prospect, said he would not live in the village, and did not intend to operate the store himself. The village generally requires a security check on the operators of such stores before granting licenses.

In discussing a garbage bag test program to be held in the village in a few weeks, Trustee Edward Hennessy suggested the village secure a rate reduction for the participating homes during the test period. One benefit expected from use of garbage bags rather than cans is a time savings, he pointed out, and the savings could be passed on to village residents. George Longmeyer, village manager, is to negotiate for the reduction.

Cameo Residents Petition Board

Urge Saving Bus Service

More than 100 residents of Wheeling's Cameo condominiums have petitioned the village board to save Wheeling's bus service.

The petition, submitted by the condominium residents, urges the village to "do what is necessary" to prevent United Motor Coach Co. from discontinuing its Wheeling service.

The bus line is Wheeling's only mass transportation. The company wrote to the village last week asking for a subsidy to help pay for bus service to the village.

Most of the residents of the condominium are elderly and more than 30 of them do not have cars, the letter accompanying the petition indicated.

THE VILLAGE board referred the letter and petition to its finance committee to be studied along with the bus company's request.

Glenn Pilgrim, president of the association, explained in the letter the news of the financial plight of the bus company and the threat that Wheeling might lose its bus service "came as a great shock to many residents of the Cameo condominium."

The more than 30 cameo residents who don't have cars "must depend on the bus for their occasional trips to Chicago," Pilgrim pointed out.

"Besides, a good many that do have cars would use the bus for these occasional trips rather than drive a car to Chicago's Loop," Pilgrim said.

"THE AVERAGE of five riders per day from Wheeling as mentioned in the Herald article would not be the same five people every day that would be affected, but could be as many as 25 different riders in a week.

"A number of people moved to Wheeling because it was possible to get to Chicago on public transportation, and some say they will move if we lose this bus service," Pilgrim warned.

He told the board "It would not be only older people that would be affected because a survey will show that younger people, some going to their jobs, depend on the bus."

Village Trustee Albert Lang said Monday even though he would "hate to see our last vestige of public transportation go down the drain," he believes the village cannot legally donate $160 a month to a private concern like the bus company.

Lang noted public transportation in Wheeling is a selling point to homes or apartments in the community.

ROGER STRICKER, village director of public safety, had written a letter to the bus company explaining that "while" the village places high priority on public transportation, "the village has not planned for the bus subsidy in its budget.

Stricker also pointed out in the letter that the village has spent $1,300 to participate in a Northwest Municipal Conference study of public transportation needs and wants to wait for the results of the survey before deciding what to do about Wheeling's mass transportation problems.

"Saving this bus line in this town isn't going to help overall. We need a better planned route," Stricker said Monday night.

Wheeling's current bus service includes two morning trips from Wheeling to Chicago and two evening trips from the city back to the village.

The bus stops at the southwest corner of Dundee Road and Milwaukee Avenue in Wheeling.

Home Damaged By Fire

Heat and smoke from a fire caused extensive damage Saturday night to the home of Joseph Reboletti of 1206 Selwyn, Buffalo Grove.

Buffalo Grove Fire Chief Wayne Winter said that although the fire was confined to the basement area of the house, heat and smoke damage from the blaze made the house uninhabitable.

The family is now staying with neighbors, the fire chief said. Winter said no cause had been determined.

mined for the fire.

He said the flames were confined to a small area in the walls and floor near the foyer area of the home.

Buffalo Grove firemen were called to the house at 11:41 p.m. Saturday and took about half an hour to extinguish the fire, Winter said.

Firemen worked at the scene for three hours, cleaning up after the fire and making sure it was out, Winter said.

Palatine Rd. — 'Engineer Nightmare'

by DOUG RAY

A suburban policeman who patrols the winding Palatine Road expressway calls it "an engineer's nightmare." But the families of nine persons killed in auto accidents on that thoroughfare in less than a year will live with the nightmare for the rest of their lives.

A Florida man died at the congested Palatine and Rand Road intersection in June. Four months later, an Arlington Heights resident lost his life on the roadway near Rte. 53 followed by the death of a Rolling Meadows man at the same location in a separate accident.

One of the worst accidents in Northwest suburban history occurred on a rain-slick Palatine Road overpass at Rte. 83 in Prospect Heights in December. Five persons were killed.

The latest Palatine Road fatality was a 19-year-old youth last week whose car jumped the median strip into oncoming traffic at the Soo Line R.R. tracks in Wheeling.

Local officials, police officers, and the state highway department agree the east-west roadway is a problem. The seven-mile expanse from the Village of Palatine to the Tri-State Tollway is often flooded with vehicles, many of them exceeding the maximum speed limits.

The driver must cope with a complex of confusing lights and direction signs, periodic stops and fellow drivers attempting to merge into the fast-moving flow of cars.

WHO IS TO blame for the "hazardous" condition of the express route is uncertain. But motorists, municipal representatives and county and state highway officials all should accept a fair share of the road's present condition.

It all began in 1958 as a unique county highway department road construction plan to link the outlying Northwest suburbs to Chicago by "a junior expressway." Thus, Palatine Road, Cook County's first suburban expressway project.

Original plans showed few entrances and exits at Palatine Road, but soon after construction plans were unveiled, the concept changed.

Much of the land around the new roadway was purchased by speculators who turned the land into housing subdivisions, shopping centers and stores.

Each special interest group wanted it's special interest to be catered to.

Arlington Heights officials urged intersections be built. They said a road without intersections would cut off the northern sector of the village from further development.

Village officials got the intersections and later traffic control signals.

Stop signs were erected at Arlington Heights Road and frontage roads were spawned for eastern Palatine subdivisions.

THE ORIGINAL concept of a junior expressway was defeated and it became little more than a local route for many.

The Schoenbeck Road intersection was called "death corner" by parents of school children who attended a school there and parents threatened to block the roadway.

Wheeling Band Olympic Fund Reported At $18,361

The fund-raising committee for the Wheeling High School Band trip to the 1972 Olympic Games met Monday night. They announced funds now total $18,361.

This figure is well below what the "Munich 72" committee had hoped to have by now. Ideally they should be receiving $10,000 per week and last week they made just over $400.

The committee also announced that members have started sending letters to major business firms, banks and foundations in the Chicagoland area. They will try to have all the letters in the mail by the end of the week.

THE LETTERS ASK the business groups to answer one way or the other concerning their interest in the project. If they answer in support of the project the committee will send them further information.

Don Hoeck, chairman of "Munich 72" told his committee to emphasize to all potential contributors the necessity of a quick response to the letters. He said time is important in getting deposits made for the plane trip and the rooms abroad.

The next fund-raising event is planned for Sunday, March 12, at Kristof's Wheeling Manor. On that day, all the net proceeds made by the restaurant from 3 to 9 p.m. will be turned over to the band.

Reservations for the day may be made by contacting the restaurant at 537-3524.

Charged In Incident At Wheeling High

A 17-year-old Arlington Heights youth was charged with battery and unlawful use of weapons after an incident at Wheeling High School Friday evening.

Fernando A. Perez of 2328 Schoenbeck Rd., Arlington Heights, was arrested by Wheeling Police.

Perez allegedly threatened three youths with a switch-blade knife and kicked one of the youths. Perez is a student at the school.

The Pentagon said it stamps the number SPN384 on the records of servicemen discharged for using drugs, permanently identifying them to their prospective employers and supervisors as drug users. Sen. Harold Hughes, D-Iowa, promised legislation to stop the practice.

A mysterious letter released at the trial of the Rev. Philip Berrigan and six others indicates the government's star witness was being paid as an FBI in-former while an inmate at the Lewisburg, Pa., federal prison.

The House voted to authorize government noise standards for new products ranging from motorcycles to rock music amplifiers. The standards would make America a quieter place to live, sponsors said.

The Senate approved a moderate anti-busing compromise after three presidential contenders returned to help kill a proposal which would have prohibited federal judges from ordering busing to integrate schools. The milder restriction, mainly supported by Northern moderates and liberals, would deny federal funds for racial-balance busing unless local school officials freely ask for the money without coercion from Washington.

The World

Gunman shot to death a part-time soldier in the hallway of his home and wounded his 11-year-old daughter, the British Army said. A British soldier and a Northern Ireland policeman were wounded seriously in shooting attacks in Londerry and Newry.

One student was shot and killed and another injured in a shooting at Seal Residence on the Western Illinois University campus in Macomb. Identity of the dead student was withheld, pending notification of relatives.

The State

Gov. Richard Ogilvie said education continues to have his highest priority and recommended an increase of 190 million in the budget for elementary and secondary education. In his annual budget message, he estimated $2.073 billion would be spent in fiscal 1973 on all education.

The War

Communist guerrillas ambushed a major South Vietnamese ammunition convoy, wounding 40 men. In two other battles, government troops reported killing 38 guerrillas in fighting south of Da Nang. In the air war, U.S. B52 bombers hammered the Communist-held A Shau Valley and coastal plains north of the old imperial capital of Hue and struck in the Central Highlands.

Youth Services Bureau

Building Project Nears OK

The Wheeling Village Board questioned representatives of the Youth Services Bureau Monday before voting to bring the building project one step closer to final approval.

The board voted to have the village attorney prepare an ordinance granting a special use permit for the new bureau.

The permit is needed for the bureau's new headquarters at 516 N. Milwaukee Ave. Village zoning ordinances require a special use permit for public service operations run by non-profit organizations like the new youth services bureau.

Board members told Richard Wynn, a spokesman for the bureau, that before they would approve the ordinance they want a list of the board of directors and bureau employees.

WYNN TOLD THE trustees he would supply them with a partial list of the board of directors Tuesday. The bureau has no employees yet, he said.

Board members questioned Wynn on a variety of subjects before the board voted to have the attorney prepare the ordinance.

Trustee Edward Berger asked whether the bureau would have a written option to renew its lease on the building. Wynn said they would get one.

Property owner George Wilson answered trustees' questions by indicating that he was paying for the necessary repair work to bring the building up to village codes.

Trustee Michael Valenza asked whether the bureau had physically taken over the building yet.

WYNN REPLIED, "It's not available for occupancy," indicating the bureau needs legal permission from the village before it can move into the building.

Wynn noted however the bureau is in critical need of offices for the Omnihouse HOTLINE and that they hope to move HOTLINE into the building as soon as possible.

The bureau will open this spring as a youth center and headquarters for the TORCH Community Mental Health Clinic as well as the HOTLINE headquarters.

The Illinois Law Enforcement Commission has given local organizations $131,000 to help finance the beginning of the bureau, which will serve youngsters in Wheeling, Buffalo Grove, Prospect Heights and portions of Arlington Heights and Northbrook.

WYNN ALSO said yesterday a second attorney has volunteered his services to the bureau.

Norbert A. Dalieden of the Chicago law firm of McDermott, Will and Emery will help the bureau with its incorporation.

A resident of Arlington Heights, Dalieden will work with the other bureau attorney, Ray Niro, also a volunteer.

Suspended Doctor Faces Discharge

Ricardo Munoz-Velez, figure of an investigation concerning 200 patients deaths at Elgin State Hospital, will be automatically discharged after 30 days if he fails to argue his suspension issued yesterday.

Although no criminal charges have been placed against Munoz, he has been implicated for practicing medicine without adequate credentials and for poor judgment in the treatment of up to 200 patients who died at the state institution.

Kane County States Atty. William Ketchum, meantime, is working with hospital authorities on an investigation of Munoz's credentials.

Ketchum also awaits a report he requested from Dr. George Leroy, of the University of Chicago, who has reviewed the 200 deaths.

Leroy yesterday refused to discuss the report, and termed news items about the exhumation of bodies a "fabrication."

Dr. Douglas Norcross, administrative assistant at Elgin State Hospital, took strong exception to the 200 deaths figure released by Ketchum.

"WE DON'T DENY the seriousness of the matter and personally started investigation of Dr. Munoz in November when staff reports of bizarre or questionable treatment were studied," said Norcross.

"However, Dr. Munoz took care of 25 cases, not 200, and it is those 25 cases that our staff and civil service board will be investigating," said Norcross.

Ketchum said late Tuesday his investigation concerns 200 patient deaths at the hospital in the period between April 1969 and August 1971.

"Dr. Munoz' name was in every one of those files. One way or the other he was concerned with their cases," said Ketchum.

The states attorney said charges against Munoz, could include incompetent treatment of patients, gross negligence and complete disregard for the welfare of patients.

State Mental Health Board representative Norman Hufford said "frankly we don't know where the department is on this thing. We knew in November that the Kane County states attorney was investigating Dr. Munoz but were advised by him to stay out of it, and did so."

HUFFORD SAID the department is attempting to update itself on the case and knows only that the doctor was assigned to a desk job in November and suspended Tuesday.

Dr. Norcross said Elgin State is working with the state's attorney to determine if possible criminal charges are in order.

"The next step is Dr. Munoz. He has 30 days to answer the suspension charge and if he does not he's fired," said Norcross adding, "further discussion of the case must wait until Dr. Leroy's report is reviewed."

The state attorney's investigation centers on doubts about Munoz' claims to have studied at the University of Havana.

It was learned that Dr. Munoz worked as a laboratory technician at St. Elizabeth's Hospital from Feb. 25, 1962 to June 10, 1966 when he resigned.

Munoz reportedly has flunked the Illinois Medical licensing test four times and the foreign medical equivalency test seven times.

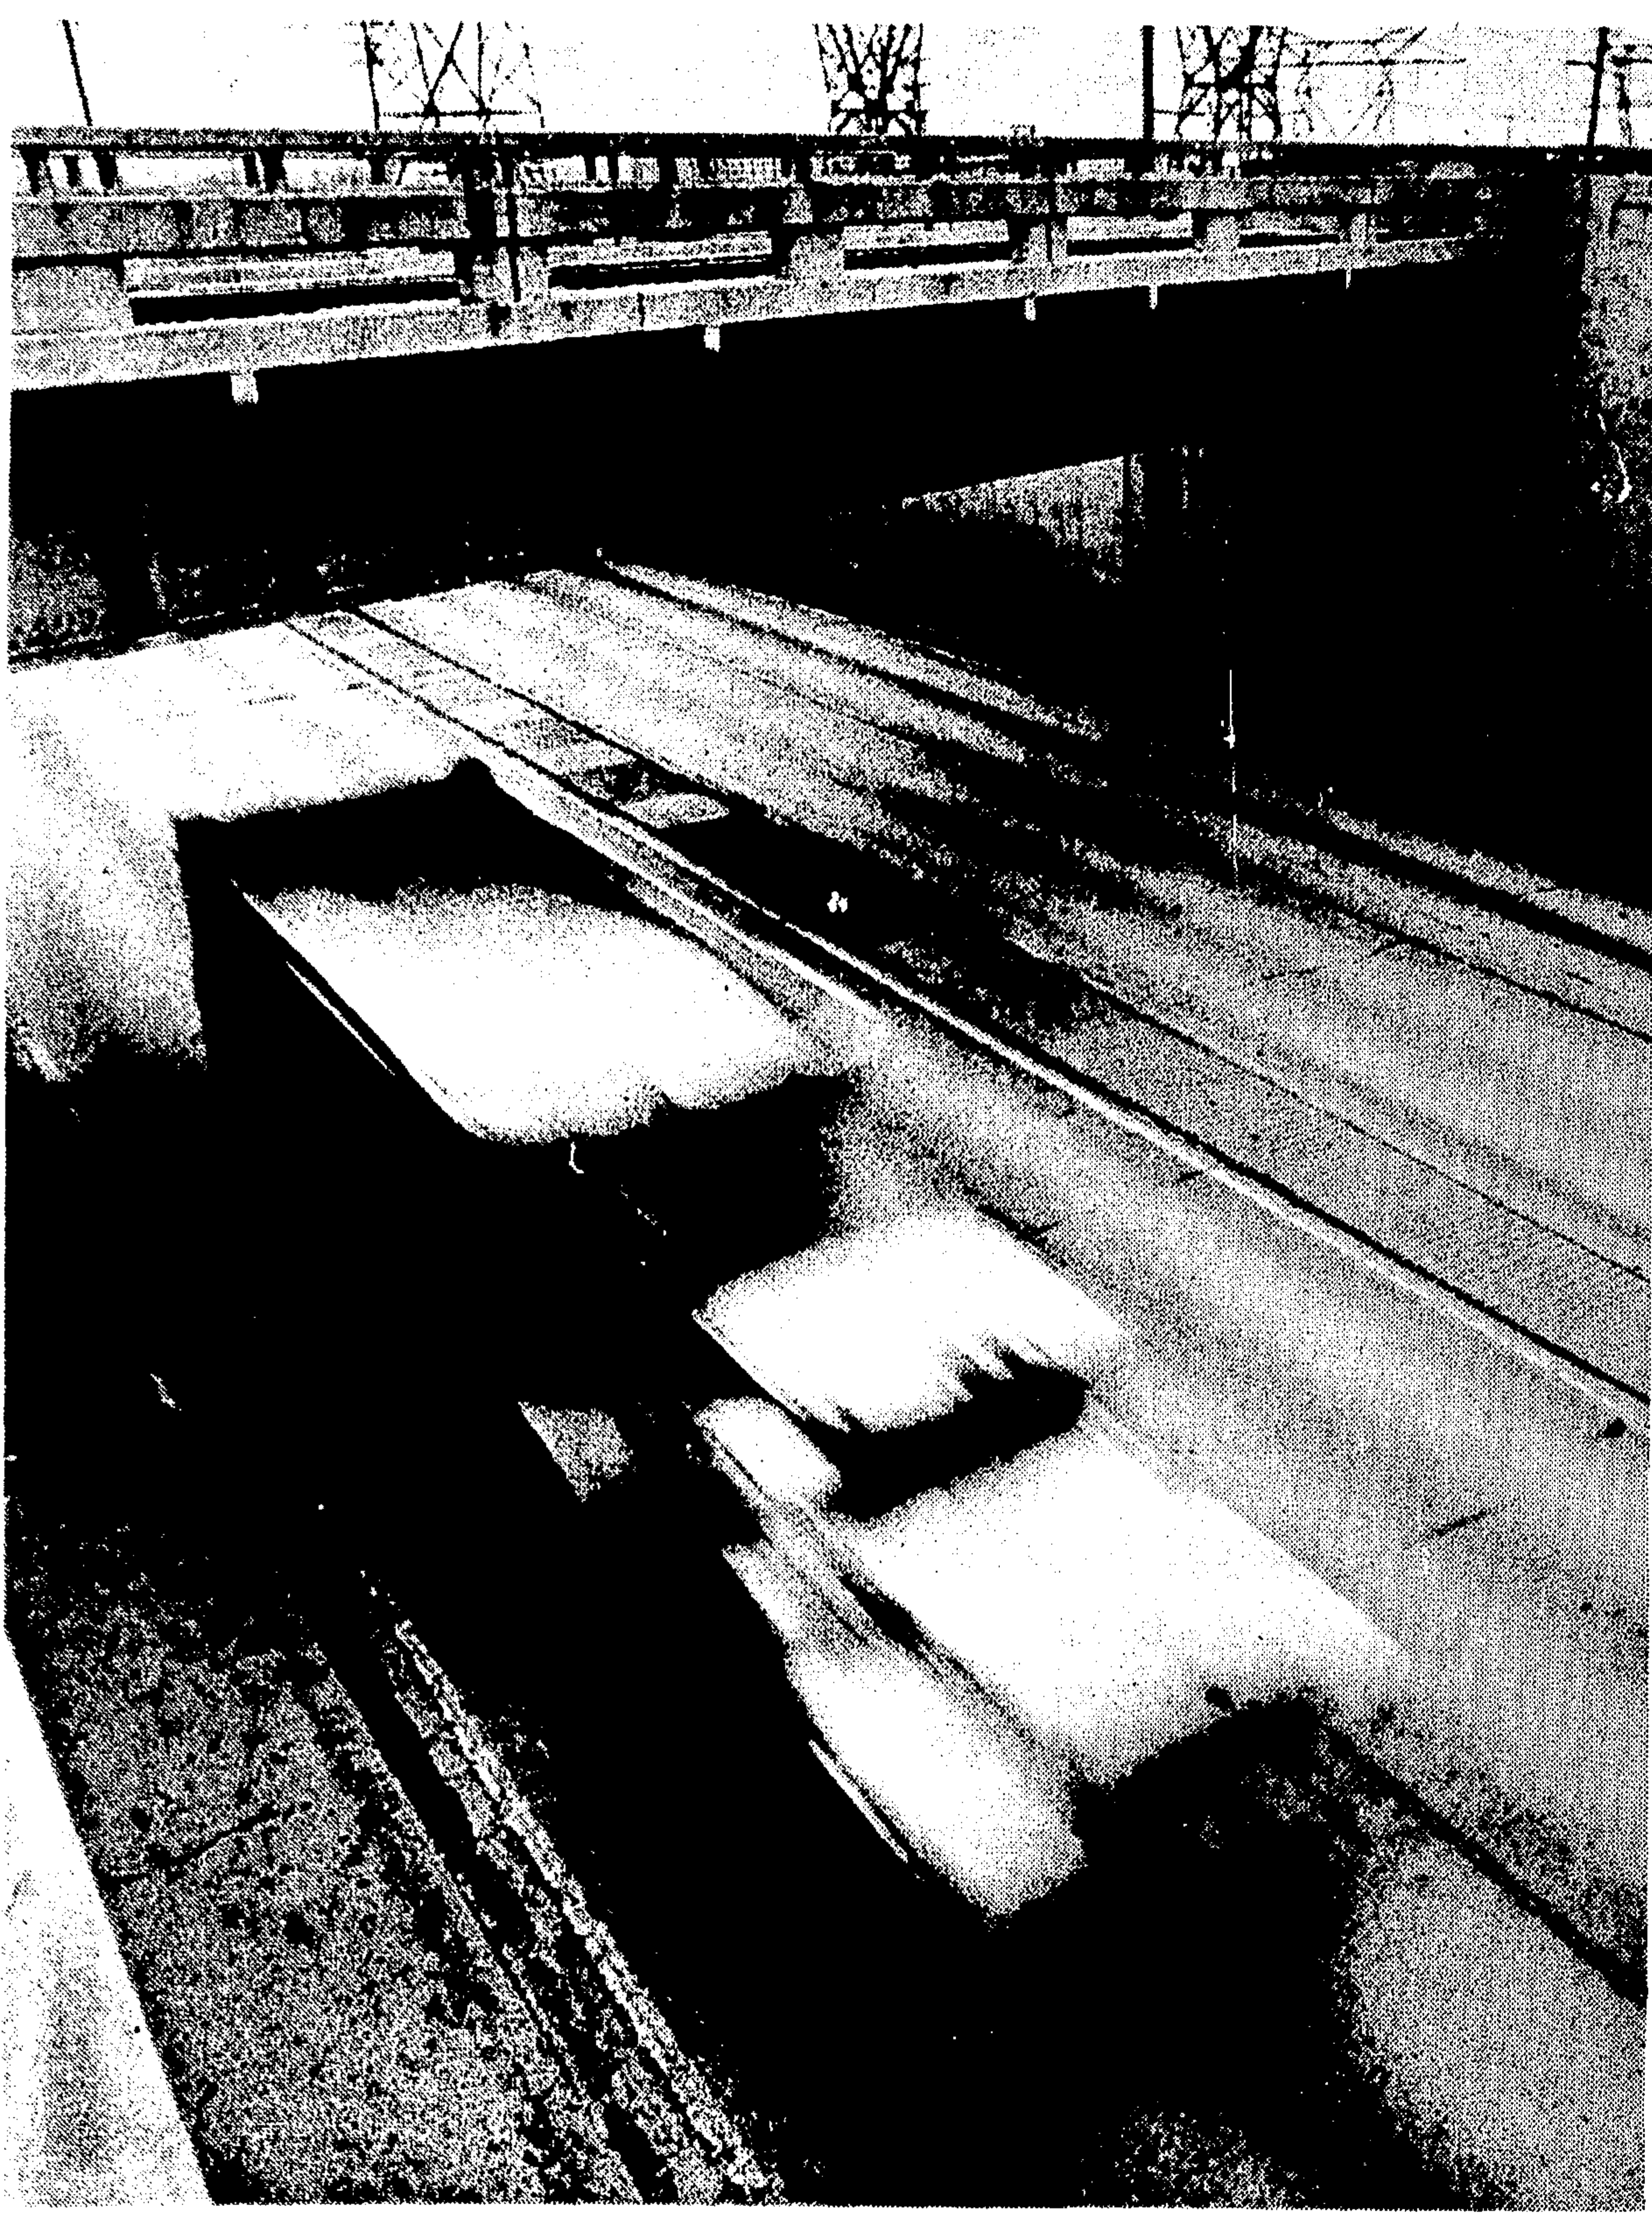

However, he was allowed to practice medicine in state institutions under a section in the Illinois Medical Practices Act that allows practice permits to unlicensed physicians seeking employment in state hospitals.

Plumbing Damaged

Damage to plumbing estimated at $300 was reported to Wheeling Police Friday by construction workers at the Mallard Lake construction site at Hintz and Buffalo Grove roads.

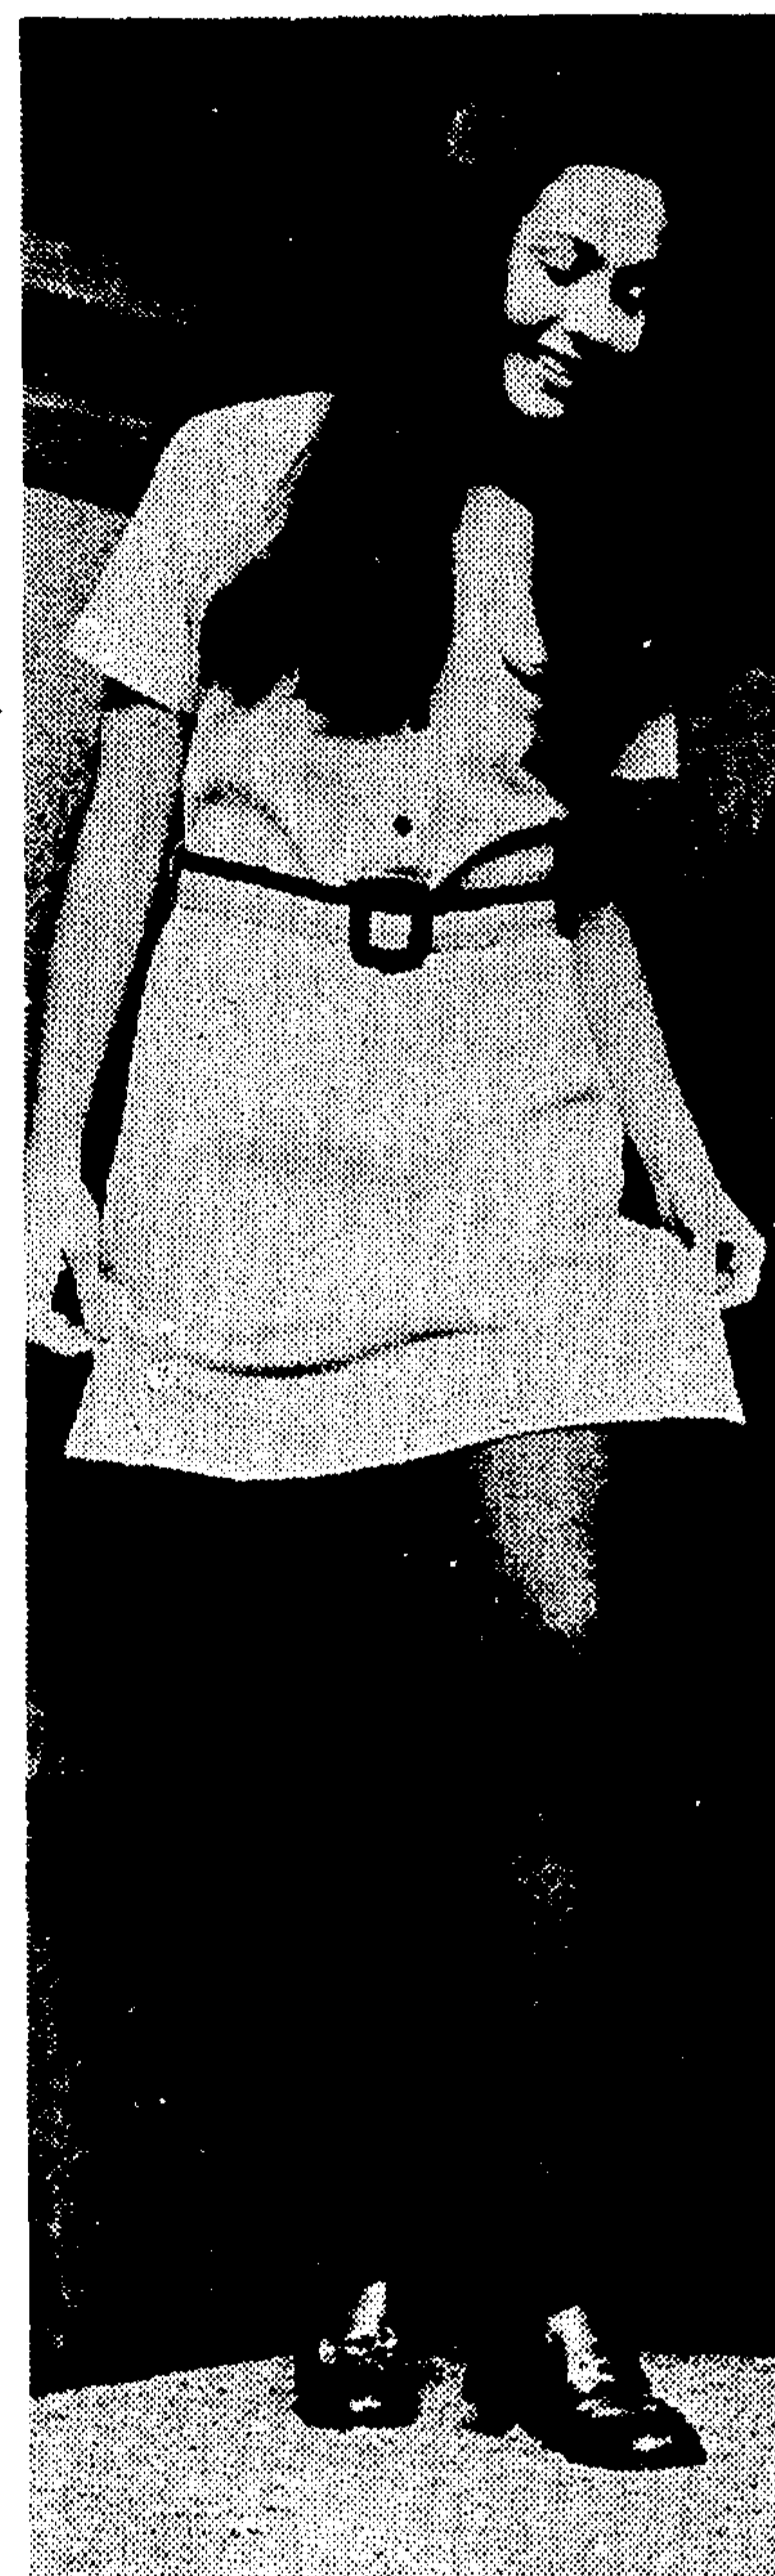

James Holland told police Friday afternoon that three sets of copper piping were broken in one of the buildings under construction sometime between 7:30 a.m. and 2 p.m. Friday.

The piping was later found in a shopping bag in the building, police reports indicated.

A SPEEDING truck moves under the Soo Line tracks on Palatine Road where a teenager was killed in an auto accident last week. Nine persons have been killed in less than a year on Palatine Road, called "an engineer's nightmare" by a policeman who patrols the roadway.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE student Amy Rodriguez modeled at a Wheeling Women's Club fashion show last spring. Now back in her native Colombia she is vying for the title of "Model of the Year." When Amy came to Wheeling last year she confided that her nickname back in her home village was "skinny."

plans of 1958 are still not completed, including an overpass at Rand Road.

State highway officials, who took over jurisdiction of the road from the county a few years ago, said yesterday a study is being made for an overpass or underpass at the Palatine-Arlington Heights Road intersection, where cars daily inch their way across two stop-signs located less than 50 yards apart.

However, the study won't be completed for at least four or five years, state officials say, and funding for a major Palatine Road underpass from Rand Road to Arlington Heights Road will come later. After the five persons were killed at the Rte. 83 overpass, a Cook County Sheriff's policeman recommended a guard rail between the four lanes of traffic to "prevent future deaths" there. But there is still no guard rail at the median strip today.

"THE GUARD RAIL is being considered along with a thousand others . . . but we don't have the money this year," said Carl Kowalski, north area operating engineer for the Illinois Highway Department. "We don't anticipate funds in 1973 either," he said.

The state calls road improvements such as a guard railing an "operational improvement" which must be funded entirely by the state without federal aid. "This is the most serious category for us right now," Kowalski said.

"But if the municipality wants to do it," he said, "then we would be glad to assist. There are thousands of projects like this for us to consider."

Police say they have problems patrolling the road. There is sometimes a question of jurisdiction at the village boundaries. At one intersection, the county has jurisdiction on one side, and Arlington Heights on the other.

Capt. Jack Aldrich of the Arlington Heights police department said, "Frequent drivers on Palatine Road understand the way it is, but the guy who doesn't understand is in trouble."

While Lt. Edward Campeau feels "it is a poor management of laying out the road," a Wheeling policeman said "the frontage roads get people confused." The problem, he said, "is the whole road."

$150 Coat Theft

Reported To Police

A Chicago woman told Wheeling police Sunday that her fur coat was stolen while she was eating dinner in a Wheeling Restaurant.

The woman, Mrs. John Fritz, told police that the brown fur coat valued at $150 was taken from a coat rack at Reinhold's and Marianne's Restaurant, 289 S. Milwaukee Ave., shortly after 6 p.m. Sunday.

'Amy' Rodriguez Finalist For 'Miss Colombia' Title

Last year Amparo Rodriguez was a foreign exchange student at Wheeling High School.

This year she is back in her native country of Colombia, where she is in the running to become her country's version of Miss America.

Amparo, who was known as Amy, will compete for the national honors at judging in Bogota on Friday and Saturday.

The 19-year-old beauty has already been chosen as one of three finalists from her section of the country, La Zonal Medellin. She won that honor on Feb. 23 when the competition was narrowed from 19 contestants.

SHE HAS also appeared on Colombian television and radio and her picture has appeared in local papers.

The contest is officially named "Model of the Year," and prizes include a cash prize, a trip to Miami, clothing and a chance at modeling jobs.

In this weekend's competition Amy will vie with 12 other girls from across her country.

Originally from a small town named Cucuta, Amy had never worn slacks or shorts before her trip to the United States last year, her "American father," Wheeling Police Chief M. O. Horcher explained.

But since she has returned to her native country she has moved to a larger city and a picture of her in a bathing suit appeared in the paper recently, Horcher said.

Amparo stayed with the Horcher family as a part of the American Field Service Program at the high school.

Buffalo Grove's Garbage Collection Cost To Rise

Garbage collection costs will almost certainly go up soon for homeowners in Buffalo Grove, but village trustees have been asked to determine how much.

James Raupp, owner of Buffalo Grove Disposal Service, asked the board at its workshop session Monday to approve a 50-cent increase per month for home pick-ups, bringing the monthly fee to $4.

Village Mgr. Daniel Larson explained that under a four-year contract with the city the disposal service is entitled to seek increases each year. The contract was signed in 1969, and this is the first year an increase has been sought. Under the contract provisions, Raupp would be entitled to ask for a 42-cent increase, but he asked the board to consider a higher increase because of his rising costs of operation.

Raupp said labor, equipment and dumping fees have all gone up rapidly in the past two years. The basic labor contract has risen from $4.05 an hour to $4.70, and dumping fees have gone from 55 cents a cubic yard to 70 cents.

RAUPP SAID a truck which cost $24,000 two years ago now costs $29,000, and he has had to add one vehicle due to the growth of the village.

Raupp said there are two ways to handle the problem — pass costs on to the customers, or to cut service. He currently collects from the curb of each house in the village twice a week, and has unlimited pick-up. "I don't like to see the service degraded," he said.

With 3,100 accounts at $4 each, the disposal service would take in $12,400 per month, which is short of the monthly cost of operation — $13,725. Raupp said the company is able to make up the difference, however, with commercial contracts. Competition for the contracts is limited because the village restricts the number of scavenger licenses it issues. Currently there are three, two of which are held by Buffalo Grove Disposal Co.

and Raupp Disposal Co. A Buffalo Grove man who attended the meeting as a spectator asked about the possibility of using bags for garbage, as is done in some of the other nearby suburbs.

"AS THE VILLAGE grows I look forward to having a bag system, but the cost has to be passed along to someone," Raupp said. Raupp said he liked the bag system, but felt homeowners would have to pay too much for it. If he reduced service to once a week with the bags, residents would have their trash and garbage sitting around longer.

Village Mgr. Daniel Larson said he is conducting a study to see what rates and services are provided in other suburbs. Village trustees will then decide whether to grant the 50-cent increase or hold Raupp to the original contract, which would still mean a 42-cent increase.

Fuller Resigns Board Position

Dist. 21 school board has accepted the resignation of Walter Fuller, director of business affairs. Fuller's resignation will be effective June 30.

Ken Gill, superintendent of Dist. 21 schools, said Fuller is leaving the district in hopes of finding a job in Florida. "Walt is not dissatisfied with his job here, he just wants to move out of the area," said Gill.

Fuller became business manager for Dist. 21 on July 1, 1967. Before coming to the district he was superintendent of schools in Bath, Ill.

Gill said the district will start advertising for a new business manager immediately.

Herald Wins Top Prize

The highest honor in newspaper design and typography has been awarded to Paddock Publications.

The chain's Arlington Heights Herald was among six first-place winners in the 33rd annual competition of the Inland Daily Press Association, a competition open to newspapers throughout North America.

The Herald was cited as best in its class (letterpress newspapers with circulation between 10,000 and 25,000) during the annual Inland meeting in Houston yesterday. The competition is jointly sponsored by Northwestern University's Medill School of Journalism.

Other first place winners were the Minneapolis Tribune, the Lafayette (Ind.) Journal and Courier, the Wheaton (Ill.) Journal, the Marion (Ind.) Chronicle Tribune, and the Portage (Wis.) Register.

The Inland awards for years have been regarded as the most prestigious in newspaper design and typography — as sessing newspaper for their general attractiveness, readability and imagination of makeup. There were 268 entrants in this year's competition.

At the Herald, daily responsibility for design and makeup is under Copy Desk Chief Jim Harvey and copy editors Russ Bath, Tom Jachimiec, Karen Thompson and Ed Workman.

Traffic Patterns Hit

Cove Survives 1 Struggle — New 'Waves' Show Up

The planned Frenchman's Cove development adjacent to the Mill Creek subdivision has survived a long struggle with Arlington Heights — but Buffalo Grove residents presented some new obstacles Monday night at the workshop session of the Buffalo Grove village board.

Representatives from the newly-formed Mill Creek Homeowners Association told the board they object to proposed traffic patterns of the 42-acre tract, which will include six four-story condominiums (450 units) and 39 single-family dwellings.

Estimating that as many as 1,000 cars might be owned by residents of the development, Mill Creek residents said traffic would be a problem.

Frenchman's Cove, a long, rectangular area sandwiched between Mill Creek of Buffalo Grove and Arlington Heights' Northgate area, has three planned street entrances. The main drive would come from Dundee on the north, with other connections at Old Post Road in Mill Creek on the west and at Carriage Way or Pear Tree Road at the southeast corner.

George Van Hoorbeke, vice president of the Mill Creek Homeowners Association, told the board the Old Post Road connection would funnel most of the traffic onto Mill Creek streets, causing a "racetrack" to the train stations in the mornings.

VILLAGE TRUSTEE Randall Rathjen

suggested proper steps be taken to vacate the end of Old Post Road so it could be cut off by Buffalo Grove, but Village Pres. Gary Armstrong suggested the board wait a while before taking any action.

Armstrong said the board should advise the Arlington Heights Plan Commission officially, and "tell what our attitudes are at that time." Armstrong did indicate the board was in sympathy with the Mill Creek residents, and something would be done before construction is complete in Frenchman's Cove.

Van Hoorbeke pointed out that although Frenchman's Cove is adjacent to Arlington Heights, only on the east side along Northgate, there are no roads planned between the two.

The Northgate Civic Association appeared before the Arlington Heights Village Board in November, 1971, asking special attention be given to the proposed traffic patterns. Representatives said there was a need to separate single-family residences from high-density traffic the development would generate.

So far the phase I of Frenchman's Cove has been approved by Arlington Heights. That phase is the northernmost section, and includes two of the condominium buildings. Traffic problems are not expected until completion of phase II which includes the Old Post Road connection.

Van Hoorbeke said a tentative plan to cut out the Carriage Way connection has been accepted by the homeowners association. It would be replaced with a fire and police lane which would be closed to normal traffic.

FRENCHMAN'S COVE developer, Illinois Central Industries, has had difficulty since the construction was first planned. Buffalo Grove turned down annexation of the area in 1969 because of a high density population expected in the units, and Arlington Heights subsequently annexed the strip of land.

But approval of the planned development was deferred in 1971 because Northgate residents felt there would be a flooding problem, in addition to the heavy traffic situation.

A representative of Dist. 21, also complained that a proposed school and park site in the development was "completely unusable as far as the school was concerned."

The Arlington Heights Plan Commission later in the year recommended denial of the development due to the flood problems, insufficient land for the school district and the high-density nature of the condominiums.

The difficulties were later worked out when the developer allowed more land for the school and park and agreed to put in retention basins to control flooding. Plans were also changed to include underground parking in the first building.

Although phase I was approved last November, construction has not yet begun.

The PTA sponsored the program following the regular business meeting. Approximately 40 to 50 persons attended the meeting.

Two Girls Flee Abductor

Two teen-age girls from Buffalo Grove were abducted at knife point by a man who offered them a ride in his car in Wheeling Monday night.

The girls, one 14 and one 15 years old, told Wheeling Police the man threatened them with a knife when they tried to get out of his car near their homes.

The man drove the girls to a deadend street in Lincolnshire, where he told them to take off their clothes because he was going to rape them.

One of the girls jumped out of the car and ran. The man then pushed the other girl out of the car, and drove off with the car door open.

THE GIRLS ran to a nearby house for help but found no one home. At a second home the residents answered the door and allowed the girls to call police.

The two girls, who both live in the Cook County section of Buffalo Grove, had been going home from a drive-in restaurant in eastern Wheeling when they were picked up by the man.

The girls told police they had gotten a ride from the drive-in west on Dundee Road to near Jack London Junior High School.

They were walking down Dundee toward Buffalo Grove when the man stopped and offered them a ride, they told police.

THE MAN drove the girls down Dundee Road to Buffalo Grove Road and north on Buffalo Grove Road to near Lake-Cook Road.

When the girls asked to get out of the car there, the man put a knife up to one girl's head and ordered the girls onto the floor of the car.

He then drove them to the deadend street in Lincolnshire.

The girls told police the man said he was going to trade them to another man who had abducted the man's girl friend earlier in the evening. He also told them he could sell them for $5,000, the girls said.

Wheeling police were in contact with Indiana State Police about a possible suspect in the case yesterday.

Home Damaged By Fire

Heat and smoke from a fire caused extensive damage Saturday night to the home of Joseph Reboletti of 1206 Selwyn, Buffalo Grove.

Buffalo Grove Fire Chief Wayne Winter said that although the fire was confined to the basement area of the house, heat and smoke damage from the blaze made the house uninhabitable.

The family is now staying with neighbors, the fire chief said.

Winter said no cause had been determined for the fire.

He said the flames were confined to a small area in the walls and floor near the foyer area of the home.

Buffalo Grove firemen were called to the house at 11:41 p.m. Saturday and took about half an hour to extinguish the fire, Winter said.

Firemen worked at the scene for three hours, cleaning up after the fire and making sure it was out, Winter said.

Wheeling Band Olympic Fund Reported At $18,361

The fund-raising committee for the Wheeling High School Band trip to the 1972 Olympic Games met Monday night. They announced funds now total $18,361.

This figure is well below what the "Munich 72" committee had hoped to have by now. Ideally they should be receiving $10,000 per week and last week they made just over $400.

The committee also announced that members have started sending letters to major business firms, banks and foundations in the Chicagoland area. They will try to have all the letters in the mail by the end of the week.

THE LETTERS ASK the business groups to answer one way or the other concerning their interest in the project. If they answer in support of the project the committee will send them further information.

Don Hoeck, chairman of "Munich 72" told his committee to emphasize to all potential contributors the necessity of a quick response to the letters. He said time is important in getting deposits made for the plane trip and the rooms abroad.

The next fund-raising event is planned for Sunday, March 12, at Kristof's Wheeling Manor. On that day, all the net proceeds made by the restaurant from 3 to 9 p.m. will be turned over to the band.

Reservations for the day may be made by contacting the restaurant at 537-3524.

Suspended Doctor Faces Discharge

Ricardo Munoz-Velez, figure of an investigation concerning 200 patients deaths at Elgin State Hospital, will be automatically discharged after 30 days if he fails to argue his suspension issued yesterday.

Although no criminal charges have been placed against Munoz, he has been implicated for practicing medicine without adequate credentials and for poor judgment in the treatment of up to 200 patients who died at the state institution.

Kane County States Atty. William Ketchum, meantime, is working with hospital authorities on an investigation of Munoz's credentials.

Ketchum also awaits a report he requested from Dr. George Leroy, of the University of Chicago, who has reviewed the 200 deaths.

Leroy yesterday refused to discuss the report, and termed news items about the exhumation of bodies a "fabrication."

Dr. Douglas Norcross, administrative assistant at Elgin State Hospital, took strong exception to the 200 deaths figure released by Ketchum.

"WE DON'T DENY the seriousness of the matter and personally started investigation of Dr. Munoz in November when staff reports of bizarre or questionable treatment were studied," said Norcross.

"However, Dr. Munoz took care of 25 cases, not 200, and it is those 25 cases that our staff and civil service board will be investigating," said Norcross.

Ketchum said late Tuesday his investigation concerns 200 patient deaths at the hospital in the period between April 1969 and August 1971.

"Dr. Munoz' name was in every one of those files. One way or the other he was concerned with their cases," said Ketchum.

The states attorney said charges against Munoz, could include incompetent treatment of patients, gross negligence and complete disregard for the welfare of patients.

State Mental Health Board representative Norman Hufford said "frankly we don't know where the department is on

this thing. We knew in November that the Kane County states attorney was investigating Dr. Munoz but were advised by him to stay out of it, and did so."

HUFFORD SAID the department is attempting to update itself on the case and knows only that the doctor was assigned to a desk job in November and suspended Tuesday.

Dr. Norcross said Elgin State is working with the state's attorney to determine if possible criminal charges are in order.

"The next step is Dr. Munoz. He has 30 days to answer the suspension charge and if he does not he's fired," said Norcross adding, "further discussion of the case must wait until Dr. Leroy's report is reviewed."

The state attorney's investigation centers on doubts about Munoz' claims to have studied at the University of Havana.

It was learned that Dr. Munoz worked as a laboratory technician at St. Elizabeth's Hospital from Feb. 25, 1962 to June 10, 1966 when he resigned.

Munoz reportedly has flunked the Illinois Medical Licensing test four times and the foreign medical equivalency test seven times.

However, he was allowed to practice medicine in state institutions under a section in the Illinois Medical Practices Act that allows practice permits to uncensored physicians seeking employment in state hospitals.

plans of 1958 are still not completed, including an overpass at Rand Road.

State highway officials, who took over jurisdiction of the road from the county a few years ago, said yesterday a study is being made for an overpass or underpass at the Palatine-Arlington Heights Road intersection, where cars daily inch their way across two stop-signs located less than 50 yards apart.

However, the study won't be completed for at least four or five years, state officials say, and funding for a major Palatine Road underpass from Rand Road to Arlington Heights Road will come later.

After the five persons were killed at the Rte. 83 overpass, a Cook County Sheriff's policeman recommended a guard rail between the four lanes of traffic to "prevent future deaths" there. But there is still no guard rail at the median strip today.

"THE GUARD RAIL is being considered along with a thousand others . . . but we don't have the money this year," said Carl Kowalski, north area operating engineer for the Illinois Highway Department. "We don't anticipate funds in 1973 either," he said.

The state calls road improvements such as a guard railing an "operational improvement" which must be funded entirely by the state without federal aid. "This is the most serious category for us right now," Kowalski said.

"But if the municipality wants to do it," he said, "then we would be glad to assist. There are thousands of projects like this for us to consider."

Police say they have problems patrolling the road. There is sometimes a question of jurisdiction at the village boundaries. At one intersection, the county has jurisdiction on one side, and Arlington Heights on the other.

Capt. Jack Aldrich of the Arlington Heights police department said, "Frequent drivers on Palatine Road understand the way it is, but the guy who doesn't understand is in trouble."

$150 Coat Theft Reported To Police

A Chicago woman told Wheeling police Sunday that her fur coat was stolen while she was eating dinner in a Wheeling Restaurant.

The woman, Mrs. John Fritz, told police that the brown fur coat valued at $150 was taken from a coat rack at Reinhold's and Marianne's Restaurant, 269 S. Milwaukee Ave., shortly after 6 p.m. Sunday.

'Amy' Rodriguez Finalist For 'Miss Colombia' Title

Last year Amparo Rodriguez was a foreign exchange student at Wheeling High School.

This year she is back in her native country of Colombia, where she is in the running to become her country's version of Miss America.

Amparo, who was known as Amy, will compete for the national honors at judging in Bogota on Friday and Saturday.

The 19-year-old beauty has already been chosen as one of three finalists from her section of the country, La Zonal Medellin. She won that honor on Feb. 23 when the competition was narrowed from 19 contestants.

SHE HAS also appeared on Colombian television and radio and her picture has appeared in local papers.

The contest is officially named "Model of the Year," and prizes include a cash prize, a trip to Miami, clothing and a chance at modeling jobs.

In this weekend's competition Amy will vie with 12 other girls from across her country.

Originally from a small town named Cucuta, Amy had never worn slacks or shorts before her trip to the United States last year, her "American father," Wheeling Police Chief M. O. Horcher explained.

But since she has returned to her native country she has moved to a larger city and a picture of her in a bathing suit appeared in the paper recently, Horcher said.

Amparo stayed with the Horcher family as a part of the American Field Service Program at the high school.

Buffalo Grove's Garbage Collection Cost To Rise

Garbage collection costs will almost certainly go up soon for homeowners in Buffalo Grove, but village trustees have been asked to determine how much.

James Raupp, owner of Buffalo Grove Disposal Service, asked the board at its workshop session Monday to approve a 50-cent increase per month for home pick-ups, bringing the monthly fee to $4.

Village Mgr. Daniel Larson explained that under a four-year contract with the city the disposal service is entitled to seek increases each year. The contract was signed in 1969, and this is the first year an increase has been sought. Under the contract provisions, Raupp would be entitled to ask for a 42-cent increase, but he asked the board to consider a higher increase because of his rising costs of operation.

Raupp said labor, equipment and dumping fees have all gone up rapidly in the past two years. The basic labor contract has risen from $4.05 an hour to $4.70, and dumping fees have gone from 55 cents a cubic yard to 70 cents.

RAUPP SAID a truck which cost $24,000 two years ago now costs $29,000, and he has had to add one vehicle due to the growth of the village.

Raupp said there are two ways to handle the problem — pass costs on to the customers, or to cut service. He currently collects from the curb of each house in the village twice a week, and has unlimited pick-up. "I don't like to see the service degraded," he said.

With 3,100 accounts at $4 each, the disposal service would take in $12,400 per month, which is short of the monthly cost of operation — $13,725. Raupp said the company is able to make up the difference, however, with commercial contracts. Competition for the contracts is limited because the village restricts the number of scavenger licenses it issues. Currently there are three, two of which are held by Buffalo Grove Disposal Co.

and Raupp Disposal Co.

A Buffalo Grove man who attended the meeting as a spectator asked about the possibility of using bags for garbage, as is done in some of the other nearby suburbs.

"AS THE VILLAGE grows I look forward to having a bag system, but the cost has to be passed along to someone," Raupp said. Raupp said he liked the bag system, but felt homeowners would have to pay too much for it. If he reduced service to once a week with the bags, residents would have their trash and garbage sitting around longer.

Village Mgr. Daniel Larson said he is conducting a study to see what rates and services are provided in other suburbs. Village trustees will then decide whether to grant the 50-cent increase or hold Raupp to the original contract, which would still mean a 42-cent increase.

Fuller Resigns Board Position

Dist. 21 school board has accepted the resignation of Walter Fuller, director of business affairs. Fuller's resignation will be effective June 30.

Ken Gill, superintendent of Dist. 21 schools, said Fuller is leaving the district in hopes of finding a job in Florida. "Walt is not dissatisfied with his job here, he just wants to move out of the area," said Gill.

Fuller became business manager for Dist. 21 on July 1, 1967. Before coming to the district he was superintendent of schools in Bath, Ill.

Gill said the district will start advertising for a new business manager immediately.

Herald Wins Top Prize

The highest honor in newspaper design and typography has been awarded to Paddock Publications.

The chain's Arlington Heights Herald was among six first-place winners in the 33rd annual competition of the Inland Daily Press Association, a competition open to newspapers throughout North America.

The Herald was voted as best in its class (letterpress newspapers with circulation between 10,000 and 25,000) during the annual Inland meeting in Houston yesterday. The competition is jointly sponsored by Northwestern University's Medill School of Journalism.

Other first place winners were the Minneapolis Tribune, the Lafayette (Ind.) Journal and Courier, the Wheaton (Ill.) Journal, the Marion (Ind.) Chronicle Tribune, and the Portage (Wis.) Register.

The Inland awards for years have been regarded as the most prestigious in newspaper design and typography — assessing newspaper for their general attractiveness, readability and imagination of makeup. There were 268 entrants in this year's competition.

At the Herald, daily responsibility for design and makeup is under Copy Desk Chief Jim Harvey and copy editors Russ Bath, Tom Jachimiec, Karen Thompson and Ed Workman.

Municipal Utility Tax May Increase Total Bill By 10%

by MARGE FERROLI

Palatine residents will find their total taxes paid to the village during the course of a full year increased about 10 per cent if a proposed municipal utility tax is approved by the Palatine Village Board as part of the 1972-1973 budget.

Although the amount paid to the village on each homeowner's property tax bill would decrease, the total amount paid within a year would increase with an additional tax placed on bills for electricity, telephone, telegraph and gas.

Village Mgr. Berton Braun has recommended the utility tax as a means to supply another source of revenue to balance the proposed $1.8 million budget presented to the village board Monday. Without it, Braun estimated the village would come up about $150,000 short to meet the costs of anticipated expenditures.

Braun's $1.8 million figure, which represents about a one per cent increase over last year's budget, is based on maintaining the existing level of village services to all residents of Palatine. Because the population has increased, the costs have increased.

If the utility tax is not approved by the board and initiated, then the $150,000 would have to be made up by either substantially raising the property tax rate or cutting back on municipal services, Braun said.

With the utility tax, a 5 per cent charge would be placed on the telephone, electric and gas bills of all Palatine residents. During a full year, Braun estimated this tax would generate about $368,000.

However, the amount collected during the next fiscal year would be substantially less than that because the tax would not be put into effect for the full amount of time. Braun estimated it would take at least three months to put the tax into operation.

BASED ON THE current tax levy which is estimated to produce a total village tax rate of 55.35 cents per $100 assessed valuation, the owner of a typical house valued at $10,000 would pay a village property tax of $55.35.

Under the current proposal to lower the tax rate, 15.88 cents would be eliminated from the tax levy, or about 29 per cent of the village property tax. This would reduce the property tax on the same $10,000 home to $39.47.

However, based on a utility tax of 5.67 per cent (including administrative costs for handling the tax), the homeowner who pays about $600 per year for electricity, gas and telephone would end up paying $34.02 per year in utility taxes. This, added to the reduced property tax, would total $39.47 compared with the present total property tax of $55.35.

Payment of utility taxes would be done with the regular payment of bills from the electric, gas and telephone companies. The money would then be collected by the village from each of the utility companies.

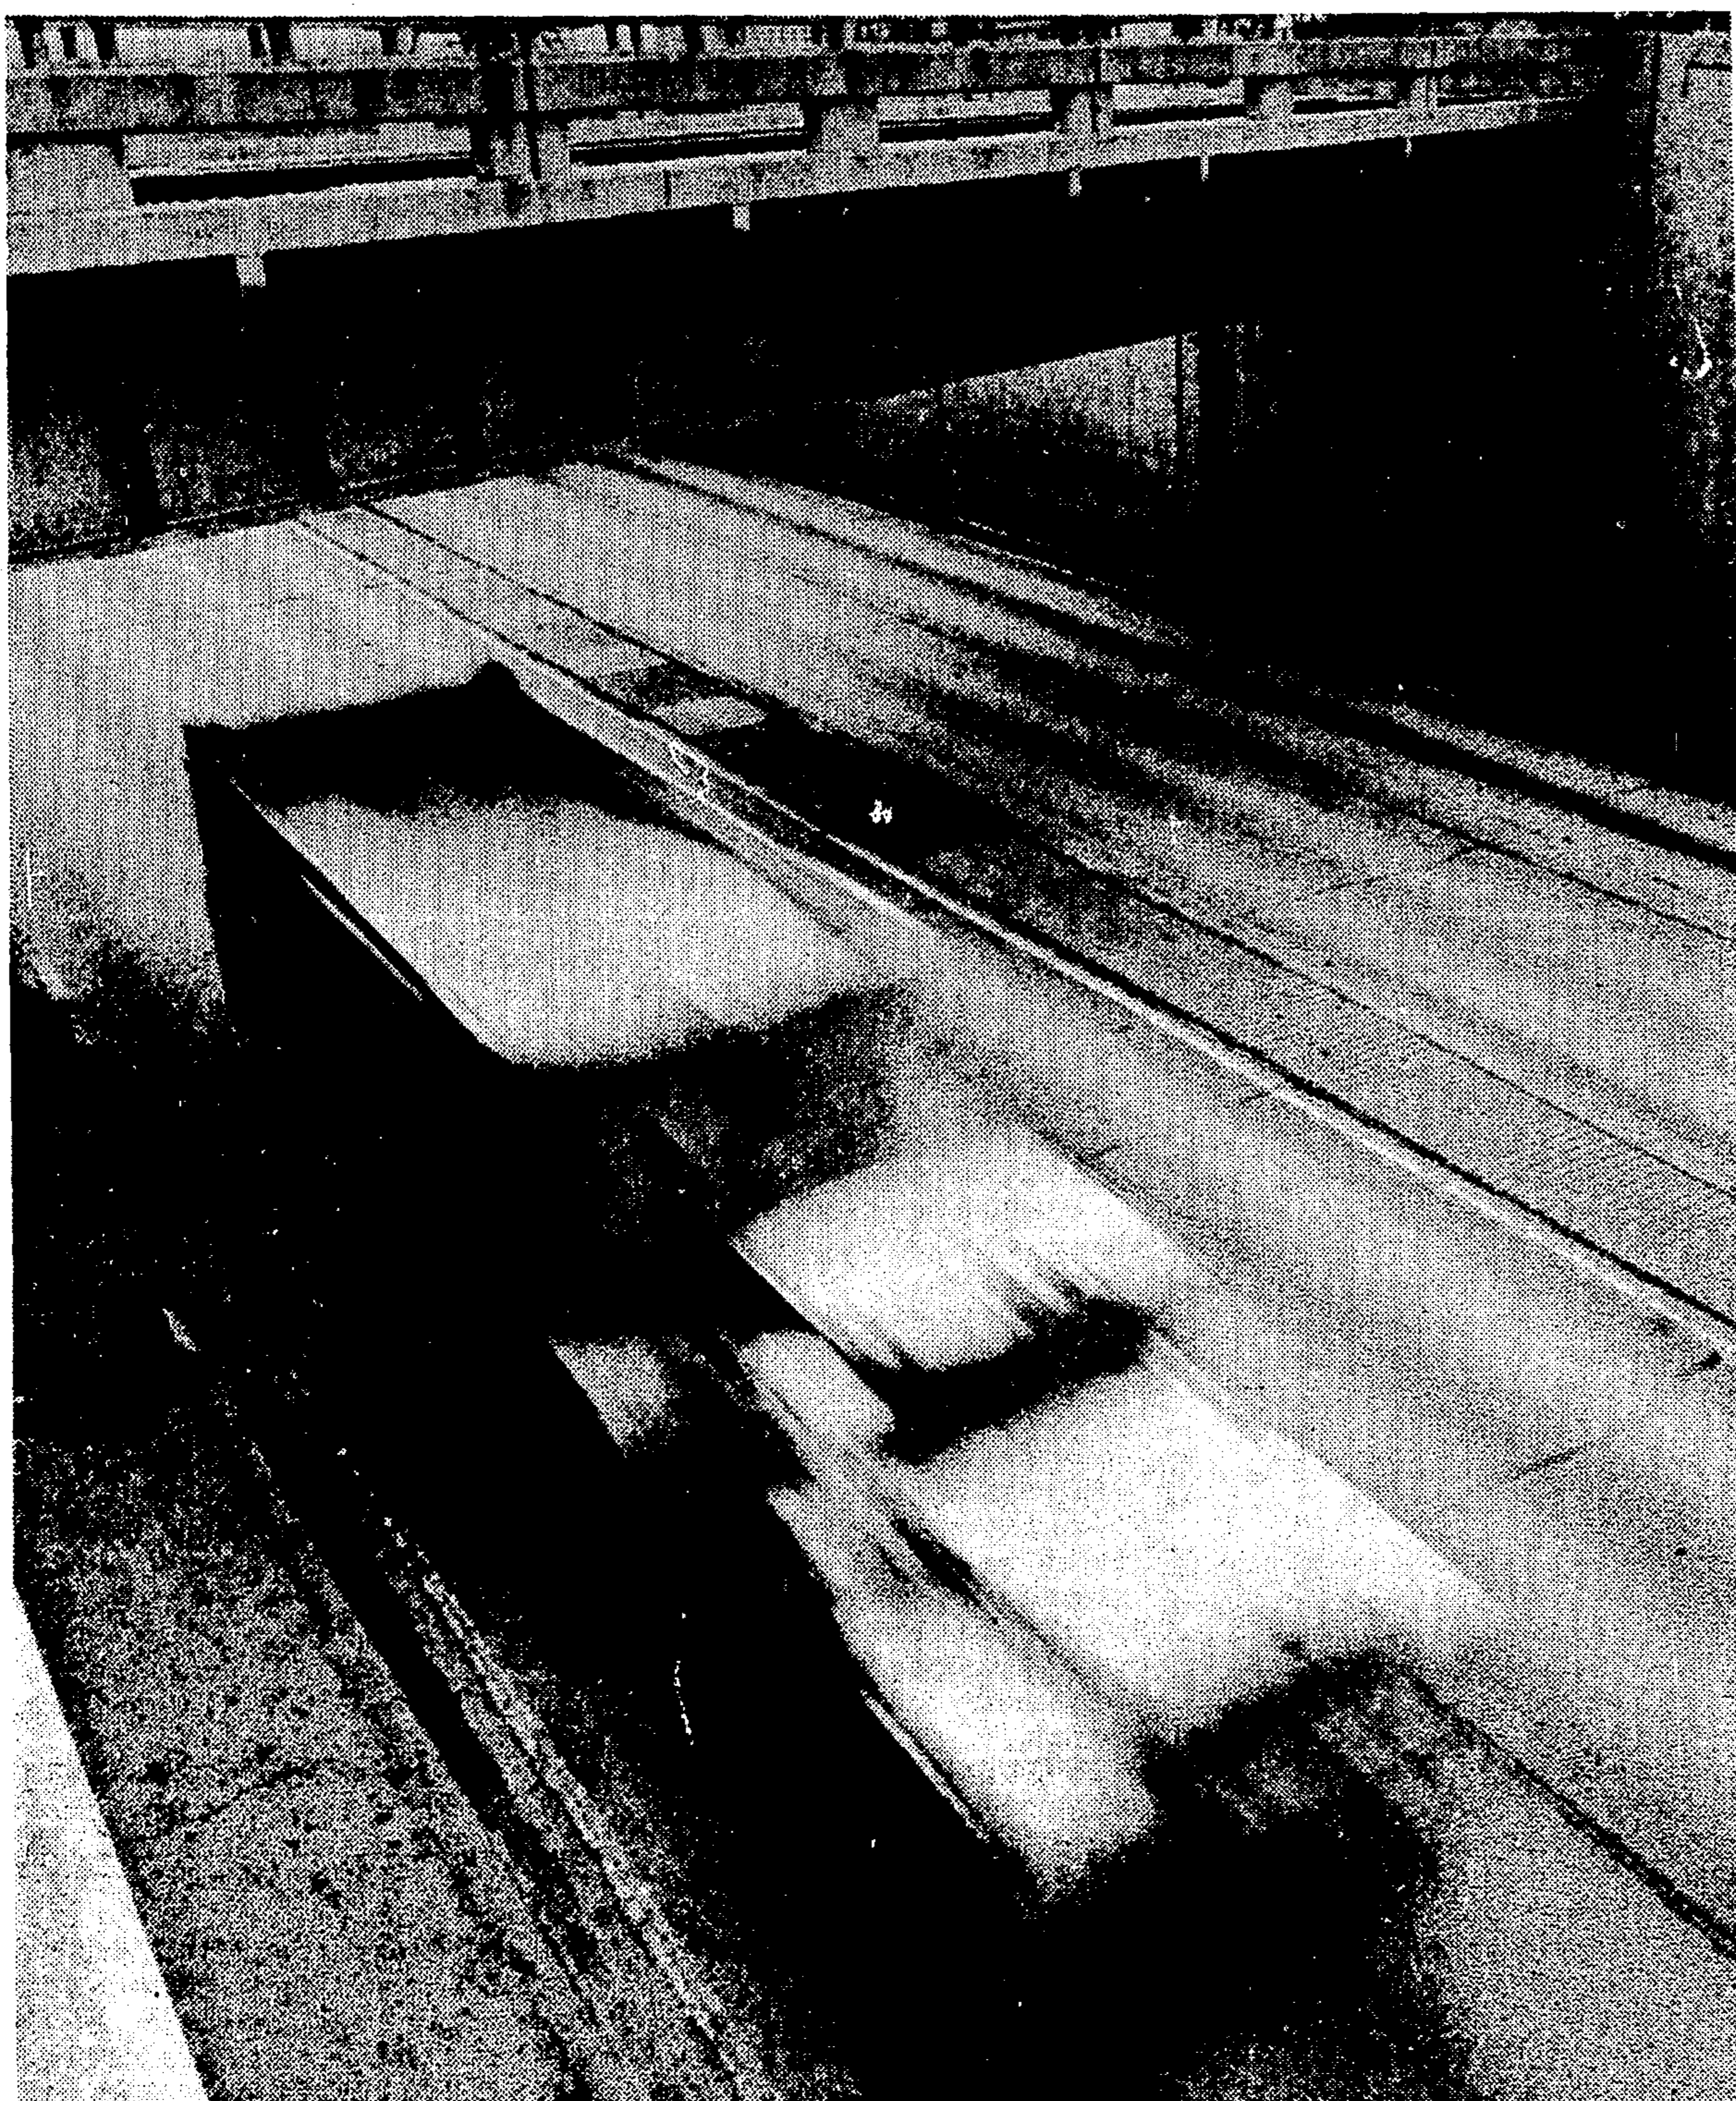

Braun estimated that most persons would not begin paying their utility tax until fall.

A large amount of the total $368,000 expected from utility taxes would come from business and industry, which made heavier use of utilities, Braun said.

If an excess of village funds from utility tax is collected, the tax rate for property could be lowered to compensate for it. However, Braun emphasized this is a situation which is "just a possibility and not a promise" and would have to be evaluated after a full year of utility tax operation.

As the land area, population and density of Palatine increases, the costs of government services also increases, Braun explained. This places a strain on the budget if the quality of services is ex-it "an engineer's nightmare." But the families of nine persons killed in auto accidents on that thoroughfare in less than a year will live with the nightmare for the rest of their lives.

A Florida man died at the congested Palatine and Rand Road intersection in June. Four months later, an Arlington Heights resident lost his life on the road-way near Rte. 53 followed by the death of a Rolling Meadows man at the same location in a separate accident.

One of the worst accidents in Northwest suburban history occurred on a rain-slick Palatine Road overpass at Rte. 33 in Prospect Heights in December. Five persons were killed.

The latest Palatine Road fatality was a 19-year-old youth last week whose car jumped the median strip into oncoming traffic at the Soo Line R.R. tracks in Wheeling.

Local officials, police officers, and the state highway department agree the east-west roadway is a problem. The seven mile expanse from the Village of Palatine to the Tri-State Tollway is often flooded with vehicles, many of them exceeding the maximum speed limits.

The driver must cope with a complex of confusing lights and direction signs, periodic stops and fellow drivers attempting to merge into the fast-moving flow of cars.

WHO IS TO blame for the "hazardous" condition of the express route is uncertain. But motorists, municipal representatives and county and state highway officials all should accept a fair share of the road's present condition.

It all began in 1958 as a unique county highway department road construction plan to link the outlying Northwest suburbs to Chicago by "a junior expressway." Thus, Palatine Road, Cook County's first suburban expressway project.

Original plans showed few entrances and exits at Palatine Road, but soon after construction plans were unveiled, the concept changed.

Much of the land around the new roadway was purchased by speculators who turned the land into housing subdivisions, shopping centers and stores.

Each special interest group wanted it's special interest to be catered to.

Arlington Heights officials urged intersections be built. They said a road without intersections would cut off the northern sector of the village from further development.

Village officials got the intersections and later traffic control signals.

Stop signs were erected at Arlington Heights Road and frontage roads were spawned for eastern Palatine subdivisions.

THE ORIGINAL concept of a junior expressway was defeated and it became little more than a local route for many.

The Schoenbeck Road intersection was called "death corner" by parents of school children who attended a school there and parents threatened to block the roadway.

Some of the original Palatine Road plans of 1958 are still not completed, including an overpass at Rand Road.

2-Story Inverness Home Damaged By Fire

A home under construction in Inverness was slightly damaged in a fire which broke out last night.

The two-story Georgian style house on Prestwick Drive near Firth Road was being built by Period Homes Inc. of Lake Forest.

A fireman with the Palatine Rural Fire Protection District said the blaze apparently started near the rear of the first floor. The flames traveled up to the attic, where most of the damage occurred, he said.

Cause of the fire was not immediately known, but an electrical short circuit was ruled out because wiring has not yet been installed, a fireman said. A damage estimate was not given.

Neighbors said the owners of the home a couple currently living in Park Ridge with their two children, were to move to Inverness in July.

Eight minutes after the fire was reported, an accident involving two cars and a truck occurred near the other end of Firth Road on Palatine Road. Palatine police said no one was injured, but traffic was delayed in the vicinity for several minutes.

Don't 'Rough' It—Attend Dog Classes

If you're tired of having your best pair of shoes chewed to shreds and your living room carpet soiled, take heart.

The Palatine Park District is accepting applications for beginning and intermediate dog obedience courses.

The six-week classes will meet on Monday evenings, beginning next week, in the recreation building in Community Park.

Beginning classes meet from 7 to 7:45 p.m. and from 7:45 to 8:30 p.m., with a limit of 20 dogs per session.

They are taught basic obedience routines, including sit, heel, recall, long sit and long down.

The intermediate class meets from 8:30 to 9:15 p.m. Basic "off leash" obedience routines are to be taught. The class is limited to 20 dogs who have passed the beginner course or who have approval from the instructor.

Instructor for both the beginning and intermediate classes is Dorothy Ortman. The fee is $10 per dog or $12 for dogs belonging to non-residents.

Dogs must be at least six months old and must be accompanied by an owner of any age at each session.

Registration is being conducted at the park district's administration office in Community Park, 262 E. Palatine Rd.

The Nation

The White House announced that Senate leaders Mike Mansfield and Hugh Scott would visit China at the invitation of Premier Chou En-lai. No date has been set but "it probably will be worked out that they will go together," said White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler.

The Pentagon said it stamps the number SPN384 on the records of servicemen discharged for using drugs, permanently identifying them to their prospective employers and supervisors as drug users. Sen. Harold Hughes, D-Iowa, promised legislation to stop the practice.

A mysterious letter released at the trial of the Rev. Philip Berrigan and six others indicates the government's star witness was being paid as an FBI in-former while an inmate at the Lewisburg, Pa., federal prison.

The House voted to authorize government noise standards for new products ranging from motorcycles to rock music amplifiers. The standards would make America a quieter place to live, sponsors said.

The Senate approved a moderate anti-busing compromise after three presidential contenders returned to help kill a proposal which would have prohibited federal judges from ordering busing to integrate schools. The milder restriction, mainly supported by Northern moderates and liberals, would deny federal funds for racial-balance busing unless local school officials freely ask for the money without coercion from Washington.

The World

Gunman shot to death a part-time soldier in the hallway of his home and wounded his 11-year-old daughter, the British Army said. A British soldier and a Northern Ireland policeman were wounded seriously in shooting attacks in Londerry and Newry.

The National Assembly in Taipei issued a statement declaring "null and void any compromise or understanding" President Nixon may have reached with Peking leaders regarding Nationalist China during his weekend visit.

The State

Gov. Richard Ogilvie said education continues to have his highest priority and recommended an increase of 190 million in the budget for elementary and secondary education. In his annual budget message, he estimated $2.073 billion would be spent in fiscal 1973 on all education.

The War

Communist guerrillas ambushed a major South Vietnamese ammunition convoy, wounding 40 men. In two other battles, government troops reported killing 38 guerrillas in fighting south of Da Nang. In the air war, U.S. B52 bombers hammered the Communist-held A Shau Valley and coastal plains north of the old imperial capital of Hue and struck in the Central Highlands.

Excitement In School Election?

by JOANN VAN WYE

With only three announced candidates, two incumbents and a virtual unknown, the Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 elections on April 8 hold little promise for excitement.

While it may be a tribute to the incumbents and the present board to have little opposition (maybe none, if the other candidate does not file his nominating petition by the March 17 deadline), it is hardly a tribute to other groups.

There may not be any big campaign issues and a general contentment with the actions of the present board, but there is also a visible lack of representation from certain groups on the board.

The seven members of the current board have diversified occupations which add a certain amount of expertise to the board. They include executive, educator, lawyer, bond expert, management consultant and financial whiz.

REPRESENTATION on the board by area is also mixed with three coming from Rolling Meadows, three from Palatine and one from Inverness. Service on the board ranges from 22 years to one year.

Sounds great but . . . where are the women, the representatives of the Win-ston Knolls area and the under 40 group?

Since consolidation in 1946, 28 different people have served on the board. Of these only three were women. Hardly what you would call a point for women's lib.

It seems long overdue for women in the district to move out of the realm of PTAs and League of Women Voters and actively seek a seat on the board. In a district that has more than 12,000 students attending kindergarten through eighth grades, there must be a woman with the qualifications necessary to make her an asset to the board.

As for Winston Knolls in Hoffman Estates, in January there were more than 350 children from the area in just kindergarten through sixth grades. The area is the fastest growing in the district at the present time and an elementary school is planned to open in 1973 or 1974 to accommodate children from the area. Yet, they have no direct representation on the board.

THE NEED FOR representation from this area seems especially critical with planning for the elementary school in the area scheduled to start soon. It would seem the people would want to have a voice in the type of school their children will be attending.

Another group lacking representation on the board is the under-40 set. A member of this group might be able to contribute some fresh and innovative ideas to the board. With the 18-year-old vote, a young candidate (if you call under 40 young) would have a large segment of the voters to appeal to.

The election would also be a good opportunity for an ambitious 18 to 21-year-olds to gain some notoriety by challenging the state constitution which did not lower the requirement that school board members be 21 years of age or older when it lowered the voting age.

Science Fair Set At High School

Twenty-four projects, representing months of hard work by junior high students, will be on display at the Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 Science Fair Thursday.

Awards for the best projects will be presented at a ceremony at 7:30 p.m. in Plum Grove School in Rolling Meadows. Parents and students will have an opportunity to view the projects following the presentation.

Judging of the projects will be based on the quality of a research paper, an oral presentation, quality of answers to judges' questions, conceptual difficulty of the project and quality of the display.

The students will set up their displays on Wednesday and the judging will take place all day Thursday with the judges spending approximately 20 minutes with each contestant questioning them on their project.

JUDGES THIS YEAR are Mrs. Sandra Martelli of Carl Sandburg School in Rolling Meadows, Darryl Samborski of Stuart Paddock School in Palatine and Mrs. Kay Woelfel and John Meyer of Winston Park School in Palatine.

Thursday's fair will have the first and second place winners from the building fairs at each junior high in the district except Gray M. Sanborn School in Palatine competing against each other. Students receiving first and second place awards at the Dist. 15 fair will be eligible to compete in the suburban fair.

The 24 projects include six different fields of science: behavioral science, botany, zoology, chemistry, ecology and physics.

The goals of the science fair are to:

— "Stimulate the child's interest, curiosity and desire to explore scientific fields."

— "PROVIDE REAL experiences with the methods by which all scientific knowledge has been gathered."

— "Develop the student's skill in observing accurately and reporting exactly to others."

— "Provide an opportunity for students to gain recognition in the field of science."

— "Promote a unique opportunity for teachers to work with the student on a person-to-person relationship."

Municipal Utility Tax Would Increase Total Bill By 10%

In the past five years, Palatine has received some financial salvation from the state in its increasing of the sales tax and with the start of the state income tax. The sales tax which statute allows to be distributed to municipalities has gradually increased from one-fourth of one cent per dollar, to one-half of one cent to a full cent per dollar.

THE ALLOCATION of a percentage of state income tax to local municipalities in 1969 has also helped the village coffers.

However, such "holding measures" as these state revenues for helping out the village budget have reached their limit. An additional source of revenue is now necessary to balance this year's budget.

Of the total revenues in the village general fund, about one-third is derived from sales tax, which is the single major source of income. Although the total sales tax revenue has increased over the years, the per capita level for sales tax has decreased.

Of the total amount paid by each property owner in his last tax bill, only about seven per cent of the funds went to the Village of Palatine. The rest went to the schools (74 per cent) and to the county and other governmental agencies (19 per cent).

About 42 per cent of the total village seven per cent goes to the public library, the spending of which the village has no control.

About 60 per cent of the remaining amount is spent by the village for salaries of employees. The police department is the next single highest expenditure for the village, primarily because of its size.

Other individual expenditures, such as an increase in insurance rates for hospitalization coverage for employees, the addition of 12 more village employees (six of which will go to the police department), and new equipment (including a new fire truck pumper, an ambulance, police cars and two-way radios), taken totally also create substantial increases in the budget.

These expenses, however, are a natural result of continuing village services at their present level to a larger population, Braun said.

Although the full budget was initially presented to the village board Monday, a working session of the trustees, Braun and village department heads will take place March 12 to hash out the proposal.

Objectors to the budget will be heard not on March 12 but at a regularly scheduled village board meeting to be announced early in April.

LWV Slates School Panel

The Palatine Township League of Women Voters will sponsor a panel discussion on the present and future operations of Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 with four Dist. 15 officials at 8 p.m. tonight in the Gray M. Sanborn School cafeteria, 101 N. Oak, Palatine.

Frank Whiteley, Dist. 15 superintendent; Walter Sundling, board president; William Colburn, assistant superintendent of business; and Milrae Rundle, department director of curriculum planning and development, will be featured speakers at the public forum.

The panel discussion is a result of a two-year study the League has conducted of the elementary school district. During that time League members interviewed administrators and compiled a report on the present status of the district. Copies of this report will be available at tomorrow's meeting.

Under discussion will be the future of Dist. 15, projections for student enrollment and building needs, implications of recent court decisions against property tax support of public schools, curriculum and pilot programs, the new junior high school, food services and teacher-administration relationships.

CONCLUSIONS BASED on the two-year study will be reached by League members after general discussion at April unit meetings. According to League bylaws, a full study of a particular issue is necessary before the League can take a position on any referendum proposed by the school district. However, the League cannot support or oppose individual candidates running for the school board.

The school study has been under the direction of Mrs. Joseph Kriebel, 240 Pleasant Hill. More information on tomorrow's meeting can be obtained by calling Mrs. Robert Long at 358-2211.

Well we have celebrated April Fool's Day a little early this year at my expense. Now I admit they could improve on the picture that runs with this column, but the radical change they provided Monday was a bit much!

I always race to get my paper early (vanity, you know). On Monday I got up early, picked up the paper, and looked for me. When I saw the blonde I raced to the mirror (remember, it was early) to see if I had bleached my hair. When I discovered that wasn't it, I scratched my head and decided somebody goofed! Tammy Meade is the gal who writes the column for the Rolling Meadows Herald, as you may have guessed.

To set the record straight, I have not quit or moved or been censored. Continue calling me with your news and I'm sure we can get it in.

NOW HERE is something for dog owners you won't want to miss. Palatine Park District is now taking registrations for dog obedience classes. Beginners will meet on Monday evening beginning next Monday from 7 to 7:45 and 7:45 to 8:30. Intermediate classes will be from 8:30 until 9:15. The classes will run for 8 weeks.

Dogs will be trained in basic and "off-leash" obedience routine. Also will include sit, heel, recall, long sit, and long down. The cost for these classes will be $10 for residents and $12 for non-residents.

Now maybe Schnooks will learn something. Of course, with a name like Schnooks she has a few strikes against her to begin with.

jurisdiction of the road from the county a few years ago, said yesterday a study is being made for an overpass or underpass at the Palatine-Arlington Heights Road intersection, where cars daily inch their way across two stop-signs located less than 50 yards apart.

However, the study won't be completed for at least four or five years, state officials say, and funding for a major Palatine Road underpass from Rand Road to Arlington Heights Road will come later.

After the five persons were killed at the Rte. 83 overpass, a Cook County Sheriff's policeman recommended a guard rail between the four lanes of traffic to "prevent future deaths" there. But there is still no guard rail at the median strip today.

"THE GUARD RAIL is being considered along with a thousand others . . . but we don't have the money this year," said Carl Kowalski, north area operating engineer for the Illinois Highway Department. "We don't anticipate funds in 1973 either," he said.

The state calls road improvements such as a guard railing an "operational improvement" which must be funded entirely by the state without federal aid. "This is the most serious category for us right now," Kowalski said.

"But if the municipality wants to do it," he said, "then we would be glad to assist. There are thousands of projects like this for us to consider."

Police say they have problems patrolling the road. There is sometimes a question of jurisdiction at the village boundaries. At one intersection, the county has jurisdiction on one side, and Arlington Heights on the other.

Capt. Jack Aldrich of the Arlington Heights police department said, "Frequent drivers on Palatine Road understand the way it is, but the guy who doesn't understand is in trouble."

While Lt. Edward Campeau feels "it is a poor management of laying out the road," a Wheeling policeman said "the frontage roads get people confused." The problem, he said, "is the whole road."

— "Provide students with an opportunity to discover their aptitudes and abilities in science."

— "Promote creative and constructive outlets for students."

WHILE THE GOALS haven't changed, Joe Kiszka deputy superintendent who was responsible for organizing the first district science fair in 1954, says the student projects have become "more sophisticated."

Kiszka said the first science fair at Gray M. Sanborn was not the result of planning by the faculty but came about spontaneously because the students wanted to share their projects with other people. The fair and projects were the outcome of what the students had learned in class and picked up and expanded on in their spare time, said Kiszka.

The competition is a minor point to Kiszka who feels the real value of the fair is teaching students to learn to evaluate failure. "Through their projects, they begin to realize success is a number of defeats and learn to think logically," said Kiszka.

"Our goal is not to make scientists out of them (the students) but the fair does help us identify students with an aptitude for science," said Kiszka.

Herald Wins Top Prize

The highest honor in newspaper design and typography has been awarded to Paddock Publications.

The chain's Arlington Heights Herald was among six first-place winners in the 33rd annual competition of the Inland Daily Press Association, a competition open to newspapers throughout North America.

The Herald was cited as best in its class (letterpress newspapers with circulation between 10,000 and 25,000) during the annual Inland meeting in Houston yesterday. The competition is jointly sponsored by Northwestern University's Medill School of Journalism.

Other first place winners were the Minneapolis Tribune, the Lafayette (Ind.) Journal and Courier, the Wheaton (Ill.) Journal, the Marion (Ind.) Chronicle Tribune, and the Portage (Wis.) Register.

The Inland awards for years have been regarded as the most prestigious in newspaper design and typography — assessing newspaper design and general attractiveness, readability and imagination of makeup. There were 268 entrants in this year's competition.

At the Herald, daily responsibility for design and makeup is under Copy Desk Chief Jim Harvey and copy editors Russ Bath, Tom Jachimiec, Karen Thompson and Ed Workman.

Adoptive Parents Keep Amy

The natural mother of three-year-old Amy Huebert Monday suffered a setback by the Colorado courts in her efforts to regain custody of the child.

El Paso County (Colo.) District Court Judge John Gallagher ruled that Amy could temporarily remain with Mr. and Mrs. Barry Huebert, the child's adoptive parents who reside in Colorado Springs, until a final decision on the custody case is reached.

Attorneys for Mrs. Paula Marshall of Arlington Heights, the natural mother, has asked the Colorado court to uphold a Cook County Court decision made in December ordering the immediate return of Amy to Mrs. Marshall.

The Hueberts refused to observe the Illinois court order, taking their case to the Colorado courts.

Huebert, a chemistry instructor at a Colorado college, accused the Illinois court of having failed to consider the rights of the child, "who is the most vulnerable party."

In Monday's decision, Judge Gallagher denied a motion for a summary judgment sought by Mrs. Marshall's attorneys and also refused to dismiss a petition for custody which had been filed by the Hueberts.

He did approve a motion by the Hueberts asking that an investigation of the child's welfare be carried out by the El Paso County Welfare Department.

Another motion asking that the child

be examined by a psychiatrist or psychologist was rejected by Judge Gallagher.

MRS. SYLVIA DECKER, one of Mrs. Marshall's attorneys, said yesterday the significance of the pending investigation was "not at all spelled out" concerning what effect it will have on the custody proceedings.

Because all persons involved in the Colorado hearings were under court order not to discuss the case with the press, Mrs. Decker would not explain when a decision might be expected.

Although she had previously stated that a federal suit might be filed challenging the validity of jurisdiction of courts in two separate states over the same case, Mrs. Decker said "we don't face that possibility at this time."

The custody battle began shortly after Amy was turned over to the Hueberts for adoption in 1969 when the baby was 13 days old. The adoption was annulled early last year by the Illinois Appellate Court when it ruled Mrs. Marshall, in giving up the child, had been defrauded and under strain and duress.

Cook County Circuit Court Judge Helen McGillicuddy upheld the decision in December, ordering the return of Amy to Mrs. Marshall. When the Hueberts refused, Judge McGillicuddy found them in contempt of court but did not impose a fine.

Promotional Gimmickry Is Here To Stay — 'Socko'

by KEN KAZAK

In the have-not era of the 1930s, people who stood in unemployment or bread lines by day were queuing outside America's absurdly opulent movie palaces by night for entertainment, a special kind of relief that F.D.R.'s alphabet soup agencies couldn't provide.

The down and outers flocked — 70 million annually — to see Hollywood glittering through the gloom of the Depression.

They saw Jimmy Cagney, the sawed-off tough, slug sweet Mae Clark in the kisser with a grapefruit in "Public Enemy."

They heard Clark Gable's sensationally shocking (for that time) put down of Vivian Leigh, about whom he, frankly, didn't give a damn in "Gone With the Wind."

While the movies provided the escape, a promotional gimmick run by theaters across the country was giving the patrons a chance to get something for almost nothing, an irresistible idea at a time when nothing was what plenty of people had.

Two bits bought not only an evening with Jim and Mae and Clark and Vivian. It bought a chance to win prizes ranging from a free hairdo to a new automobile to an eight place setting of not-so-fine china straight from the Sears, Roebuck catalogue.

OLD PROMOTIONAL schemes like that don't really die. They just fade away into abscessed corners of a public relations man's brain, along with master plots to put an Edsel in Everyman's driveway and bring back hula hoops.

And, what do you know, the movie house giveaway gimmick is experiencing a second coming in Rolling Meadows, albeit in a considerably transfigured form.

Picture this: dozens of the city's ladies in waiting (waiting to pick the kids up at noon; waiting for a beauty shop appointment later in the day; are sitting in the Meadows Theater at 9:30 a.m.

They are there to see a free movie and because they are there will have a chance to win prizes being given away across the street at the Rolling Meadows Shopping Center.

A man welcomes the ladies on behalf of the Rolling Meadows Shopping Center Association which, he points out, is sponsoring the free presentation of "The Loves of Isadora," and, oh yes, which would like them to come on over and shop a while after the film.

The ladies all have received lucky numbers along with a list of bargains, special movie day bargains, that the center merchants have provided. They can see if their lucky numbers will win them a cake or a $10 gift certificate or something like that merely by looking in the store windows, where winning numbers have been posted.

So much for the scenario. It's being repeated every month by the shopping center. Promotional gimmickry is here to stay, so the idea is to out-gimmick the other guy.

THE MOVIE idea came to Rolling Meadows from the same source that dreamed up last February's Hawaiian Luau, the summertime West Fest, a glamor clinic that attracted four women, and a kid-kicking Santa Claus. That source is Marty Nash and Aides Inc., Miami, Fla., and not all his ideas have been "socko."

Nash's services are covered by a promotional budget that runs to $35,000 annually. He makes monthly visits to the shopping center to confer with Gwen Murray, resident promo lady who puts Nash's ideas into action.

The reason for all this razzle-dazzle, Mrs. Murray says, is "that you can't sell a shopping center on the stores alone." Nash was hired 18 months ago to put some "hop" in the shopping center, (Continued on page 3)

9 Families Will Never Forget

Policeman Calls Palatine Road 'Engineer Nightmare'

by DOUG RAY

A suburban policeman who patrols the winding Palatine Road expressway calls it "an engineer's nightmare." But the families of nine persons killed in auto accidents on that thoroughfare in less than a year will live with the nightmare for the rest of their lives.

A Florida man died at the congested Palatine and Rand Road intersection in June. Four months later, an Arlington Heights resident lost his life on the roadway near Rte. 53 followed by the death of a Rolling Meadows man at the same location in a separate accident.

One of the worst accidents in Northwest suburban history occurred on a rain-slick Palatine Road overpass at Rte. 82 in Prospect Heights in December. Five persons were killed.

The latest Palatine Road fatality was a 19-year-old youth last week whose car jumped the median strip into oncoming traffic at the Soo Line R.R. tracks in Wheeling.

Local officials, police officers, and the state highway department agree the east-west roadway is a problem. The seven mile expanse from the Village of Palatine to the Tri-State Tollway is often flooded with vehicles, many of them exceeding the maximum speed limits.

The driver must cope with a complex of confusing lights and direction signs, periodic stops and fellow drivers attempting to merge into the fast-moving flow of cars.

WHO IS TO blame for the "hazardous" condition of the express route is uncertain. But motorists, municipal representatives and county and state highway officials all should accept a fair share of the road's present condition.

It all began in 1958 as a unique county highway department road construction plan to link the outlying Northwest suburbs to Chicago by "a junior expressway." Thus, Palatine Road, Cook County's first suburban expressway project.

Original plans showed few entrances and exits at Palatine Road, but soon after construction plans were unveiled, the concept changed.

Much of the land around the new roadway was purchased by speculators who turned the land into housing subdivisions, shopping centers and stores.

Each special interest group wanted it's special interest to be catered to.

Arlington Heights officials urged intersections be built. They said a road without intersections would cut off the northern sector of the village from further development.

Village officials got the intersections and later traffic control signals.

Stop signs were erected at Arlington Heights Road and frontage roads were spawned for eastern Palatine subdivisions.

THE ORIGINAL concept of a junior expressway was defeated and it became little more than a local route for many.

The Schoenbeck Road intersection was called "death corner" by parents of school children who attended a school there and parents threatened to block the roadway.

Some of the original Palatine Road plans of 1958 are still not completed, including an overpass at Rand Road.

Band, Chorus Win 11 Superior Ratings

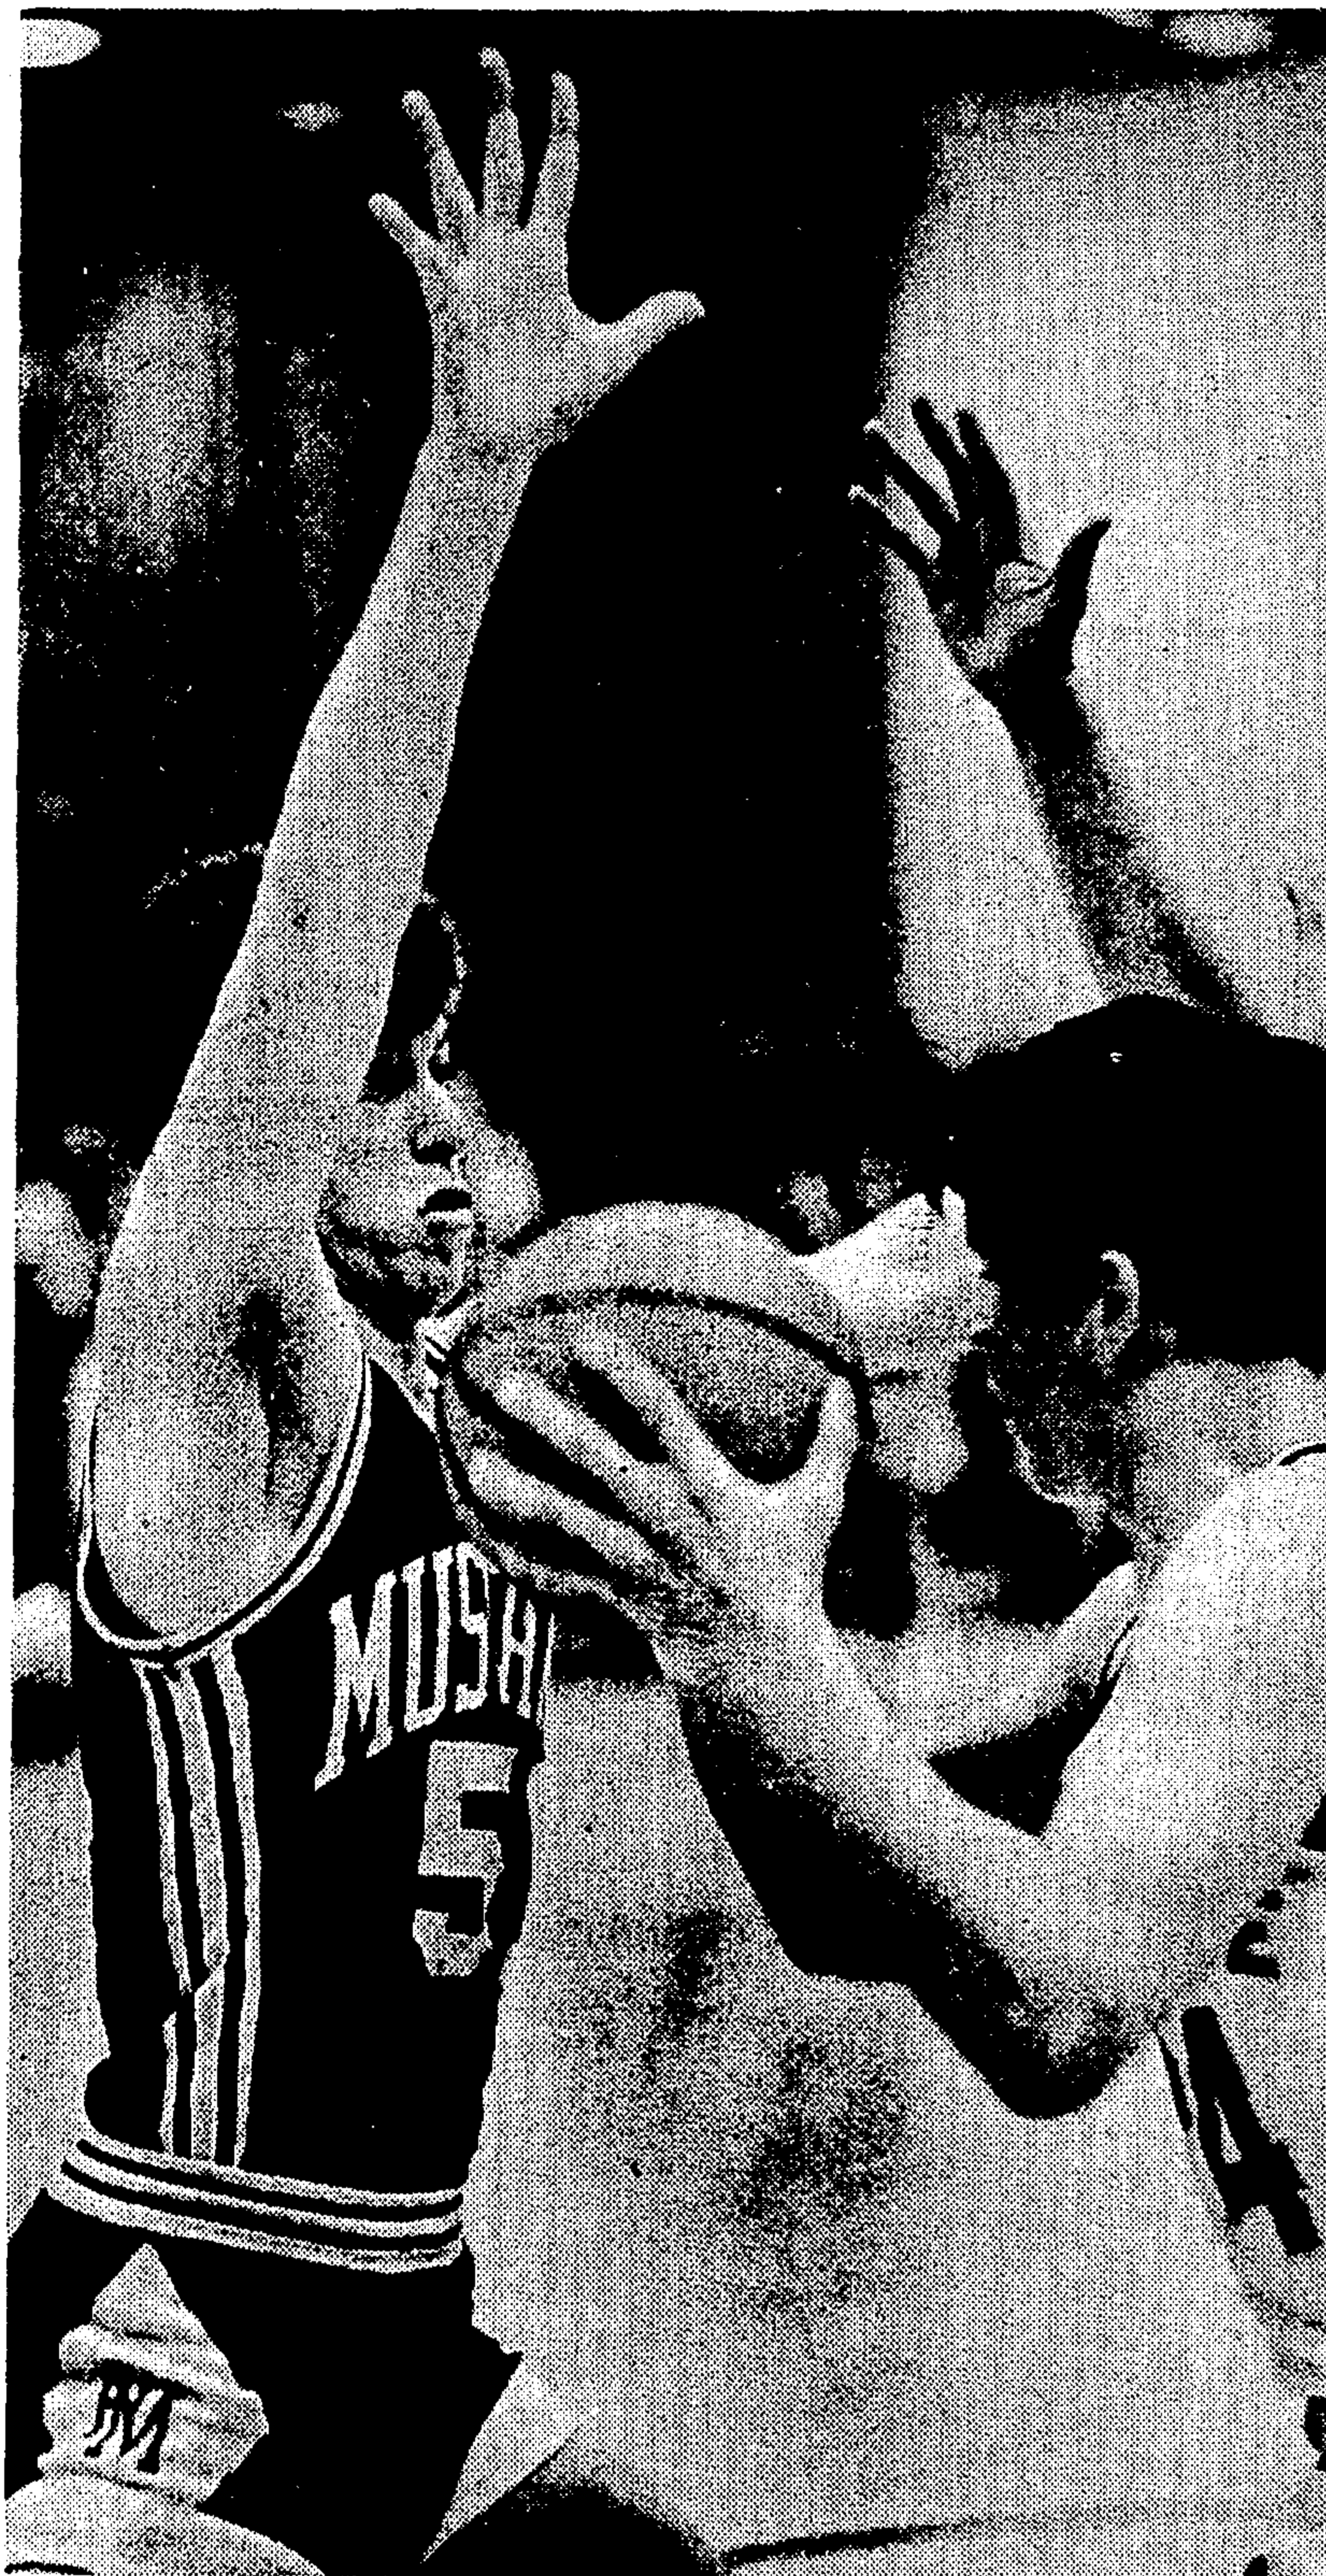

Band and chorus members at Rolling Meadows High School earned 11 superior, six excellent, and two good ratings in the State Music Contest on Saturday.

This was the first competition for both groups. The chorus was under the direction of Fred Schimmelman. Lendell King conducted the band. Accompanists for the soloists were Jeff Snyder and Betsy Heile.

Soloists receiving a superior rating were: Bob Mulley, trumpet; David Gauger, trumpet; Pete Winnikates, trumpet;

Chris Heile, French horn; and Ken Grady, marimba. Those earning an excellent rating were: John Schreiner, tuba; Steve Mamoyac, trumpet; and Jack McClure, percussion. A good rating was awarded to Richard Taylor on the string bass.

Ensembles winning superior ratings were: Madrigal Group, flute trio, woodwind quintet, brass sextet, percussion ensemble and brass choir. Receiving excellent ratings were: girls' single ensemble, string quartet and string duet. A good rating was earned by the Girls Double Ensemble.

Elk Grove won 68-46. The defeat ended Rolling Meadows first basketball season. Elk Grove advanced to play host Hershey last night. Other photos in sports section.

'Bookmobile' Bowling Is Fund Plan

"Project Bookmobile" has decided on a Scotch Doubles Bowling Party as its first fund raising project.

The party will be Saturday, April 8 at 9 p.m. at the Rolling Meadows Bowl. Tickets are $10 a couple which includes a chicken dinner and game prizes.

Funds from the party will go into a "Project Bookmobile" account and be used to convert and equip a government surplus vehicle, when it becomes available, into a bookmobile.

Application for the government surplus vehicle was made through the Rolling Meadows Civil Defense and now it is just a matter of waiting until a suitable vehicle becomes available. The group hopes to get a vehicle with an 18-foot bed.

The bookmobile will be fixed so it can easily be converted for civil defense use in case of an emergency, according to Miss Virginia Connell, librarian.

When a vehicle is obtained it will probably need shelving, a paint job, air conditioning, adequate heating and a motor tune up before it can be used as a bookmobile, said Miss Connell.

Plans for a bookmobile have been under consideration for the last few years. The purpose of the bookmobile will be to make books easily accessible to children west of Rte. 53 and north of Algonquin who cannot walk to the library, shut-ins and senior citizens.

Animated Movies To Be Shown Sundays

A series of four animated movies will be shown at the Rolling Meadows Sports Complex every Sunday during March.

"1,001 Arabian Nights with Mr. Magoo" will be shown on March 5, "Cartoon Frolics" on March 12, "Hey There, It's Yogi Bear" on March 19 and "Puss N' Boots" on March 26.

The movies will all start at 1:30 p.m. and last approximately an hour and a half. Admission is 50 cents for children and $1 for adults.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

The White House announced that Senate leaders Mike Mansfield and Hugh Scott would visit China at the invitation of Premier Chou En-lai. No date has been set but "it probably will be worked out that they will go together," said White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler.

The Pentagon said it stamps the number SPN384 on the records of servicemen discharged for using drugs, permanently identifying them to their prospective employers and supervisors as drug users. Sen. Harold Hughes, D-Iowa, promised legislation to stop the practice.

A mysterious letter released at the trial of the Rev. Philip Berrigan and six others indicates the government's star witness was being paid as an FBI in-former while an inmate at the Lewisburg, Pa., federal prison.

The House voted to authorize government noise standards for new products ranging from motorcycles to rock music amplifiers. The standards would make America a quieter place to live, sponsors said.

The Senate approved a moderate anti-busing compromise after three presidential contenders returned to help kill a proposal which would have prohibited federal judges from ordering busing to integrate schools. The milder restriction, mainly supported by Northern moderates and liberals, would deny federal funds for racial-balance busing unless local school officials freely ask for the money without coercion from Washington.

The World

Gunman shot to death a part-time soldier in the hallway of his home and wounded his 11-year-old daughter, the British Army said. A British soldier and a Northern Ireland policeman were wounded seriously in shooting attacks in Londerry and Newry.

The National Assembly in Taipei issued a statement declaring "null and void any compromise or understanding" President Nixon may have reached with Peking leaders regarding Nationalist China during his weekend visit.

The State

Gov. Richard Ogilvie said education continues to have his highest priority and recommended an increase of 190 million in the budget for elementary and secondary education. In his annual budget message, he estimated $2.073 billion would be spent in fiscal 1973 on all education.

Excitement In School Election?

by JOANN VAN WYE

With only three announced candidates, two incumbents and a virtual unknown, the Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 elections on April 8 hold little promise for excitement.

While it may be a tribute to the incumbents and the present board to have little opposition (maybe none, if the other candidate does not file his nominating petition by the March 17 deadline), it is hardly a tribute to other groups.

There may not be any big campaign issues and a general contentment with the actions of the present board, but there is also a visible lack of representation from certain groups on the board.

The seven members of the current board have diversified occupations which add a certain amount of expertise to the board. They include executive, educator, lawyer, bond expert, management consultant and financial whiz.

REPRESENTATION on the board by area is also mixed with three coming from Rolling Meadows, three from Palatine and one from Inverness. Service on the board ranges from 22 years to one year.

Sounds great but . . . where are the women, the representatives of the Winston Knolls area and the under 40 group?

Since consolidation in 1946, 28 different people have served on the board. Of these only three were women. Hardly what you would call a point for women's lib.

It seems long overdue for women in the district to move out of the realm of PTAs and League of Women Voters and actively seek a seat on the board. In a district that has more than 12,000 students attending kindergarten through eighth grades, there must be a woman with the qualifications necessary to make her an asset to the board.

As for Winston Knolls in Hoffman Estates, in January there were more than 350 children from the area in just kindergarten through sixth grades. The area is the fastest growing in the district at the present time and an elementary school is planned to open in 1973 or 1974 to accommodate children from the area. Yet, they have no direct representation on the board.

THE NEED FOR representation from this area seems especially critical with planning for the elementary school in the area scheduled to start soon. It would seem the people would want to have a voice in the type of school their children will be attending.

Another group lacking representation on the board is the under-40 set. A member of this group might be able to contribute some fresh and innovative ideas to the board. With the 18-year-old vote, a young candidate (if you call under 40 young) would have a large segment of the voters to appeal to.

The election would also be a good opportunity for an ambitious 18 to 21-year-old to gain some notoriety by challenging the state constitution which did not lower the requirement that school board members be 21 years of age or older when it lowered the voting age.

Science Fair Set At High School

Twenty-four projects, representing months of hard work by junior high students, will be on display at the Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 Science Fair Thursday.

Awards for the best projects will be presented at a ceremony at 7:30 p.m. in Plum Grove School in Rolling Meadows. Parents and students will have an opportunity to view the projects following the presentation.

Judging of the projects will be based on the quality of a research paper, an oral presentation, quality of answers to judges' questions, conceptual difficulty of the project and quality of the display.

The students will set up their displays on Wednesday and the judging will take place all day Thursday with the judges spending approximately 20 minutes with each contestant questioning them on their project.

JUDGES THIS YEAR are Mrs. Sandra Martelli of Carl Sandburg School in Rolling Meadows, Darryl Samborski of Stuart Paddock School in Palatine and Mrs. Kay Woelfel and John Meyer of Winston Park School in Palatine.

Thursday's fair will have the first and second place winners from the building fairs at each junior high in the district except Gray M. Sanborn School in Palatine competing against each other. Students receiving first and second place awards at the Dist. 15 fair will be eligible to compete in the suburban fair.

The 24 projects include six different fields of science: behavioral science, botany, zoology, chemistry, ecology and physics.

The goals of the science fair are to: —"Stimulate the child's interest, curiosity and desire to explore scientific fields.

—"PROVIDE REAL experiences with the methods by which all scientific knowledge has been gathered.

—"Develop the student's skill in observing accurately and reporting exactly to others.

—"Provide an opportunity for students to gain recognition in the field of science.

—"Promote a unique opportunity for teachers to work with the student on a person-to-person relationship.

Promotional Gimmickry Is Here To Stay faced with an intruder to the south.

"The main object in bringing in promotional people was to fight Woodfield," Mrs. Murray said, adding she doesn't feel now that Woodfield is as threatening as it was originally feared.

For every rotten Santa Claus or disastrous glamor clinic there are successful West Fests and Luau's. The movie, after a stuttering start, seems to be headed for success.

In February, the show attracted nearly 200 women, the most in three tries. Mrs. Murray said she figures if 250 to 300 show up it's worth the $400 it costs for theater, film and advertising.

The problem with a giveaway, according to Mrs. Murray, is that it's success is directly related to what you're giving away and to what you're including in your "giveaway" sale.

MRS. MURRAY closed her catering shop in the center a year and a half ago to take the promotion job and has learned since then that you can't lure customers by discounting just junk, or merchandise that doesn't normally move.

"It's up to the merchants to offer something attractive enough to get them over here. There's a lot more that could be done. It seems that the same stores are always participating in our promotions," she said.

All the merchants in the center are "taxed" to provide the promotional budget, but Mrs. Murray says $35,000 isn't enough to properly promote the center.

What would she do if she had twice that amount? "I'd go out and get Zippy the Monkey," she said.

Now that would be socko.

Renaming Proposal To City Council

An ordinance to rename a portion of Brookmeade Drive to eliminate confusion caused by the numbering system on that street will go to the Rolling Meadows City Council in the next several weeks.

The proposal asks that a portion of Brookmeade Drive be renamed Brookmeade South.

Brookmeade Drive begins at Central Road and curves south, ending a block north of Algonquin Road. The house numbers begin at 4200 at Central and decrease as Brookmeade winds south.

However in mid-block, the decreasing system ends with a house numbered 3310. The next house south is numbered 4500 and the houses south of there are also numbered in the 4000's.

However, the study won't be completed for at least four or five years, state officials say, and funding for a major Palatine Road underpass from Rand Road to Arlington Heights Road will come later.

After the five persons were killed at the Rte. 83 overpass, a Cook County Sheriff's policeman recommended a guard rail between the four lanes of traffic to "prevent future deaths" there. But there is still no guard rail at the median strip today.

Three eighth grade students from Carl Sandburg Junior High School will be performing at the Schaumburg Festival Theater in William Shakespeare's "A Midsummer Night's Dream" which will be playing this weekend. Performances will be held at the Great Hall, 231 Civic Dr., Schaumburg, this Saturday 8:30 p.m. and Sunday at 1:30 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. Tickets are $2 for adults and $1.25 for students. For groups of over 15, there are discount prices available. For more information, please call 882-1894.

Ken O'Connor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert O'Connor, 3610 Pheasant Dr., plays the role of Starveling, a Rustic (Ken mentioned he's sort of a "Goobertype character"). Ken says he favors comedy roles but has also played Brutus in the play "Julius Caesar" in sixth grade.

Ken is planning to continue in dramatics in high school but his long range plans are to become a Paleontologist (one who studies ancient life and fossils).

Ken's family has lived in Rolling Meadows for 11 years. He has two sisters and a brother who attend Salk School. His other interests include bowling (he belongs to a bowling league) and chess (he's won several ribbons in chess tournaments).

Jerry Rubinkowski, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sigmund Rubinkowski, 3310 Brookmeade Drive, has lived in Rolling Meadows "all my life" and acted in the play entitled "Winning Combination" while in the sixth grade at St. Colette School. Jerry plays the role of "Moth," one of the fairies in the production. Although Jerry enjoys role playing, he's planning to keep it a hobby along with his other interests which include old movies and history.

JOHN SNYDER, son of Mr. and Mrs. Don Snyder, 2203 Fulle Ln., plays the role of "Feather Top," another fairy in the play. John's background in drama includes playing the role of the king in a play presented at Salk School in his third grade year.

John mentioned that his brother, Jeff,

Bishop McManus

To Confirm 225

The Most Rev. William McManus, auxiliary bishop of Chicago, on Sunday will administer the sacrament of confirmation on 225 persons at St. Colette Church in Rolling Meadows.

The sacrament will be administered at 3 p.m., followed by a mass celebrated by Bishop McManus.

Following the ceremonies, Bishop McManus will be present at a reception in the church hall.

—"Provide students with an opportunity to discover their aptitudes and abilities in science.

—"Promote creative and constructive outlets for students."

WHILE THE GOALS haven't changed, Joe Kiszka deputy superintendent who was responsible for organizing the first district science fair in 1954, says the student projects have become "more sophisticated."

Kiszka said the first science fair at Gray M. Sanborn was not the result of planning by the faculty but came about spontaneously because the students wanted to share their projects with other people. The fair and projects were the outcome of what the students had learned in class and picked up and expanded on in their spare time, said Kiszka.

The competition is a minor point to Kiszka who feels the real value of the fair is teaching students to learn to evaluate failure. "Through their projects, they begin to realize success is a number of defeats and learn to think logically," said Kiszka.

"Our goal is not to make scientists out of them (the students) but the fair does help us identify students with an aptitude for science," said Kiszka.

Herald Wins Top Prize

The highest honor in newspaper design and typography has been awarded to Paddock Publications.

The chain's Arlington Heights Herald was among six first-place winners in the 33rd annual competition of the Inland Daily Press Association, a competition open to newspapers throughout North America.

The Herald was cited as best in its class (letterpress newspapers with circulation between 10,000 and 25,000) during the annual Inland meeting in Houston yesterday. The competition is jointly sponsored by Northwestern University's Medill School of Journalism.

Other first place winners were the Minneapolis Tribune, the Lafayette (Ind.) Journal and Courier, the Wheaton (Ill.) Journal, the Marion (Ind.) Chronicle Tribune, and the Portage (Wis.) Register.

The Inland awards for years have been regarded as the most prestigious in newspaper design and typography — assessing newspaper for their general attractiveness, readability and imagination of makeup. There were 268 entrants in this year's competition.

At the Herald, daily responsibility for design and makeup is under Copy Desk Chief Jim Harvey and copy editors Russ Bath, Tom Jachimiec, Karen Thompson and Ed Workman.

Adoptive Parents Keep Amy

The natural mother of three-year-old Amy Huebert Monday suffered a setback by the Colorado courts in her efforts to regain custody of the child.

El Paso County (Colo.) District Court Judge John Gallagher ruled that Amy could temporarily remain with Mr. and Mrs. Barry Huebert, the child's adoptive parents who reside in Colorado Springs, until a final decision on the custody case is reached.

Attorneys for Mrs. Paula Marshall of Arlington Heights, the natural mother, has asked the Colorado court to uphold a Cook County Court decision made in December ordering the immediate return of Amy to Mrs. Marshall.

The Hueberts refused to observe the Illinois court order, taking their case to the Colorado courts.

Huebert, a chemistry instructor at a Colorado college, accused the Illinois court of having failed to consider the rights of the child, "who is the most vulnerable party."

In Monday's decision, Judge Gallagher denied a motion for a summary judgment sought by Mrs. Marshall's attorneys and also refused to dismiss a petition for custody which had been filed by the Hueberts.

He did approve a motion by the Hueberts asking that an investigation of the child's welfare be carried out by the El Paso County Welfare Department.

Another motion asking that the child

be examined by a psychiatrist or psychologist was rejected by Judge Gallagher.

MRS. SYLVIA DECKER, one of Mrs. Marshall's attorneys, said yesterday the significance of the pending investigation was "not at all spelled out" concerning what effect it will have on the custody proceedings.

Because all persons involved in the Colorado hearings were under court order not to discuss the case with the press, Mrs. Decker would not explain when a decision might be expected.

Although she had previously stated that a federal suit might be filed challenging the validity of jurisdiction of courts in two separate states over the same case, Mrs. Decker said "we don't face that possibility at this time."

The custody battle began shortly after Amy was turned over to the Hueberts for adoption in 1969 when the baby was 13 days old. The adoption was annulled early last year by the Illinois Appellate Court when it ruled Mrs. Marshall, in giving up the child, had been defrauded and under strain and duress.

Cook County Circuit Court Judge Helen McGillicuddy upheld the decision in December, ordering the return of Amy to Mrs. Marshall. When the Hueberts refused, Judge McGillicuddy found them in contempt of court but did not impose a fine.

'Necessary For Success In Regional Planning'

Teichert: Must Include Chicago In Transit Plan

Chicago should be included in any regional mass transportation district that would be set up in the Northwest suburban area, according to Mount Prospect Mayor Robert D. Teichert.

Participation by Chicago would be necessary for the success of any regional planning in this area, Teichert said this week. He pointed out inclusion of Chicago would mean inclusion of the Chicago Transit Authority, one of the prime competitors of other area transportation facilities, such as the Chicago and North Western Rwy.

A regional district could set up planning to avoid duplication of services that now exist or that are being planned, according to proponents of such a system as the Chicago Metropolitan Area Transportation System (CMATS).

Arlington Heights Pres. Jack Walsh disagrees with Teichert. He has invited top officials from several key communities to a meeting Saturday at the Arlington Park Towers Hotel to discuss the formation of a single mass transit district that would exclude the City of Chicago.

TEICHERT SAID he supports Walsh's six-county agency plan. (The counties that would be included are Cook, DuPage, Kane, Lake, McHenry and Will.) But he added he would "favor one (district) with all of them, including Chicago."

He said Chicago could very well "back the suburbs" into excluding the city. "If Chicago insists she must control the district, then we will have to leave them out," Teichert said. "Chicago may exclude herself by her posture."

Teichert said one of the major fears of the CMATS plan, which is still pending before the Illinois legislature, is the control factor. As now proposed, CMATS would be governed by a three-member panel — one member appointed by the governor, one by the mayor of Chicago and one selected from a list of nominees suggested by the county boards from the six participating counties.

"The people (out here in the suburbs) want to be sure they are represented population-wise. They want one-man, one-vote for this district. No one wants it a foregone conclusion that all the communities will lend their support to get federal support for the transportation district and then most of the money will go to Chicago," Teichert said.

"WE'RE ALL SOMEWHAT reluctant to endorse CMATS in its present form."

The second major fear of the proposed plan is concerned with how the district will be funded. Currently, the plan calls for use of some Motor Fuel Tax funds, taken from each municipality in the district.

"One of my objections to CMATS is the use of MFT funds," Teichert said. "Most of these funds are committed to five and 10-year programs in Mount Prospect that are desperately needed. We are all working to our maximums (with these funds) now."

Eye 4 Per Cent Budget Hike

Members of the Board of Education of Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 began consideration Monday night of a preliminary budget for the 1972-73 school year which calls for about a 4 per cent increase in the district's education fund.

The budget, prepared by the district's administration, calls for expenditures in eight funds, each requiring its own tax levy. The total for the education fund, which is used for teacher's salaries and educational supplies, is projected to be $8,881,658, about 4 per cent more than the district's expenditures this year.

"This is the basic budget," Supt. James Erviti told the board. "It contains very little that is new or different and it does not reflect any major reductions."

Erviti emphasized that many estimates reflected in the budget may change between now and the time the budget is adopted this summer. He said no estimate has been made of teacher salary increases above the increment for additional experience already contained in the contract and no provision has been made for an increased formula in state aid.

"We don't really know what Gov. Ogilvie meant when he said he would have $91 million for state aid, but we know that some of that money is in increased expense to the state but not extra money to the districts," he said.

The increased expense to the state would result because of a larger number of students in the schools, which will entitle school districts to larger amounts of money figured on a per pupil basis. That increase would not improve the financial position of school districts.

In addition, Erviti said the district is now in the process of paying back $573,000 in supplemental state aid it received when its enrollment was increasing at a rate of more than 2 per cent each year. Because the growth rate is no longer over 2 per cent, if the present state aid formula is continued, the district's share of state aid will decrease by $51,000.

He added that principals, when drawing up budgets, were asked to take into account the declining growth rate. "We expect enrollment in the K-5 (elementary) buildings to go down 3 per cent, so we told the principals their budgets would go down by 3 per cent. Since we expect a 5 per cent increase in the number of pupils in the junior high schools, those budgets increased by that amount," Erviti said.

The preliminary budget calls for issuing $4,427,175 in tax anticipation warrants, in the education fund which will allow the district to borrow 71 per cent of the taxes to be collected in 1973. Legally the district can borrow up to 75 per cent of those taxes.

The district will also issue tax anticipation warrants in the building fund, which is used for building maintenance and to pay custodial salaries, against 63 per cent of the taxes to be collected for that fund in 1973.

The warrant position of both the education and building funds will be slightly improved from last year and from previous years.

The board will meet at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the administration building to begin discussion of individual items in the proposed education fund budget.

Local Boy, 7, Struck By Car

A 7-year-old boy was in critical condition last night at Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines after he was struck by a car on Euclid Avenue near Basswood Lane in Mount Prospect.

A spokeswoman for the hospital said Peter Leclair, of 915 Quince Ln., Mount Prospect, was admitted shortly after 4:30 p.m. yesterday. According to police the boy suffered an apparent skull fracture and multiple cuts.

The car involved in the accident was driven by a juvenile. Police said the driver was charged with failure to yield the right of way.

2 Plead Innocent In Fraud Case

Two Northwest suburban residents have pleaded innocent to charges of fraudulently using the name of the Church of Christ in a $1 million fraud scheme.

Alex Gaus Jr., 1132 Carlyle Ct., Arlington Heights, and Louis Rosanova, 523 We-Go Tr., Mount Prospect, pleaded innocent to charges last week in U.S. District Court in Chicago.

The two are among 19 persons charged with conspiring to bilk more than $1 million from persons who paid fees in return for loans promised from a church fund.

Pretrial motions were continued in both cases and bond set at $50,000 for Rosanova and $150,000 for Gaus.

Business License Fees May Rise 10%

There could be a 10 per cent across-the-board increase in Mount Prospect business license fees this year.

Such a proposal is one of many being studied by the village finance committee. Committee Chairman Donald B. Furst said the increase in fees was a possibility if proposed changes in the fee schedule cannot be effected by May 1, the start of the new fiscal year.

"We would send out just renewal forms with a flat across-the-board raise of 10 per cent for this year," he said. "We have had no increase in fees for several years. Yet a cost study, recently completed, shows that our out-of-pocket expenses run some $30,000 to $34,000 a year while our income from licenses is only $24,000 a year."

The finance committee, which met Monday for the second time with businessmen, has reached some conclusions on business licenses, according to Furst.

The basic proposal, now being worked on by Village Atty. John J. Zimmermann, would have a basic license fee which would be used to cover the processing costs of the license. Then businesses requiring health and/or fire inspections would have an additional amount added to their fees, based on the number of inspections required in a year's time. The fire inspection fee itself would probably be based on the physical size of the business according to a graduated schedule, Furst said.

A cost study, conducted by Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley, gives some breakdown on the costs that businessmen can be expected to pay through their business licenses. According to the study, food handlers would require six health inspections at $84, beauty and barber shops would have two inspections at $24 and food stores would have three inspections at $36. The clerk's offices' costs for processing licenses is about $5 each and four Fire Prevention Bureau inspections costs $33.

Furst said his committee will "progress as rapidly as we can to establish a schedule of fees." He said that the long application form that is now in use will be reserved for only new applications and that renewals will be handled by a simple slip of paper.

Members of the business community have objected to the business license forms and fees on numerous occasions in the past. They have said they feel the forms are too long and ask questions which the village has no right nor need to ask. Their main objection to the fees has been that they are not equitable and that many businesses operate within the village without purchasing a license.

Their first meeting with the finance committee was held Feb. 7.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

The White House announced that Senate leaders Mike Mansfield and Hugh Scott would visit China at the invitation of Premier Chou En-lai. No date has been set but "it probably will be worked out that they will go together," said White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler.

The Pentagon said it stamps the number SPN384 on the records of servicemen discharged for using drugs, permanently identifying them to their prospective employers and supervisors as drug users. Sen. Harold Hughes, D-Iowa, promised legislation to stop the practice.

A mysterious letter released at the trial of the Rev. Philip Berrigan and six others indicates the government's star witness was being paid as an FBI in-former while an inmate at the Lewisburg, Pa., federal prison.

The House voted to authorize government noise standards for new products ranging from motorcycles to rock music amplifiers. The standards would make America a quieter place to live, sponsors said.

The Senate approved a moderate anti-busing compromise after three presidential contenders returned to help kill a proposal which would have prohibited federal judges from ordering busing to integrate schools. The milder restriction, mainly supported by Northern moderates and liberals, would deny federal funds for racial-balance busing unless local school officials freely ask for the money without coercion from Washington.

The World

Gunman shot to death a part-time soldier in the hallway of his home and wounded his 11-year-old daughter, the British Army said. A British soldier and a Northern Ireland policeman were wounded seriously in shooting attacks in Londerry and Newry.

One student was shot and killed and another injured in a shooting at Seal Residence on the Western Illinois University campus in Macomb. Identity of the dead student was withheld, pending notification of relatives.

The State

Gov. Richard Ogilvie said education continues to have his highest priority and recommended an increase of 190 million in the budget for elementary and secondary education. In his annual budget message, he estimated $2.073 billion would be spent in fiscal 1973 on all education.

The War

Communist guerrillas ambushed a major South Vietnamese ammunition convoy, wounding 40 men. In two other battles, government troops reported killing 38 guerrillas in fighting south of Da Nang. In the air war, U.S. B52 bombers hammered the Communist-held A Shau Valley and coastal plains north of the old imperial capital of Hue and struck in the Central Highlands.

The stock market rallied late in the session, closing higher after meandering aimlessly much of the day. The Dow Jones Average climbed 3.84 to 928.13, highest since last March 14. Advances topped declines, 767 to 631, among the 1,752 issues crossing the tape on the New York Stock Exchange. Prices were higher in active trading on the American Stock Exchange.

Response to preschool hearing and vision screening last week in Mount Prospect was "fabulous," according to Joan Wooten, SLIDES hearing consultant.

All week the jumbo blue and yellow Slidesmobile was parked near the Lions Park Recreation Center. Bundled-up tots, with their moms, scampered in and out each day.

By the time the Slidesmobile headed for its next post, almost 600 local 3 and 4 year olds had been tested.

Early childhood is the best time to screen, Miss Wooten pointed out. Allergies are at their peak at this age and may cause hearing losses. Also a child with an undiscovered "lazy eye" may eventually lose all sight in that eye.

"Usually we're lucky to get half of the eligible children to come for screening," said Miss Wooten, an audiologist. "And ordinarily it's more like one-third." Of the 1,000 children who will enter School Dist. 57 kindergartens during the next two years, more than half were tested.

"Mount Prospect parents have consistently shown interest and concern in their children," according to Miss Wooten. "Last year we tested about 400 children here. We would like to have this enthusiastic response in all 49 school districts we cover. Then we'd need a couple of extra months each year to do the screening."

Miss Wooten credits Beverly Doering, a Dist. 57 nurse, with the excellent response to the program. Mrs. Doering, who acted as screening coordinator, was assisted by many volunteers.

Testing however, was done by four specially trained and certified technicians. Since they test 9,000 and 12,000 children each year, they have also had many hours of on-the-job experience.

Each year about 3 per cent of the preschoolers checked found to have hearing losses requiring medical attention. About 13 or 14 of those have problems serious enough to require special education services. Another 3 per cent of the preschoolers are referred to doctors for vision problems — chiefly the "lazy eye" condition.

"If a child is totally deaf or blind, his parents discover this early. We are looking for the 'borderline child' who may be overlooked," explained Miss Wooten.

She feels it's important to uncover problems early so they can be corrected before the child starts school. A child with a hearing loss due to allergies, for instance, would have trouble developing his vocabulary. He would begin school with a double handicap.

"This child has lost those precious years of growth," said Miss Wooten. "We want to get special services started early. Many people don't know a child is eligible for special services at age 3. When we find a child with a vision or hearing problem, we notify his school district."

SLIDES, which stands for Suburban Low Incidence Development of Exemplary Services, is based in Park Ridge. It provides special health services for north and northwest Cook County and part of Lake County under the Superintendent of Public Instruction.

If you have a preschool child who missed the screening, you may call 696-2040 to set up an appointment with the mobile unit in a nearby district.

The Palatine Rd. Hazard

by DOUG RAY

A suburban policeman who patrols the winding Palatine Road expressway calls it "an engineer's nightmare." But the families of nine persons killed in auto accidents on that thoroughfare in less than a year will live with the nightmare for the rest of their lives.

A Florida man died at the congested Palatine and Rand Road intersection in June. Four months later, an Arlington Heights resident lost his life on the roadway near Rte. 53 followed by the death of a Rolling Meadows man at the same location in a separate accident.

One of the worst accidents in Northwest suburban history occurred on a rain-slick Palatine Road overpass at Rte. 83 in Prospect Heights in December. Five persons were killed.

The latest Palatine Road fatality was a 19-year-old youth last week whose car jumped the median strip into oncoming traffic at the Soo Line R.R. tracks in Wheeling.

Local officials, police officers, and the state highway department agree the east-west roadway is a problem. The seven-mile expanse from the Village of Palatine to the Tri-State Tollway is often flooded with vehicles, many of them exceeding the maximum speed limits.

The driver must cope with a complex of confusing lights and direction signs, periodic stops and fellow drivers attempting to merge into the fast-moving flow of cars.

WHO IS TO blame for the "hazardous" condition of the express route is uncertain. But motorists, municipal representatives and county and state highway officials all should accept a fair share of the road's present condition.

It all began in 1958 as a unique county highway department road construction plan to link the outlying Northwest suburbs to Chicago by "a junior expressway." Thus, Palatine Road, Cook County's first suburban expressway project.

Original plans showed few entrances and exits at Palatine Road, but soon after construction plans were unveiled, the concept changed.

Much of the land around the new roadway was purchased by speculators who turned the land into housing subdivisions, shopping centers and stores.

Each special interest group wanted it's special interest to be catered to.

Arlington Heights officials urged intersections be built. They said a road without intersections would cut off the northern sector of the village from further development.

Village officials got the intersections and later traffic control signals.

Stop signs were erected at Arlington Heights Road and frontage roads were spawned for eastern Palatine subdivisions.

THE ORIGINAL concept of a junior expressway was defeated and it became little more than a local route for many.

The Schoenbeck Road intersection was called "death corner" by parents of school children who attended a school there and parents threatened to block the roadway.

Some of the original Palatine Road plans of 1958 are still not completed, including an overpass at Rand Road.

State highway officials, who took over jurisdiction of the road from the county a few years ago, said yesterday a study is being made for an overpass or underpass at the Palatine-Arlington Heights Road intersection, where cars daily inch their way across two stop-signs located less than 50 yards apart.

However, the study won't be completed for at least four or five years, state officials say, and funding for a major Palatine Road overpass from Rand Road to Arlington Heights Road will come later.

Suspended Elgin Hospital MD (?) Faces Discharge

Ricardo Munoz-Velez, figure of an investigation concerning 200 patients deaths at Elgin State Hospital, will be automatically discharged after 30 days if he fails to argue his suspension issued yesterday.

Although no criminal charges have been placed against Munoz, he has been implicated for practicing medicine without adequate credentials and for poor judgment in the treatment of up to 200 patients who died at the state institution.

Kane County States Atty. William Ketchum, meantime, is working with hospital authorities on an investigation of Munoz's credentials.

Ketchum also awaits a report he requested from Dr. George Leroy, of the University of Chicago, who has reviewed the 200 deaths.

Leroy yesterday refused to discuss the report, and termed news items about the exhumation of bodies a "fabrication."

Dr. Douglas Norcross, administrative assistant at Elgin State Hospital, took strong exception to the 200 deaths figure released by Ketchum.

"WE DON'T DENY the seriousness of the matter and personally started investigation of Dr. Munoz in November when staff reports of bizarre or questionable treatment were studied," said Norcross.

"However, Dr. Munoz took care of 25 cases, not 200, and it is those 25 cases that our staff and civil service board will be investigating," said Norcross.

Ketchum said late Tuesday his investigation concerns 200 patient deaths at the hospital in the period between April 1969 and August 1971.

"Dr. Munoz' name was in every one of those files. One way or the other he was concerned with their cases," said Ketchum.

Adoptive Parents Keep Amy

The natural mother of three-year-old Amy Huebert Monday suffered a setback by the Colorado courts in her efforts to regain custody of the child.

El Paso County (Colo.) District Court Judge John Gallagher ruled that Amy could temporarily remain with Mr. and Mrs. Barry Huebert, the child's adoptive parents who reside in Colorado Springs, until a final decision on the custody case is reached.

Attorneys for Mrs. Paula Marshall of Arlington Heights, the natural mother, has asked the Colorado court to uphold a Cook County Court decision made in December ordering the immediate return of Amy to Mrs. Marshall.

The Hueberts refused to observe the Illinois court order, taking their case to the Colorado courts.

Huebert, a chemistry instructor at a Colorado college, accused the Illinois court of having failed to consider the rights of the child, "who is the most vulnerable party."

In Monday's decision, Judge Gallagher denied a motion for a summary judgment sought by Mrs. Marshall's attorneys and also refused to dismiss a petition for custody which had been filed by the Hueberts.

He did approve a motion by the Hueberts asking that an investigation of the child's welfare be carried out by the El Paso County Welfare Department.

Another motion asking that the child

be examined by a psychiatrist or psychologist was rejected by Judge Gallagher.

MRS. SYLVIA DECKER, one of Mrs. Marshall's attorneys, said yesterday the significance of the pending investigation was "not at all spelled out" concerning what effect it will have on the custody proceedings.

Because all persons involved in the Colorado hearings were under court order not to discuss the case with the press, Mrs. Decker would not explain when a decision might be expected.

Although she had previously stated that a federal suit might be filed challenging the validity of jurisdiction of courts in two separate states over the same case, Mrs. Decker said "we don't face that possibility at this time."

The custody battle began shortly after Amy was turned over to the Hueberts for adoption in 1969 when the baby was 13 days old. The adoption was annulled early last year by the Illinois Appellate Court when it ruled Mrs. Marshall, in giving up the child, had been defrauded and under strain and duress.

Cook County Circuit Court Judge Helen McGillicuddy upheld the decision in December, ordering the return of Amy to Mrs. Marshall. When the Hueberts refused, Judge McGillicuddy found them in contempt of court but did not impose a fine.

Asks For Housing Commission

Committee Urges Support For Low-Income Housing

The low and moderate-income housing study committee last night put the finishing touches on its final report calling on the Arlington Heights Village Board to create a local housing commission and adopt a four-point resolution in support of low and moderate-income housing.

A joint meeting of the village board and the plan commission to review the report was set for March 13.

It was out of a similar joint meeting held Sept. 28, 1970, that the low and moderate-income housing committee was formed.

The creation of a local housing commission is recommended as the first step in a two-year housing program that would have among its goals, making available 50 units of low-income housing and 150 to 250 units of moderate-income housing.

COMMITTEE MEMBER Dave Patterson said last night that he was personally dissatisfied with the recommended 150 to 250 units because he felt that number of units would rule out one of the report's other recommendations that emphasizes the importance of scattered sites.

Patterson said he would prefer to see a "pilot program" of low and moderate-income housing that would involve far fewer units. He said he would write a letter for inclusion in the report outlining his differences with the 60-page document.

The report recommends that the housing commission have a number of powers and responsibilities. Among other things it could work with qualified private developers, serve as a liaison with other governmental housing authorities, and continually review local building codes and zoning ordinances.

Committee member Dwight Walton called the housing commission "an important safeguard" toward insuring the quality of any low and moderate-income housing built in Arlington Heights.

"Low and moderate-income housing as presented in this report has more factoring than anything else I have seen in my term on the (village) board," Walton said. "And that is good, because it (low and moderate-income housing) is the unknown."

THE RESOLUTION proposed by the study committee for adoption by the village board sets forth four goals for housing in Arlington Heights.

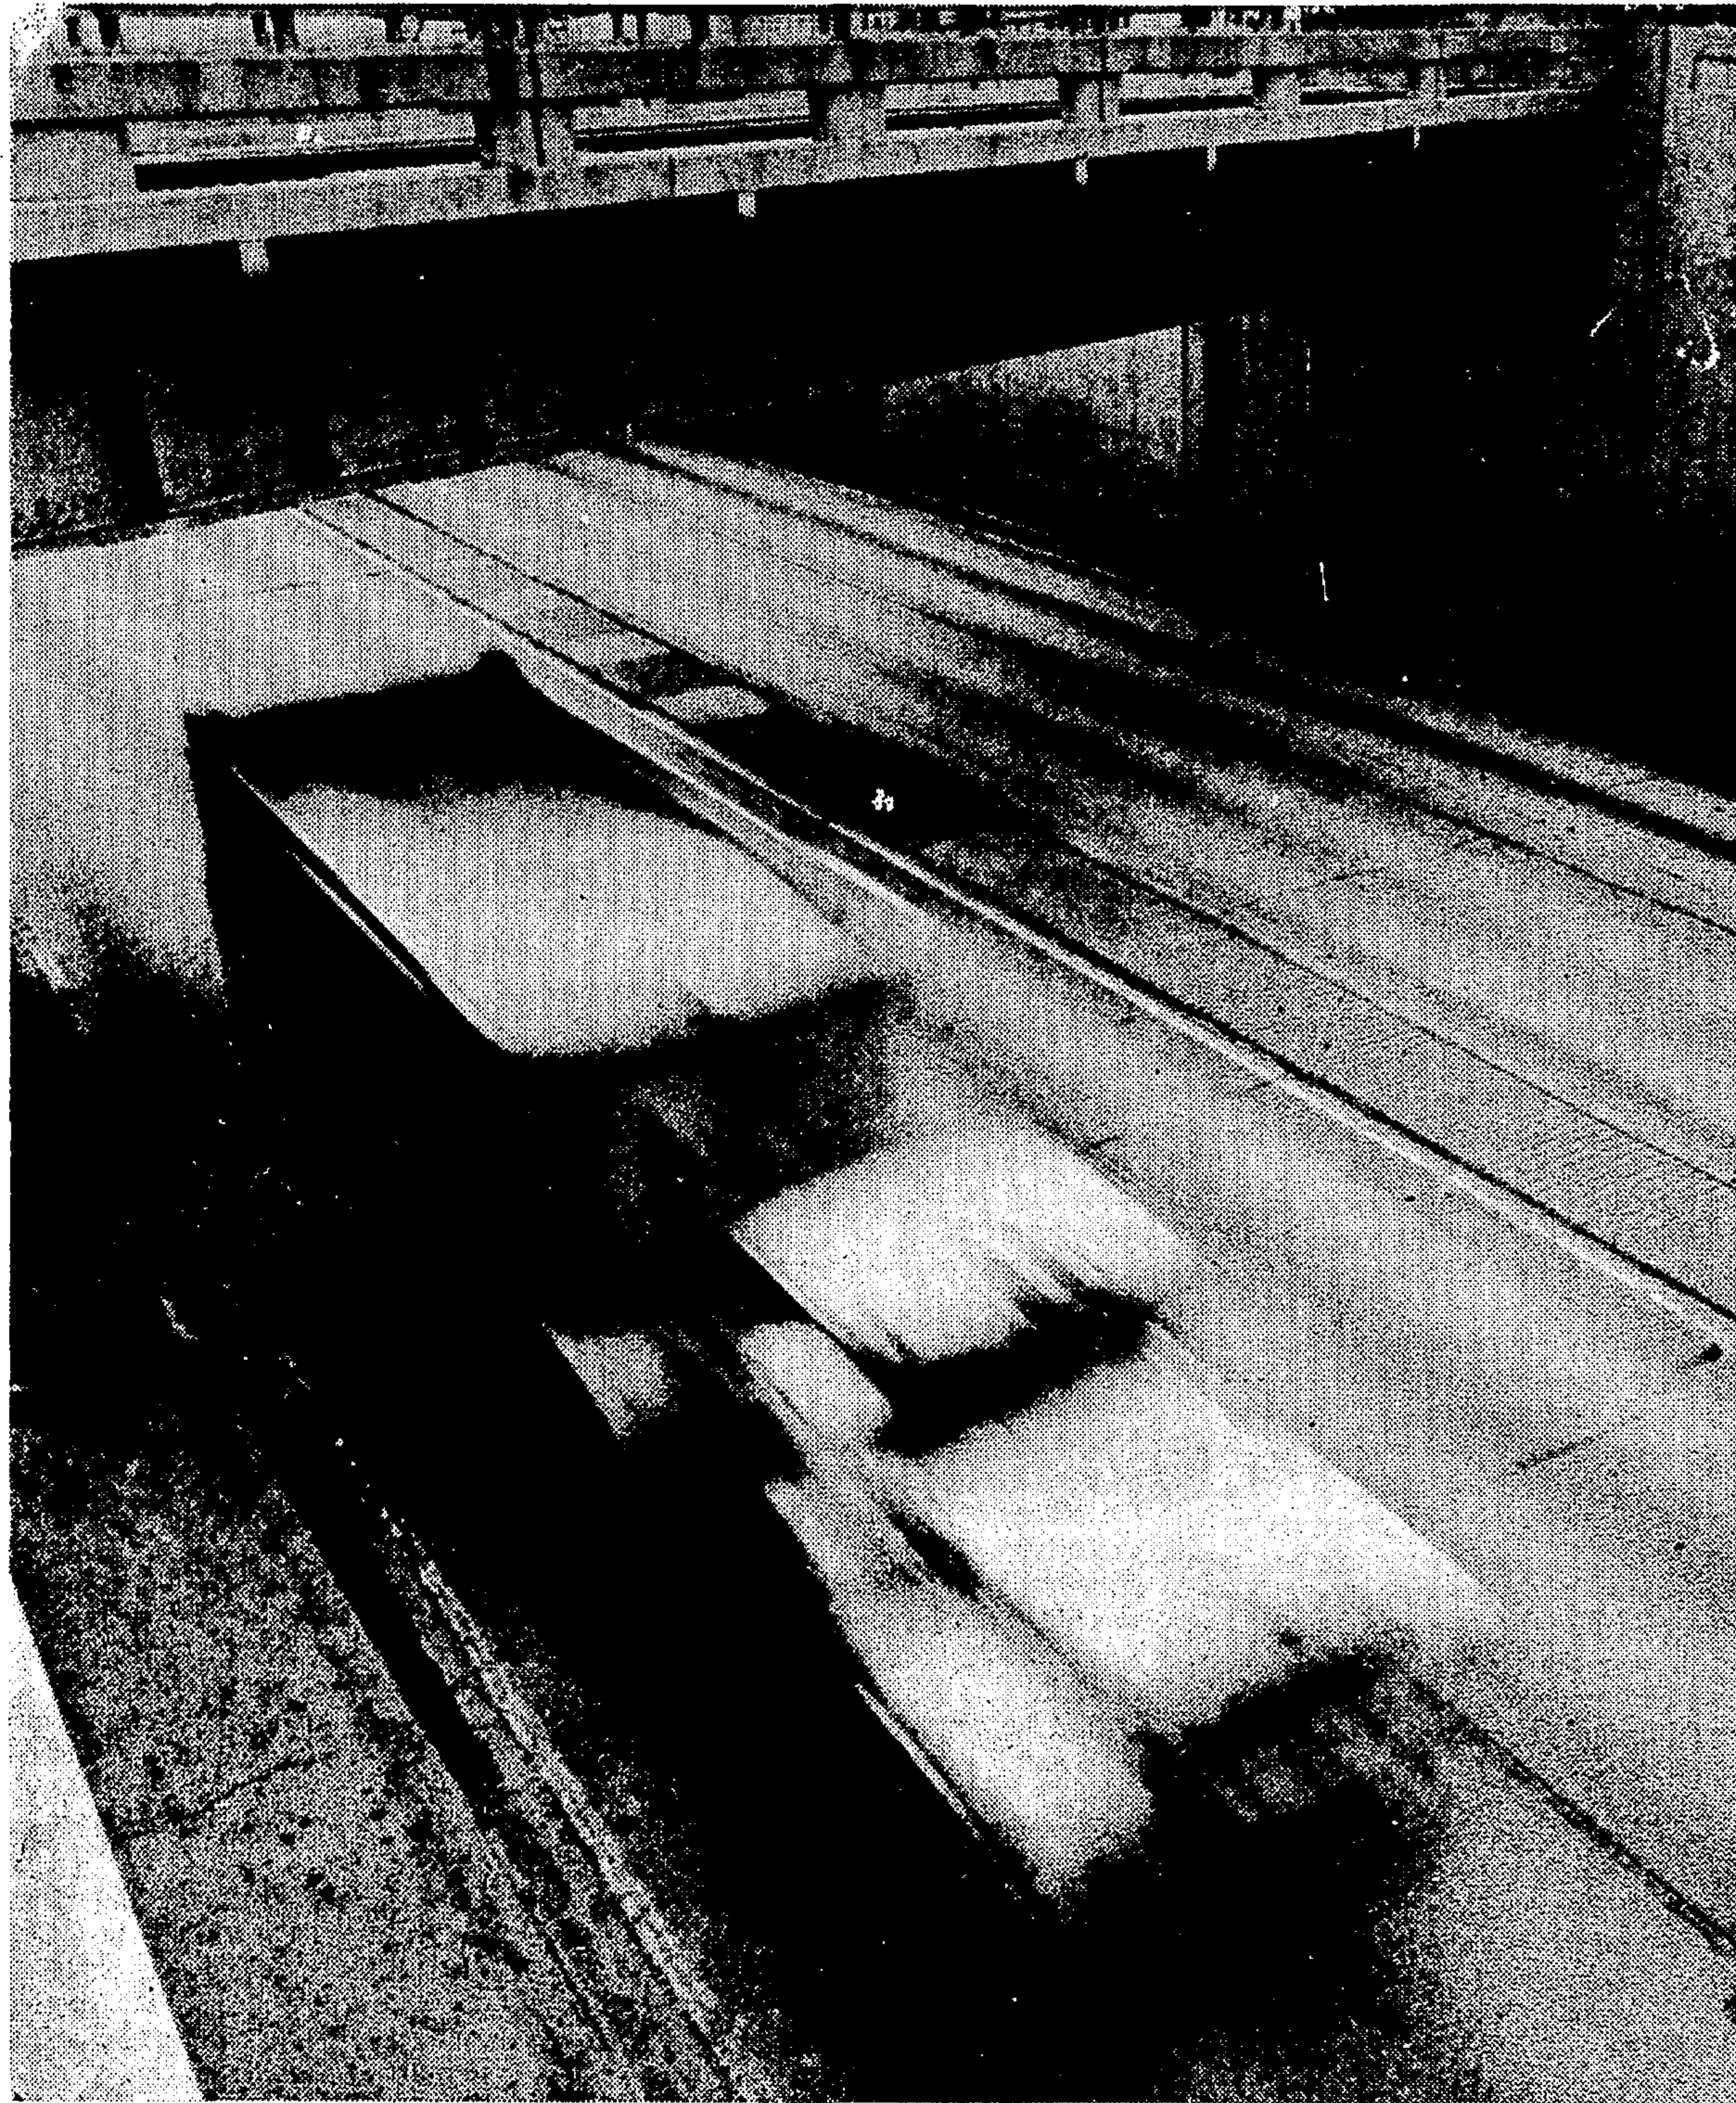

—To promote adequate housing for all the community's people.

—To create and/or maintain sound viable neighborhoods in the process of housing those people.

—To meet the needs for housing by increasing the number of housing units for low and moderate-income families and individuals.

—To expand housing opportunities for all members of this community.

The report also recommends that increased pressure be brought to bear on the Cook County Housing Authority and the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development to secure the 120 units of senior citizen housing for which the village has already made application.

The Palatine Rd. Hazard

by DOUG RAY

A suburban policeman who patrols the winding Palatine Road expressway calls it "an engineer's nightmare." But the families of nine persons killed in auto accidents on that thoroughfare in less than a year will live with the nightmare for the rest of their lives.

A Florida man died at the congested Palatine and Rand Road intersection in June. Four months later, an Arlington Heights resident lost his life on the road-way near Rte. 53 followed by the death of a Rolling Meadows man at the same location in a separate accident.

One of the worst accidents in Northwest suburban history occurred on a rain-slick Palatine Road overpass at Rte. 83 in Prospect Heights in December. Five persons were killed.

The latest Palatine Road fatality was a 19-year-old youth last week whose car jumped the median strip into oncoming traffic at the Soo Line R.R. tracks in Wheeling.

Local officials, police officers, and the state highway department agree the east-west roadway is a problem. The seven mile expanse from the Village of Palatine to the Tri-State Tollway is often flooded with vehicles, many of them exceeding the maximum speed limits.

The driver must cope with a complex of confusing lights and direction signs, periodic stops and fellow drivers attempting to merge into the fast-moving flow of cars.

WHO IS TO blame for the "hazardous" condition of the express route is uncertain. But motorists, municipal representatives and county and state highway officials all should accept a fair share of the road's present condition.

It all began in 1958 as a unique county highway department road construction plan to link the outlying Northwest suburbs to Chicago by "a junior expressway." Thus, Palatine Road, Cook County's first suburban expressway project.

Original plans showed few entrances and exits at Palatine Road, but soon after construction plans were unveiled, the concept changed.

Much of the land around the new roadway was purchased by speculators who turned the land into housing subdivisions, shopping centers and stores.

Each special interest group wanted it's special interest to be catered to.

Arlington Heights officials urged intersections be built. They said a road without intersections would cut off the northern sector of the village from further development.

Village officials got the intersections and later traffic control signals.

Stop signs were erected at Arlington Heights Road and frontage roads were spawned for eastern Palatine subdivisions.

THE ORIGINAL concept of a junior expressway was defeated and it became little more than a local route for many.

The Schoenbeck Road intersection was called "death corner" by parents of school children who attended a school there and parents threatened to block the roadway.

Some of the original Palatine Road plans of 1958 are still not completed, including an overpass at Rand Road.

State highway officials, who took over jurisdiction of the road from the county a few years ago, said yesterday a study is being made for an overpass or underpass at the Palatine-Arlington Heights Road intersection, where cars daily inch their way across two stop-signs located less than 50 yards apart.

However, the study won't be completed

Herald Wins Top Prize

The highest honor in newspaper design and typography has been awarded to Paddock Publications.

The chain's Arlington Heights Herald was among six first-place winners in the 33rd annual competition of the Inland Daily Press Association, a competition open to newspapers throughout North America.

The Herald was cited as best in its class (letterpress newspapers with circulation between 10,000 and 25,000) during the annual Inland meeting in Houston yesterday. The competition is jointly sponsored by Northwestern University's Medill School of Journalism.

Other first place winners were the Minneapolis Tribune, the Lafayette (Ind.) Journal and Courier, the Wheaton (Ill.) Journal, the Marion (Ind.) Chronicle Tribune, and the Portage (Wis.) Register.

The Inland awards for years have been regarded as the most prestigious in newspaper design and typography — assessing newspapers for their general attractiveness, readability and imagination of makeup. There were 268 entrants in this year's competition.

At the Herald, daily responsibility for design and makeup is under Copy Desk Chief Jim Harvey and copy editors Russ Bath, Tom Jachimiec, Karen Thompson and Ed Workman.

Mass Transit Planning Parley Saturday

SEE RELATED STORY ON PAGE 3.

Though the interest of 270 suburban communities in six counties will be represented, only six or seven municipalities will send representatives to a Saturday meeting to discuss formation of a single mass transit district that would exclude the City of Chicago.

The meeting at the Arlington Park Towers Hotel is being organized by Arlington Heights Village Pres. Jack Walsh to test support for the formation of a single transit district that Walsh hopes would put suburban communities on a more equal footing with Chicago in securing funds for mass transit.

Results of the meeting among top officials from key communities in Cook, Lake, DuPage, Kane, McHenry and Will counties will be communicated to the officers of other municipalities in the six-county region.

It was not known yesterday which communities would attend.

The Arlington Heights Village Board Feb. 21 adopted a resolution in support of a single suburban mass transit district with a stipulation that representation on the governing board of any such district should be on a one-man-one-vote basis.

The Chicago Metropolitan Area Transportation System (CMATS) bill would create a single metropolitan mass transit district including the Chicago Transit Authority.

The bill, which has had the strong backing of the Chicago and North Western Rwy., proposes a three-member governing panel. One member would be appointed by the governor, a second named by the mayor of Chicago, and a third by the governor from a list of nominees suggested by the county boards of the six counties.

Walsh has said the mayors Saturday may decide to do nothing about creating the new transit district or may agree to pursue sub-regional mass transit authorities if they do not think a single, six-county district is feasible.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

The White House announced that Senate leaders Mike Mansfield and Hugh Scott would visit China at the invitation of Premier Chou En-lai. No date has been set but "it probably will be worked out that they will go together," said White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler.

The Pentagon said it stamps the number SPN384 on the records of servicemen discharged for using drugs, permanently identifying them to their prospective employers and supervisors as drug users. Sen. Harold Hughes, D-Iowa, promised legislation to stop the practice.

A mysterious letter released at the trial of the Rev. Philip Berrigan and six others indicates the government's star witness was being paid as an FBI in-former while an inmate at the Lewisburg, Pa., federal prison.

The House voted to authorize government noise standards for new products ranging from motorcycles to rock music amplifiers. The standards would make America a quieter place to live, sponsors said.

The Senate approved a moderate anti-busing compromise after three presidential contenders returned to help kill a proposal which would have prohibited federal judges from ordering busing to integrate schools. The milder restriction, mainly supported by Northern moderates and liberals, would deny federal funds for racial-balance busing unless local school officials freely ask for the money without coercion from Washington.

The World

Gunman shot to death a part-time soldier in the hallway of his home and wounded his 11-year-old daughter, the British Army said. A British soldier and a Northern Ireland policeman were wounded seriously in shooting attacks in Londerry and Newry.

One student was shot and killed and another injured in a shooting at Seal Residence on the Western Illinois University campus in Macomb. Identity of the dead student was withheld, pending notification of relatives.

The State

Gov. Richard Ogilvie said education continues to have his highest priority and recommended an increase of 190 million in the budget for elementary and secondary education. In his annual budget message, he estimated $2.073 billion would be spent in fiscal 1973 on all education.

The Slow Wheels Of Government

by CINDY TEW

The wheels of government move slowly, and sometimes the wheels of government seem to be locked.

The Arlington Heights Board of Trustees handling of the Cultural Commission's request for $25,000 for feasibility studies for a cultural center is a good example of such a deadlock. A split vote, 3-3, on whether to allocate the money has once again halted progress on a cultural center this time until March 15.

Ralph Clabour, the lone trustee not at the Cultural Committee hearing Monday night, will come back from a business trip to take the spotlight, and cast the deciding vote on March 15. Unless the other six trustees change their minds, Clabour will have the power to decide on the fate of the Cultural Commission.

AND ALTHOUGH the Arlington Heights Park District's commissioners approved a site to build a theater, they have been thinking about it since 1962. The park district and Village Theater, Inc. discussed theater possibilities for five years before the village came up with the idea for a cultural center.

Even though a decision on a site location was reached Monday night, it was after a lengthy discussion and a 3-1 split in the voting.

The park board has designated about one acre of land at Frontier Park, 1933 N. Kennicott, to build a theater and parking lot. After the building is completed, Village Theater, Inc., will give the new theater to the park district, which will have the final say in all matters related to the building.

"Of course the Village Theater will have some guaranteed usage of the building," said Thomas Thornton, director of parks and recreation.

Though members of the Cultural Commission which was formed in fall, 1969 are convinced that a cultural center is a necessity in Arlington Heights, they still seem to have their heads either far in the future, or in the clouds, when it comes to financial realities.

Even culture has to be kept in perspective.

It's no wonder that the trustees are hesitant to o.k. a million-dollar project. But the least they could do is either give the Cultural Commission the green light in the form of some working cash or let the seven members off the hook.

IN A LITTLE over two weeks, since Village Theater Pres. Robert Hawley asked the park board for a site for a small theater, the park district and Village Theater, Inc., have gone farther in bringing a reasonably-sized theater to Arlington Heights than the Cultural Commission and village board has done in over two years.

With plans progressing for a theater on park property, at least the village board won't be cutting off all cultural pursuits by disbanding the Cultural Commission.

On the other hand, $3,100 already has been spent on preliminary work for a cultural center, and perhaps it will be desirable in the future. It would be a shame to just junk all the work that has been done and start from scratch at some time in the future.

Cites Chicago Transit Role Need

Chicago should be included in any regional mass transportation district that would be set up in the Northwest suburban area, according to Mount Prospect Mayor Robert D. Teichert.

Participation by Chicago would be necessary for the success of any regional planning in this area, Teichert said this week. He pointed out inclusion of Chicago would mean inclusion of the Chicago Transit Authority, one of the prime competitors of other area transportation facilities, such as the Chicago and North Western Rwy.

A regional district could set up planning to avoid duplication of services that now exist or that are being planned, according to proponents of such a system as the Chicago Metropolitan Area Transportation System (CMATS).

Arlington Heights Pres. Jack Walsh disagrees with Teichert. He has invited top officials from several key communities to a meeting Saturday at the Arlington Park Towers Hotel to discuss the formation of a single mass transit district that would exclude the City of Chicago.

TEICHERT SAID he supports Walsh's six-county agency plan. (The counties that would be included are Cook, DuPage, Kane, Lake, McHenry and Will.) But he added he would "favor one (district) with all of them, including Chicago."

He said Chicago could very well "back the suburbs" into excluding the city. "If Chicago insists she must control the district, then we will have to leave them out," Teichert said. "Chicago may exclude herself by her posture."

Teichert said one of the major fears of the CMATS plan, which is still pending before the Illinois legislature, is the control factor. As now proposed, CMATS would be governed by a three-member panel — one member appointed by the governor, one by the mayor of Chicago and one selected from a list of nominees suggested by the county boards from the six participating counties.

"The people (out here in the suburbs) want to be sure they are represented population-wise. They want one-man, one-vote for this district. No one wants it a foregone conclusion that all the communities will lend their support to get federal support for the transportation district and then most of the money will go to Chicago," Teichert said.

"WE'RE ALL SOMEWHAT reluctant to endorse CMATS in its present form."

The second major fear of the proposed plan is concerned with how the district will be funded. Currently, the plan calls for use of some Motor Fuel Tax funds, taken from each municipality in the district.

"One of my objections to CMATS is the use of MFT funds," Teichert said. "Most of these funds are committed to five and 10-year programs in Mount Prospect that are desperately needed. We are all working to our maximums (with these funds) now."

More 'Waves' Crop Up Over Cove

The planned Frenchman's Cove development adjacent to the Mill Creek subdivision has survived a long struggle with Arlington Heights — but Buffalo Grove residents presented some new obstacles Monday night at the workshop session of the Buffalo Grove village board.

Representatives from the newly-formed Mill Creek Homeowners Association told the board they object to proposed traffic patterns of the 42-acre tract, which will include six four-story condominiums (450 units) and 39 single-family dwellings.

Estimating that as many as 1,000 cars might be owned by residents of the development, Mill Creek residents said traffic would be a problem.

Frenchman's Cove, a long, rectangular area sandwiched between Mill Creek of Buffalo Grove and Arlington Heights' Northgate area, has three planned street entrances. The main drive would come from Dundee on the north, with other connections at Old Post Road in Mill Creek on the west and at Carriage Way or Pear Tree Road at the southeast corner.

George Van Hoorbeke, vice president of the Mill Creek Homeowners Association, told the board the Old Post Road connection would funnel most of the traffic onto Mill Creek streets, causing a "racetrack" to the train stations in the mornings.

VILLAGE TRUSTEE Randall Rathjen suggested proper steps be taken to vacate the end of Old Post Road so it could be cut off by Buffalo Grove, but Village Pres. Gary Armstrong suggested the board wait a while before taking any action.

Armstrong said the board should advise the Arlington Heights Plan Commission officially, and "tell what our attitudes are at that time." Armstrong did indicate the board was in sympathy with the Mill Creek residents, and something would be done before construction is complete in Frenchman's Cove.

Van Hoorbeke pointed out that although Frenchman's Cove is adjacent to Arlington Heights, only on the east side along Northgate, there are no roads planned between the two.

The Northgate Civic Association appeared before the Arlington Heights Village Board in November, 1971, asking special attention be given to the proposed traffic patterns. Representatives said there was a need to separate single-family residences from high-density traffic the development would generate.

So far the phase I of Frenchman's Cove has been approved by Arlington Heights. That phase is the northernmost section, and includes two of the condominium buildings. Traffic problems are not expected until completion of phase II which includes the Old Post Road connection.

Van Hoorbeke said a tentative plan to cut out the Carriage Way connection has been accepted by the homeowners association. It would be replaced with a fire and police lane which would be closed to normal traffic.

FRENCHMAN'S COVE developer, Illinois Central Industries, has had difficulty since the construction was first planned. Buffalo Grove turned down annexation of the area in 1969 because of a high density population expected in the units, and Arlington Heights subsequently annexed the strip of land.

But approval of the planned development was deferred in 1971 because Northgate residents felt there would be a flooding problem, in addition to the heavy traffic situation.

A representative of Dist. 21, also complained that a proposed school and park site in the development was "completely unusable as far as the school was concerned."

The Arlington Heights Plan Commission later in the year recommended denial of the development due to the flood problems, insufficient land for the school district and the high-density nature of the condominiums.

The difficulties were later worked out when the developer allowed more land for the school and park and agreed to put in retention basins to control flooding. Plans were also changed to include underground parking in the first building.

Although phase I was approved last November, construction has not yet begun.

Palatine Road—

for at least four or five years, state officials say, and funding for a major Palatine Road underpass from Rand Road to Arlington Heights Road will come later.

After the five persons were killed at the Rte. 83 overpass, a Cook County Sheriff's policeman recommended a guard rail between the four lanes of traffic to "prevent future deaths" there. But there is still no guard rail at the median strip today.

"THE GUARD RAIL is being considered along with a thousand others . . . but we don't have the money this year," said Carl Kowalski, north area operating engineer for the Illinois Highway Department. "We don't anticipate funds in 1973 either," he said.

The state calls road improvements such as a guard railing an "operational improvement" which must be funded entirely by the state without federal aid.

The natural mother of three-year-old Amy Huebert Monday suffered a setback by the Colorado courts in her efforts to regain custody of the child.

El Paso County (Colo.) District Court Judge John Gallagher ruled that Amy could temporarily remain with Mr. and Mrs. Barry Huebert, the child's adoptive parents who reside in Colorado Springs, until a final decision on the custody case is reached.

Expect Miller Builders To Modify Northgate Plan

Miller Builders is expected to present substantially modified plans for the multi-family sections of its Northgate subdivision during a continued hearing tonight before the Arlington Heights Plan commission.

The continued hearing on the 934-unit apartment and condominium complex, immediately east of the existing single-family Northgate subdivision, will proceed despite the fact the Village and Miller Builders have not agreed on the developer's request to extend the terms of its $669 annexation agreement.

Last July Northgate residents won a significant concession from the developer when Miller agreed to build seven new single-family homes along the 2700 block of N. Brighton Place as a buffer between existing homes and the multi-family development.

Also included in the proposed planned development is the realignment of Buffalo Grove Road to connect with Windsor Drive south of Hintz Road.

Miller has asked the village to extend the terms of its 1969 annexation agreement until it can complete construction of the Northgate subdivision.

The developer claims that work on the realignment of Buffalo Grove Road caused it to fall behind in its construction schedule. Miller is requesting that new Northgate construction be exempted from the recently enacted water system capitol improvement fees and certain street requirements which postdate the annexation agreement.

The Board of Trustees Jan. 3 approved the levy of fees on new construction designed to help finance future improvements to the village's water system.

The fee schedule calls for a $185 charge on every new single-family home and $120 per unit for multi-family building.

A special committee of the Board of Trustees has been appointed to study possible extension of the annexation agreement.

Mikva Files Bill To Reduce Noise At U.S. Airports

by LEON SHURE

U.S. Rep. Abner Mikva (D-2nd) yesterday introduced legislation in Congress aimed at reducing O'Hare Airport jet noise pollution.

Rep. Mikva, who is waging a primary fight against Niles Mayor Nicholas Blase for the North Suburban 10th District congressional nomination, introduced four amendments to the proposed Noise Control Act of 1972.

The amendments would outlaw sonic booms, create a commission to study a night flight ban, allow the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency to set noise standards, and end the federal monopoly on control of flights, to allow local communities to impose noise regulations.

Most recent efforts by suburbs near O'Hare to control its noise pollution have failed, because courts have ruled that powers to regulate airplane procedures are restricted to the federal government and can't be preempted by other governmental units.

A Cook County Circuit Court judge Oct. 30 dismissed a suit from five suburbs against Chicago and 23 airlines to block further pollution and noise, which the plaintiffs said result from airport expansion.

The judge noted that no court has granted an injunction against operation of a public airport and that the proper authority over airports is Congress and the state legislature, not the courts. This decision will be appealed.

Des Plaines aldermen are now studying a city noise ordinance aimed at noise from airplanes flying above the city. The ordinance would also make illegal the noise from jets awaiting take-offs. Framers of the ordinance anticipate a court test of the city's power to pass such a law.

ANOTHER COURT test for noise regulations is expected by the Illinois Institute for Environmental Quality, a state agency, according to its director, Michael Schneiderman.

Within three weeks, the institute will present the Illinois Pollution Control Board with proposed jet noise standards and a procedure to establish maximum noise allowable over set periods of time, Schneiderman told the Herald.

The proposed "noise-bank" plan, would allot to various airports the amount of noise they can legally generate within a day, week or month. When this allotment is exceeded the airport operator, in O'Hare's case — the City of Chicago, will be fined, he said.

Under state law, the Illinois pollution board, if it decides to adopt the institute's plan after a series of public hearings would be empowered to require enforcement, although a federal court challenge of this power could be expected, he said.

The real intent of the institute's plan, which has already drawn criticism from Chicago aviation department officials, would be to force them to the negotiation table, Schneiderman said, and encourage them to use every available method to reduce noise pollution.

Methods which could be used, he said, include steeper take-offs and landings, different landing patterns, and curtailing flights at night.

The Mikva amendments, which may face a House vote this week, would create a special commission to study curtailment of night flights, a move urged for several years by Des Plaines and other suburban municipalities, according to a Mikva aide.

At present, O'Hare has 1,646 flights daily. Of these 677 are night flights, between 10 p.m. and 7 a.m. Of the night flights 491 are cargo flights, Mikva's aide said.

CURRENT O'HARE plans include construction of a new aircraft cargo building and a parallel northwest runway for cargo traffic, according to Des Plaines Ald. Alan Abrams (8th), who helped write the proposed city noise ordinance.

The changes would mean that the number of flights at night would be almost as many as the day flights, or about one flight every 40 seconds.

The Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission (NIPC) predicted last summer that within 10 years more than half of Des Plaines would be subjected to unhealthy levels of noise.

Mikva's aide said that Congress has influenced the Federal Aviation Authority to close the Washington Airport from 10 p.m. to 7 a.m.

"If they can do this much to keep peace and quiet for government officials, they can do the same for the rest of the nation," Mikva said as he introduced his amendments.

former while an inmate at the Lewisburg, Pa., federal prison.

The House voted to authorize government noise standards for new products ranging from motorcycles to rock music amplifiers. The standards would make America a quieter place to live, sponsors said.

The Senate approved a moderate anti-busing compromise after three presidential contenders returned to help kill a proposal which would have prohibited federal judges from ordering busing to integrate schools. The milder restriction, mainly supported by Northern moderates and liberals, would deny federal funds for racial-balance busing unless local school officials freely ask for the money without coercion from Washington.

Thaisa Smith and Jackie Tuck. Tickets for the ball, to be held at the Elks Club, 495 Lee St., are still available at the following real estate offices: Baird and Warner, Inc., William B. Sebastian Realtors, Wm. L. Kunkel & Co., and Gladstone Realty.

2 Found Guilty Of November Shoplifting Spree

A south side Chicago youth and a woman companion were found guilty of theft yesterday in connection with a downtown Des Plaines shoplifting spree last November that reportedly netted them more than $500 in goods.

Lonnie McCambry, 18 and Catherine Ross, 20, both of 8434 S. Yates Ave. were convicted by Associate Judge Marvin J. Peters in the Niles branch of Cook County Circuit court after the pair pleaded guilty to the shoplifting charges.

A third person allegedly involved in the incident, Shirley Willis, 21, also of the Yates Avenue address, was found innocent by Peters.

McCambry and Miss Ross both testified that Miss Willis was not aware that clothing and other items seized by police were stolen. They said she was not involved in taking goods from any of the stores.

The three were picked up by police in downtown Des Plaines last November and reportedly had a large quantity of stolen clothing in their possession at the time of their arrest.

The two women were apprehended behind Burchards Cleaners, 1406 Prairie Ave., and had several shopping bags of clothing with them, according to police reports.

McCambry had been picked up moments earlier after a suspicious person was reported waiting in an auto outside Spiegler's Department Store, 1467 Ellin-wood St., according to police.

McCambry was placed on probation for one year and Miss Ross was sentenced to 14 days in the county house of correction.

They were also ordered to make full restitution to the stores from which they had shoplifted, including the Miss Y Shop, 1120 Lee St.; Lee Dry Goods, 760 Lee St.; and Bill's Pet Shop, 677 Grace-land Ave.

Man Charged With Drunken Driving

A Des Plaines man was charged with drunken driving Sunday night after he allegedly ran a police car off the road.

Des Plaines patrolman Robert Schultz said he was driving north on River Road Sunday evening when an auto driven by Thomas McGuire, 2825 Curtis St., turned onto River Road from Oakton Street and headed south in the northbound lane.

Schultz said he had to swerve his squad car off the road to avoid a head-on collision.

McGuire, who was arrested and also charged with improper lane usage, was ordered to appear in the Des Plaines branch of Cook County Circuit Court March 23 at 9:30 a.m.

Blase For Congress Group Sets Dinner For Candidate

The Blase For Congress Committee will sponsor "An Evening in Honor of Nicholas B. Blase," Saturday, March 11, at the St. John the Baptist Greek Church auditorium, 2350 W. Dempster St., Des Plaines.

The $12.50 tab will include cocktails, dinner and dancing to the music of the Perry Pops Orchestra. Niles Mayor Blase, who is Maine Township Democratic committeeman, is seeking his party's nomination in the North Suburban 10th District congressional primary.

County Commissioner Floyd Fulle of Des Plaines will speak to students at

Howard Mikva

Maine West High School at 9:45 a.m. today. Fulle, who will appear as part of the school's social science forum, in Maine Township Republican committeeman and candidate for the GOP nomination in the 10th District congressional primary.

Former U.S. Sen. Eugene McCarthy will bring his campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination to Niles College tonight appearing at 9 p.m. in the school's dining hall, 7135 N. Harlem Ave. Niles.

McCarthy, who ran unsuccessfully for his party's bid in 1968, has been cam-paing heavily in the Chicago area this week, hoping to head off a strong showing by other Democratic presidential contenders in the March 21 Illinois primary.

His appearance at Niles College is part of a series of candidate forums this week. Tomorrow night, U.S. Rep. Abner Mikva, Democratic hopeful in the 10th Congressional District, will visit the college at 8 p.m. He will be followed at 9 p.m. by State's Atty. Edward Hanrahan, running for reelection against the Cook County Regular Democratic Organization.

Mikva has been endorsed in the Democratic primary by Frank Cicero, an Evanston attorney and an independent delegate to the 1970 Illinois Constitutional Convention.

Cicero, who is running as a delegate to the Democratic National Convention committed to U.S. Sen. Edmund Muskie, said Mikva is one of the most effective and respected members of the U.S. House.

Cicero also says Mikva is the strongest candidate and "the only Democrat who can win in November."

State Sen. Howard Mohr of Forest Park, candidate for the GOP state senate nomination in the 5th District, says Republicans must spearhead a drive for another legislative remap to head off "a major incursion effort from the Democrat-controlled Chicago city hall machine."

"By overlapping political districts to include both the city and suburbs, the Democrats will attempt to gain permanent control not only of the state government but also will try to gain the balance of power at most local levels," Mohr said in a statement.

He urged a large Republican voter turnout at the March 21 primary. "The Democrats are attempting to get a large sympathy vote with their recent primary election contest pronouncements. But they fool no one. Regardless of which Democrat ends up on the ballot this fall, the people will see no change," Mohr said.

The Maine Township McGovern for President Committee has invited all local voters to a party from 6 to 10 p.m. March 12 at the International Machinists Hall, 50 W. Oakton St., in Des Plaines. Admission is free.

The 10th Congressional District McGovern slate of delegate candidates to the Democratic National Convention will all be attending the event.

Nona Geldernick and Harry Kinser are co-chairmen for the party. Folksingers Colleen Kelly and Dave Walter, both Maine West High School graduates, will perform along with The Chicagoans, a satirical group.

Mrs. Mary Kinser, 973 Margret St., Des Plaines, is the Maine Township representative on the slate committed to U.S. Sen. George McGovern.

She is founder of the Des Plaines Children's Theatre, and has been active in the League of Women Voters, the American Association of University Women and the PTA.

Other candidates on the McGovern slate are: Robert Eisner, professor of economics at Northwestern University; Coleman Miller, director of Beacon Neighborhood House; and Bernice Weissbourd, education director of Evanston Child Care Center; Doris Conant, past chairman of the Glenview Fair Housing Committee; and Brian LeJeune, a Harper College student and Naval Air Reserve member; Margaret Gordon, former president of the Glencoe School Board; Michael Devorkin and Jack Stein of Skokie; and Jean Gump of Morton Grove.

Devorkin is a third-year law student at Yale who worked on the national campaign staff of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy in 1968. Stein is an attorney and member of the Skokie Plan Commission, and Mrs. Gump is vice president of Niles Township Human Relations Council and co-chairman of Morton Grove Fair Housing Committee.

MYF Youths To Work In New Mexico

The United Methodist Youth Fellowship of the First United Methodist Church of Des Plaines is planning a vacation project which will take the group to the McCurdy Schools in the Espanola Valley of New Mexico this summer.

There are three mission schools, an elementary, high school and nursing school which serve Spanish-speaking, black and Indian people in this low-income area.

The 22 young people working on the project will journey from Des Plaines by car under adult supervision. They will spend nights in Methodist churches along the way, taking three or four days to make the trip. Once in the valley, the group will spend the mornings in serving the school in whatever capacity they are needed.

The cost for each person is $100 of which each teen-ager is to pay $35. The rest of the $1,300 to $1,400 needed is being raised by the Youth Fellowship as a group. On the agenda for this purpose in the coming months are bake sales, a spaghetti dinner, candy sales, a ping pong marathon and car washes.

Sponsor of the group is a layman, Dr. Bryan Baker.

Scouting News

For more than 10 years, the Boy Scouts of America has provided leadership training so that new adult members in the scouting program can learn through practical experience, the aims and methods of scouting.

Twice each year in the spring and fall, the Algonquin District of the Northwest Suburban Council conducts the program, which consists of seven sessions, and covers all phases of boy scouting. The training is intended for scoutmasters, assistant scoutmasters, troop committeemen and patrol dads. Sessions one, two, four, five, six and seven will be held at St. Martin's Episcopal Church, Thacker and Margaret streets in Des Plaines, from 7:30 to 10 p.m., beginning Tuesday, March 7th and ending Tuesday, April 11. The third session, an over-night camp out will be held Friday night and Saturday, March 17 and 18. The location of the over night will be announced during the second session.

The course operates as a training troop with a scoutmaster, assistant scoutmasters, senior patrol leader, quartermaster and patrol leaders. The trainees operate in patrols and maintain the same patrol spirit as a regular boy scout troop. Following is an abstract of the individual sessions:

Session No. 1 — The Boy Scout Program — teaches what Boy Scouting is, the attitudes of boys 11-13 years old, and how the Boy Scout program meets boys' needs and achieves scouting's aims.

Session No. 2 — The Patrol Method — is explained, how it is set up, and the functions of boy leaders and the scoutmaster's relationship to them.

Session No. 3 — The Outdoor Program — teaches the various skills that are used in camping and hiking and living with nature.

Session No. 4 — Training Boy Leaders — prepares the scoutmaster to train his boy leaders to lead.

Session No. 5 — Program Planning and Troop Financing — shows the methods of planning for the year, planning for the month, and planning and conducting individual troop meetings. Also, guides are provided for troop financing.

Session No. 6 — Advancement — is intended to give leaders an understanding of the advancement idea and processes.

Session No. 7 — Boy Behavior — gives scoutmasters and committee members help in understanding boy behavior, and a chance to discuss general boy problems. Also in this session, the trainees will receive their training certificates, and "Trained" leaders patches, provide they have completed all seven sessions.

If you are currently registered as an adult scoutmaster and not yet trained, you owe it to your troop as well as to yourself to learn how to better fulfill your satisfaction of being a volunteer scoutmaster.

For information, call the Scout Service Center, 394-5650, or stop in at 1622 N. Rand Rd., Arlington Heights. (U) Just say that you would like to sign up for Boy Scout leader training. See you March 7.

Plan Emphasis On Missionaries

The Des Plaines Bible Church, 946 Thacker st., will devote its activities this Sunday to learning about missionary efforts around the world.

The Rev. Craig Massey will speak on "Why Missions?" at the 10:45 a.m. service, which will also feature missionary music by the church choir under the direction of Joel Streightliff.

At 5:30 p.m., a simulated tour of several countries will be presented. For each country, there will be information about the people, a look at missionary efforts and an opportunity to sample some native food.

Young peoples' groups will meet separately and see two adventure films, The Shadow of the Castle and Tracy's Island.

The guest speaker at the 7 p.m. evening service will be Franklin Lee, who was born and grew up in Canton, China. Lee moved to this country in 1954 and attended Wayne State University and Dallas Theological Seminary. He is a missionary in the Philippines.

PTA Notes

The PTA of High Knolls School, 588 Dara James Rd., Des Plaines, will hold its next general meeting at 8 p.m. Monday, March 14 in the school's multi-purpose room.

The slate of officers nominated for the coming year will be voted on and nominations will be called for from the floor before the vote.

After the business portion of the meeting, a representative of the Des Plaines Fire Prevention Bureau will show a film strip and give a talk on emergency weather situations and civil defense.

Coffee and cookies will be served after the meeting and the colors will be presented by Cub Pack 161.

The Rev. R. K. Wobbe of United Church of Christ, Des Plaines, will be officiating. Burial will be in Ridgewood Cemetery, Des Plaines.

Preceded in death by her husband, Frank survivors include two brothers, Herbert and Karl Schnorrbusch, both of Germany.

Mrs. Bachmeier died Sunday in Brookwood Convalescent and Nursing Center, Des Plaines. She was born Jan. 20, 1896, in Germany.

CHINQUAPIN, CHINQUAPIN. Chinquapin was the name of the tribal dance these Central School third grade Indians performed yesterday to convince their classmates the Chinquapin oak tree should be the official tree of Illinois. Students at the Des Plaines school, along with students at all of the state's schools, will determine this month whether the Chinquapin or one of seven other kinds of oaks will be the official tree of Illinois.

Poke At Oak Is No Joke To Students

also included information about what the trees are used for after they are chopped down.

To acquaint the Central students with each oak, third graders dressed up as trees, leaves and acorns paraded across a stage.

The skits and comic interludes gave the third graders a chance to put in a plug for their favorite tree and to take a poke at another one.

At one point, three youngsters clad in white sheets floated across the stage in between reports chanting, "Ooh, ooh, vote for white oak."

Some boys bundled in coats, hats, scarves and mittens huddled on the stage muttering, "Brr, brr." When someone asked what they were doing, they began muttering, "Brr, brr, vote for the bur oak."

Campaigning for the chinquapin oak, a group of youngsters costumed as Indians performed a tribal dance, changing to a drumbeat, "Vote for chinquapin oak, vote for chinquapin oak."

LONG-HAIRED picketers urged Central's students to vote for the pin oak tree to "save the squirrels" by giving them "pin oak acorns."

In other skits, a circus clown kept falling down until he decided to vote for the swamp white oak tree; a fortune teller saw good things in the future for students who vote for the northern red oak; a woodsman urged a lumberjack to vote for the black oak rather than chopping it down; and another group of students helped a carpenter find a shingle on a shingle oak.

Central Principal Alvin Mesenbrink praised the third graders for their hard work after the assembly was over and encouraged the students to "vote intelligently."

"I hope you will be as well informed about things you vote on in the future as you are about oak trees," he told them.

District Ponders A 4% Education Fund Increase

Members of the Board of Education of Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 began consideration Monday night of a preliminary budget for the 1972-73 school year which calls for about a 4 per cent increase in the district's education fund.

The budget, prepared by the district's administration, calls for expenditures in eight funds, each requiring its own tax levy. The total for the education fund, which is used for teacher's salaries and educational supplies, is projected to be $8,881,658, about 4 per cent more than the district's expenditures this year.

Erviti emphasized that many estimates reflected in the budget may change between now and the time the budget is adopted this summer. He said no estimate has been made of teacher salary increases above the increment for additional experience already contained in the contract and no provision has been made for an increased formula in state aid.

"We don't really know what Gov. Ogilvie meant when he said he would have $91 million for state aid, but we know that some of that money is in increased expense to the state but not extra money to the districts," he said.

The increased expense to the state would result because of a larger number of students in the schools, which will entitle school districts to larger amounts of money figured on a per pupil basis. That increase would not improve the financial position of school districts.

In addition, Erviti said the district is now in the process of paying back $373,000 in supplemental state aid it received when its enrollment was increasing at a rate of more than 2 per cent each year. Because the growth rate is no longer over 2 per cent, if the present state aid formula is continued, the district's share of state aid will decrease by $51,000.

The district will also issue tax anticipation warrants in the building fund, which is used for building maintenance and to pay custodial salaries, against 63 per cent of the taxes to be collected for that fund in 1973.

The warrant position of both the education and building funds will be slightly improved from last year and from previous years.

The board will meet at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the administration building to begin discussion of individual items in the proposed education fund budget.

Blase Charges Scott Delays School Tax Suit

Niles Mayor Nicholas Blase has charged Atty. Gen. William Scott with attempting to delay his law suit which challenges the state's present method of school financing.

At a hearing before the Cook County Circuit Court last week, attorneys representing Blase and the four defendants agreed to continue the case to a later date.

In a recent statement, Blase denounced the continuance. He said, "Apparently Scott is not as interested in coming to a conclusion on this matter as State Supt. Bakalis or County Superintendent Martwick are." Both Bakalis and Martwick are defendants in the case along with Maine Township High School Dist. 207 and the state.

BLASE CHARGED. "Scott is afraid of an unfavorable attitude during an election year what with the state being asked to assume its constitutional 51 per cent of the cost of education. The singlenmost move the state can make right now is to find added funds for education and determine what the state's obligation is in this matter."

In his suit, Blase contests the present system of school finance which places more than half of the school budget burden on local property tax. He proposes that local property taxes be lowered and that state aid be raised. He has also called for funneling all school tax monies into a central pot to be distributed equally by the state.

Adoptive Parents Get Amy

The natural mother of three-year-old Amy Huebert Monday suffered a setback by the Colorado courts in her efforts to regain custody of the child.

El Paso County (Colo.) District Court Judge John Gallagher ruled that Amy could temporarily remain with Mr. and Mrs. Barry Huebert, the child's adoptive parents who reside in Colorado Springs, until a final decision on the custody case is reached.

Attorneys for Mrs. Paula Marshall of Arlington Heights, the natural mother, has asked the Colorado court to uphold a Cook County Court decision made in December ordering the immediate return of Amy to Mrs. Marshall.

The Hueberts refused to observe the Illinois court order, taking their case to the Colorado courts.

Huebert, a chemistry instructor at a Colorado college, accused the Illinois court of having failed to consider the rights of the child, "who is the most vulnerable party."

In Monday's decision, Judge Gallagher denied a motion for a summary judgment sought by Mrs. Marshall's attorneys and also refused to dismiss a petition for custody which had been filed by the Hueberts.

He did approve a motion by the Hueberts asking that an investigation of the child's welfare be carried out by the El Paso County Welfare Department.

Another motion asking that the child be examined by a psychiatrist or psychologist was rejected by Judge Gallagher.

MRS. SYLVIA DECKER, one of Mrs. Marshall's attorneys, said yesterday the significance of the pending investigation was "not at all spelled out" concerning what effect it will have on the custody proceedings.

Because all persons involved in the Colorado hearings were under court order not to discuss the case with the press, Mrs. Decker would not explain when a decision might be expected.

Although she had previously stated that a federal suit might be filed challenging the validity of jurisdiction of courts in two separate states over the same case, Mrs. Decker said "we don't face that possibility at this time."

The custody battle began shortly after Amy was turned over to the Hueberts for adoption in 1969 when the baby was 13 days old. The adoption was annulled early last year by the Illinois Appellate Court when it ruled Mrs. Marshall, in giving up the child, had been defrauded and under strain and duress.

Cook County Circuit Court Judge Helen McGillicuddy upheld the decision in December, ordering the return of Amy to Mrs. Marshall. When the Hueberts refused, Judge McGillicuddy found them in contempt of court but did not impose a fine.

Juanita Jacobs Resigns Post

Juanita Jacobs has resigned from the River Trails Dist. 26 school board, leaving a vacancy that will be filled in the April 8 election.

Elected last April, Mrs. Jacobs, 1324 Pearlree Ln., Mount Prospect, said yesterday she is moving out of the district. "I'm sorry to leave. I was just getting knowledgeable," she said.

Mrs. Jacobs' resignation will become effective March 7, according to Board Pres. Harold Haney. Under state law, a vacancy must be filled in the next school board election. The winner of the April 8 election will serve the remaining two years of Mrs. Jacobs' term. Though the school board could appoint an interim board member to serve until the April election, Haney said the board probably would not make the appointment. A decision on the appointment will be made March 7.

THE DIST. 26 caucus, which has already endorsed three school board candidates for three seats, will reconvene next Monday to endorse a candidate for Mrs. Jacobs' position.

"We would welcome anyone who wants to appear before the caucus to be interviewed for endorsement," said Margaret Stout, caucus chairman. "More than likely we will endorse one candidate."

The caucus will open interviews at 8:30 p.m. in the River Trails Junior High School library, 1000 Wolf Rd., Mount Prospect. The caucus will meet at 8 p.m.

Mrs. Stout said candidates not endorsed by the caucus last time can be considered again. She said those residents should contact her at 827-8509 or come to the caucus meeting.

William Kurman, 1813 Tano Ln., Mount Prospect; and James Bowes, 1307 Mulberry Ln., Mount Prospect both have filed as candidates, although they failed to receive endorsement. Although they have filed for a three-year term either candidate can choose to run for Mrs. Jacobs' post. Neither candidate could be reached yesterday for comment.

DON KIOSEFF, 1014 Sycamore Ln., Mount Prospect, who appeared before the caucus but did not receive endorsement, said yesterday he will ask to be considered again.

Richard Hendricks, 1537 E. Emmerson Ln., Mount Prospect, said he will not run for the board. He failed to receive caucus endorsement.

Caucus-backed candidates are incumbent Ted Wattenberg, 1807 Tano Ln.; Leora Rosen, 1805 Apache Ln.; and Lloyd Demel, 13 Leon Ln., East. Demel is the sole candidate from Prospect Heights.

The three have been endorsed for the three 3-year terms. Wattenberg, appointed to the board last year, must run again and win to keep his seat. Haney and Lee Hilfman have indicated they will not seek reelection.

Herald Wins Top Prize

The highest honor in newspaper design and typography has been awarded to Paddock Publications.

The chain's Arlington Heights Herald was among six first-place winners in the 33rd annual competition of the Inland Daily Press Association, a competition open to newspapers throughout North America.

The Herald was cited as best in its class (letterpress newspapers with circulation between 10,000 and 25,000) during the annual Inland meeting in Houston yesterday. The competition is jointly sponsored by Northwestern University's Medill School of Journalism.

Other first place winners were the Minneapolis Tribune, the Lafayette (Ind.) Journal and Courier, the Wheaton (Ill.) Journal, the Marion (Ind.) Chronicle Tribune, and the Portage (Wis.) Register.

The Inland awards for years have been regarded as the most prestigious in newspaper design and typography — assessing newspapers for their general attractiveness, readability and imagination of makeup. There were 268 entrants in this year's competition.

At the Herald, daily responsibility for design and makeup is under Copy Desk Chief Jim Harvey and copy editors Russ Bath, Tom Jachimiec, Karen Thompson and Ed Workman.

Old steel is recycled here.

Scrap metal bales are loaded for processing.

The electric furnace melts the scrap into white hot liquid.

And out comes coiled rod stock ready for reuse.

Steel that used to rust into junk can now be processed into new steel. It's called recycling and it's one answer to pollution.

Recycling is more than just a method for solving a disposal problem—it conserves our natural resources. Junk autos, for instance, are compressed into bales. The steel fragments are separated from the brass, copper, aluminum, rubber, wood and glass. Then the steel pieces are ready for the furnaces, where they're melted back into new steel.

The machinery used—the furnaces, electromagnets, conveyor belts, cranes—is powered by electricity. Electricity is the power behind recycling.

We're proud that electricity helps make all kinds of recycling possible. Because reducing litter and conserving resources is as important to us as it is to you.

Warriors Beat Norsemen; Lions, Grove Fail Tests

The shooting and rebounding of Joe Thimm and Doug Myers sparked Maine West to a 76-54 victory over Maine North in first-round action of the Maine West Regional Tournament Tuesday night.

The Warriors advance to the championship round of the tourney and will play Friday against the winner of tonight's Maine East-Notre Dame clash.

Thimm, a junior, led the Warriors with 21 points and he hauled down seven rebounds. Myers, a 6-6 sophomore center, tallied 15 points and pulled down nine rebounds and blocked four shots.

Maine North kept it close throughout the first half and led midway through the second quarter 28-26. Buckets by Thimm and Chris Bouchee late in the second period gave the Warriors a 38-32 halftime lead. Thimm connected for five points early in the third quarter to give Maine West a nine-point advantage and were in fairly good control of the game the remainder of the way.

Playing before 2,500 empty seats in the 3,200-capacity Maine West gymnasium, the Warriors jumped out to a 13-6 lead early in the first quarter. But, Maine North rallied behind Marty DiFlavio to tie the score 17-17 with 22 seconds remaining. A jumper by Rick Wolfgram gave Maine West a two-point lead just before the period ended. DiFlavio scored seven points to gain the Norsemen tie.

With Doug Werhane and DiFlavio doing most of the scoring, the Norsemen took 20-19, 24-23, 26-25, 28-26 leads in the second quarter. Maine West ignited its fastbreak at that point and surged to a six-point halftime lead.

After DiFlavio scored on a long jumper for the Norsemen, Thimm scored on a three-point play and a jumper to put the Warriors in front 43-34. The Norsemen closed the gap to 43-40, but could not keep pace with the home club which advanced to a 60-48 lead before the stanza was completed.

Maine North's last hopes were dashed by a five-point rally early in the fourth quarter by the Warriors and the Norsemen never threatened after that point.

DiFlavio led the Norsemen with 20 points and Werhane had 13. DiFlavio was the game's leading rebounder with 11.

Maine West 19 19 22 16-76

HERSEY NIPS GROVE, 79-76

Hersey, using some accurate second-half free throw shooting and taking advantage of a key Elk Grove turnover, beat back a desperate Grenadier rally to win a hair-raising 79-76 victory last night in the Huskies' own regional.

Hersey now advances into the championship Friday night.

Andy Pancratz hit two free throws with 11 seconds left to ice the game after Elk Grove's Bob Prince had sank a basket to bring the Grenadiers within one point.

With 23 seconds left, Grove's Jeff Stewart was called for traveling as he sank the would-be go-ahead basket.

Dave Corzine's seven third-quarter points and his tough rebounding helped the Huskies overcome their many mistakes and build 63-52 third-quarter lead. However, Prince's shooting turned the game into a close contest.

Mark Leonhard led the winner's scoring with 23 points. Pancratz had 20, Steve Heldt 15 and Corzine 12.

Prince paced all scorers with 26 points, 16 coming in the second half. Ken Pollitz had 18 and Dave Chernick had 14.

Elk Grove 18 18 16 24-76

WHEELING OUSTS ST. VIATOR

A stellar opening quarter of basketball was all Wheeling needed to churn past St. Viator and knock the Lions' from the Wildcat hosted Regional Tournament last night, 64-56.

Wheeling now advances to the championship game Friday night.

Behind Roger Wood's handwork around the net, the 'Cats assumed an eight-point command after one period of action and were still clinging to the same lead when the final buzzer sounded.

Big Rog flicked in five in a row during the first stanza, coming up with more moves than he's made all season, and the 6-11 senior went on to ring up 18 by halftime as the hosts even managed to up their advantage a bit.

LEAPING LARRY. Maine West's Larry Bierwirth (right) goes off at the same time as Springfield's Mark Killion Saturday in the 100-yard freestyle finals at New Trier East. Bierwirth was last in the heat but that was good enough for a sixth place medal. This fine junior also placed 10th in the 100-yard backstroke to account for all 12 of the Warriors' points in the state meet. (Photo by Paul Logan)

Sportsman's Notebook

by Bob Holiday

STITCHING UP LOOSE ENDS: Turkey hunting has deteriorated considerably since the days when sergeant Gary Cooper York used to poke his head out of the brush, split on his rifle sight and "gobble" like a hen. In fact, this year's turkey season in Illinois will be only the third one since 1960.

Turkeys were restocked by the Department of Conservation in four downstate counties in 1960 and the first open season on the "new" game bird was in the spring of 1970. Except this year the season will be split: April 14, 15 and 16, and April 21, 22 and 23. Hunting will be from sunrise to noon. One thousand and six hundred hunters will receive special turkey permits for Alexander, Jackson, Pope and Union counties.

Last year, hunters bagged 52 gobblers (males), and 23 in 1970. Estimates are for 100 gobblers this year and the Department has the permits at $5 a copy.

THE BASS ANGLERS SPORTSMAN SOCIETY (BASS), sponsor of most of the "big" money bass tournaments throughout the southeast, has launched a worthwhile campaign to encourage boat manufacturers to build a live-well into their boats. Most bass fishermen, the Association contends, keep only a small percentage of the fish they catch (and during tournaments they keep none). The idea is to keep the bass alive until "sorting" time, when they can be released.

A live-well that can circulate water will keep a bass alive and well. And, you don't have to remember to pick up the stringer each time you move your boat to a new location.

AN EXPERIMENT being conducted by Salmon Unlimited, a Chicago fisherman's club, may find a new use for sewage treatment settling ponds. The organization, with the cooperation of the Hinde Engineering Co. of Highland Park, has stocked chinook salmon fry in treatment lagoons at Spring Valley, Lindenhurst, Waterman and some other suburban cities.

Using non-turbulent induced-air aeration systems, it is hoped these small ponds will sustain enough small animal life, such as daphnia and crayfish to feed the young salmon.

Eventually the organization hopes to stock 200,000 salmon fry and 30,000 rainbow fry in sewage lagoons. The fish will then be transferred to Lake Michigan.

THE MASONITE CORPORATION, always willing to find new uses for their pressed-board product, offers plans for construction of a portable ice fishing shelter. It's built-in sections of framed hardboard panels that you carry in your station wagon and put together "on location" with screen couplings.

Complete instructions and plans are free for a postcard to: Masonite Home Service Bureau, Box B, Chicago, 60690.

boats are not as common as they were a few years ago, because, quite simply, manufacturers can mass-produce boats in any price range they choose. A used boat that you can spend your winter days putting back in new condition is a much better bargain. And it will have a better resale value.

EVERY YEAR at about this time, people take a frozen bird they have found to the neighborhood taxidermist for mounting... only to discover that the fellow can't or won't mount it. The fact is that most species of birds cannot be lawfully mounted without permission from the Department of Conservation.

Federal and state laws state that no "insectivorous or song bird can be in a citizen's possession." Owls, hawks, eagles, cranes, herons, etc., are all protected. Only birds which have been legally taken can be mounted, plus a few other species such as starlings, pigeons and sparrows.

IN WISCONSIN cold weather has made it "only for the hardy," but snow and ice conditions are good for snowmobiling, skiing and fishing.

In the northwest, fishing has been good in the Washburn and Bayfield areas for brown trout, lake trout and perch. Hayward reports good snowmobiling, but there is slush on the lake ice.

In northern Wood and Portage counties there's 12 to 14 inches of snow. Fishing is excellent around Woodruff and coyote hunting is good. Marsh Miller Lake in Chippewa County is hot as a pistol for panfish and walleyes.

Along Lake Michigan trout fishing is best at Bailey's Harbor in Door County and, nearer to home, walleyes are hitting very well on Winnebago.

And if you can clear your time from March 17 to March 26, Ace Extrom, the bearded apostle of the Illinois Wildlife Federation, invites you to join him for a fishing trip to Managua, Nicaragua. The trips leave on a Friday evening with a nonstop jet flight to Miami and then another nonstop to San Jose, Costa Rica... and then a short flight to Nicaragua.

Fishing the El Toro rapids, the angler will expect to catch Tarpon up to 100 pounds. $945 includes everything, air transportation, hotel and camp accommodations, food, motor, your own dugout canoe and a guide who can speak only Spanish.

Ace also reports that there is no truth to the rumor that Howard Hughes has bought Nicaragua; however it may be true that he paid $100,000 for Clifford Irving's address book.

ALTHOUGH IT'S cold and uncomfortable, ice fishermen these days are finding that they can ignore the morning hours and concentrate on late afternoon and evening. In fact, recently on Fox Lake in the Mineola bay, three hardy walleyes moved in on the structure they were fishing. The action was fast and furious, a bait shop operator, reported, for about an hour. Then the school moved on. But the fishermen had 11 walleyes among them, one weighing 2½ pounds.

ONE OF THE BEST. Maine West's Larry Bierwirth receives the medal symbolic of the sixth best 100-yard freestyler in the state from one of the dignitaries at the swim finals Saturday. Bierwirth, only a junior, had his best performance of the year in this event — 49.9. He also took 10th in the 100 backstroke to account for Maine's points. (Photo by Paul Logan)

Doyle's-Striking Has Big Weekend

Doyle's-Striking Lanes was double trouble in the Paddock Women's Classic Traveling League last weekend.

Rarely, if ever, has one team shown as much profit in one weekend as Doyle's did in a short span of less than 24 hours in PWCTL action. Result: This hot unit leaped from nine points out of first place to only two behind Des Plaines Lanes, still clinging to its lead.

Doyle's-Striking did it with a pair of 7-0 shutouts — 14 points gained — as it posted high series in the league both Saturday evening at Thunderbird Lanes and Sunday afternoon at Hoffman Lanes.

The league schedule was a departure from usual form. Reason for the double weekend was that the ladies Sunday were pre-bowling the March 25 schedule, when some of the women will be involved in a state tournament.

Sunday's session was like an instant replay of Saturday for veteran Lu Schoenberger of Doyle's, threatening to take over the league lead in individual average. She posted carbon-copy 615's for both gatherings to lead the big charge, grabbing two of only four 600 series for the weekend out of a possible 80.

Another lady who enjoyed a banner weekend was Dee Kachelmuss of Arlington Park Towers, who followed a 592 Saturday night with 591 Sunday.

In Saturday's slate, Doyle's was over 900 for all three games in recording a fine 2746 and a 7-0 shutout over Franklin-Weber Pontiac. Only the first game was fairly close. Following Lu Schoenberger's 615, which included a 235 game, was Bette Brelle with 591. Alice Nichols had a 225 game for the winners.

Des Plaines Lanes protected its slim first-place margin with a 5-2 triumph over Morton Pontiac. Des Plaines just missed a sweep, losing the second game by seven pins. Winnie Lohse finished with a 235 game to lead with a 569 series.

Arlington Park Towers posted a decisive 7-0 win over L-Tran Engineering and KoHo Office Supplies downed Thunderbird Country Club, 5-2, in Saturday's other matches.

On Sunday, Doyle's was even hotter than the night before with a 2811 serieson three more 900 games. Lu this time was helped by Judy Croston and Bette Brelle, each with 559. Dee rolled a 234 game for Arlington Park but Doyle's moved up another notch in the standings into second.

Franklin-Weber Pontiac also stayed close — only three points out of the lead — with a 5-2 triumph over L-Tran in a high-scoring match. Joan Plywack led the winners with a big 622, including a closing 241 for the highest league game of the weekend. Lee Winski added a pair of 200 games and a 587 series, while L-Tran's Isobel Kost was hot with 599 including a 230 game. Teammate Lorrie Koch added a 570.

Thunderbird Country Club kept Des Plaines Lanes from padding its lead with a 5-2 victory. Marilyn Lange led the way with a 582 series while Winnie Lohse's 571 was important for Des Plaines.

Morton Pontiac gained a 5-2 triumph over KoHo as Ruth Baurhyte led the victors with a 577 series. Peggy Harris recorded a 575 for KoHo.

The league will convene at Des Plaines Lanes Saturday night with the schedule reading: Doyle's vs. KoHo, L-Tran vs. Des Plaines, Morton vs. Thunderbird and Arlington Park vs. Franklin-Weber.

Team standings:

Doyle's-Striking Lanes	38

International premium lists

Premium lists are now available for the 32nd annual International Kennel Club of Chicago All-Breed Dog Show scheduled for April 1 and 2, at the International Amphitheatre.

The entry deadline is March 15, so get on the move if you intend to enter. Premium lists may be obtained by writing the International Kennel Club, 4300 S. Halsted St., Chicago, Ill. 60609, or the Foley Dog Show Organization, 2009 Ransstead St., Philadelphia, Pa., 19103.

The Amphitheatre not only provides an excellent opportunity for people to view all the dogs in the benching area but also provides facilities for sled dog racing, Whippet, Afghan and Saluki racing, indoor field trials and obedience classes.

Younger exhibitors are also in the spotlight with junior showmanship and junior dog judging supervised by professional show judges. The Junior Dog Judging Contest is open to juniors 10-20 years of age, including Boy and Girl Scouts and 4-H members with dog projects.

Gaines anatomy film best

"Anatomy of the Dog," a 23-minute color film produced by the Gaines Dog Research Center, has been named "Best Motion Picture on Dogs" for 1971 by the Dog Writers' Association of America.

Announcement of the award was made at the Association's annual banquet in New York City on the eve of the Westminster Kennel Club Dog Show.

The film, which was under the technical direction of J. Kilburn King of New Rochelle, N.Y., is narrated by Dr. Frank R. Booth, retired veterinarian, former dog breeder and now an American Kennel Club approved all-breed judge.

Using anatomical drawings and live dogs representing different types of breeds, Dr. Booth defines the structure of canines in order to aid breeders in gaining increased knowledge applicable to the raising of sound animals. Eleven top-winning show dogs are featured in the film.

Dog club secretaries can obtain the film for showing by writing to the Gaines Dog Research Center, 250 North St., White Plains, N.Y., 10625. Requests should be made on club stationery at least four weeks in advance of the planned showing date, with an alternate date included.

Take it easy

Don't rush into giving your dog a bath. We still have cold weather on hand. Unless you have a professional type electric dryer built especially for use on dogs, better keep that brush going instead.

Regular brushing and grooming will keep him in shape during the winter. You can wash his feet and his face after he has been out in mud or slush, but make sure he is thoroughly dry.

Barks & Bays

Dogs produce higher ratio of male to female offspring than other animals.

Thimm Named To CSL All-Star Cage Team

Joe Thimm has been named to the All-Conference basketball team in the Central Suburban League and Marty DiFlavio and Rick Wolfram have been awarded special mention by a vote of the league's coaches.

Thimm, a 6-4 forward from Maine West, averaged nearly 14 points per game and was one of the top rebounders in the conference. The talented junior closed out the 1971-72 Central Suburban League season in fine form, getting 29 points and 12 rebounds.

Despite missing three games at mid-season due to an illness, Thimm still managed to impress a number of coaches and earned their votes.

Others named to the All-Conference team were:

Rick Kucera, Maine South's 6-2 senior guard.

Jerry Jones, Maine South's 6-4 junior forward.

Tom Spicer, Maine South's 6-5 senior center.

Matt Menze, Niles North's 6-5 senior center.

Mark Gorgal, Glenbrook North's 6-1 senior forward.

Elk Grove Lands 14 Spots In Sectional Gym Finals

Elk Grove has earned 14 berths, Maine West eight and Maine North one in the Addison Trail Gymnastics Sectional which will be held at 7 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

The sectional berths were earned at Lake Park District last Thursday. The top five gymnasts in each event qualified for the sectional as well as the top nine in each event from the Lake Park District and two other districts.

In team scoring, Addison Trail had 115½ points, Elk Grove 115, Maine West 61½, Schaumburg 36½ and Maine North 12.

Ruff Captures Heavyweight Title In Skyway Wrestling

Oakton heavyweight wrestler Herman Ruff Jr., captured the Skyway Conference heavyweight division crown in last week's conference tournament. In his first bout, Ruff pinned Pat Monahan of Lake County College at the 5:38 mark and won the championship match by defeating Triton's Mark Wassenaar on a 3-2 decision. Ruff and Wassenaar had wrestled in a dual meet earlier in the year with Ruff winning by decision 2-1.

In the 128 pound division Oakton's John Donnelly finished in third place. In his initial bout Donnelly was defeated 7-2 by Mal Squires of Harper College. Moving to the losers bracket Donnelly pinned Rich Woodard of Triton at the 3:45 mark for the third place finish.

The Raider's 142 pound entry, Tom Magas also captured a third place trophy. In the opening bout Magas lost to the eventual champion, Joe DiPrizio of Triton, being defeated 11-3. Wrestling in the losers bracket, Magas defeated George Rendon of Lake County 12-0, and finally defeated Bob Siler of Elgin College 6-4 for the third place award.

The 118 pound division was again as tough as it has been all season long. Oakton's Keith Nelson wrestled some of the top talent in the state. In the opening bout Nelson was pinned by Terry McGinn of Waubesa College at 3:54. The match for third place saw Triton's Phil Morreale decision Nelson by a 5-0 score.

Oakton's Rich Cook (134) was pinned by Rich Skelnick of Triton in his first match as was Bob Mensik (150) by Joe Lago of Triton. Raider Mark Sompolski

(158) was pinned by Rich Haddock also of Triton. Oakton's 167 pound entry Tom Zimka lost by a fall to Waubesa's Jim Todd, and finally Mark Stone of Oakton at 177 was pinned by Kevin Harrington of Lake County at 5:15.

The final tournament standings: Harper 78½, Waubesa 66, Triton 65½, Lake Co. 40½, Oakton 27, McHenry 13, Elgin 11, Mayfair 0.

Gaare Handles Leaders; It's Getting Close Again

It's a race again, fans.

Gaare Oil made sure of that Saturday evening at Rolling Meadows Bowl.

After dropping the first match, and falling seven points behind pace-setting Uncle Andy's Cow Palace, Gaare stormed for two straight victories and a 5-2 success in the Paddock Classic Traveling League.

Only four points now separate the 1-2 teams, and there's still time for several outfits to make their moves in the second half of men's action.

Uncle Andy's opened Saturday with class, flashing four 200-plus games in a 987-942 success. Joe Simonis paved the way with a 210, Tom Kouras rolled 202, and Mike Wagner and Don Eberl hit 201.

Gaare didn't let that first setback bother them because they roared back with a big 1044 and easy victory, as Al Jordan rolled 258, Fred Chase 234, and Hank Thullen 213.

Gene Kirkham's 236 paced the third game victory that gave Gaare the match and five points.

Jordan, the league's leading bowler with a 194 average, rolled a 622 series for Gaare, and Thullen supplied a steady 609. Eberl was high for Uncle Andy's with a 610.

Buick-in-Evanston moved past Morton Pontiac into third place after the position night scuffling with a 5-2 victory.

Russ Grosch and Ray Olson staged a match within the match as they battled for team leadership. Russ opened at 24 and then added a 203 and 210 in a 659 series. Ray had games of 236-235 before cooling off a bit to a 180 and a 651.

Buick hit 1048 in the opener, and Morton Pontiac, with Bob Glaser rolling a 226, fired a 1006 third game to salvage two points. Bill Smith had a 605 for Morton.

Leone Pools wrapped up a 5-2 victory over Buffalo Striker Lanes with wins in the first and third games and an 18-pin advantage in total series.

Warren Olson rolled a 203 finish for a team-leading 598 for Leone. Bob Leahy, who had a 234 middle game as Striker hit 1021, topped the losers with a 593. Mike Cregan chipped in with a 222 second game.

Hoffman Lanes turned in three steady efforts but couldn't get a sweep against Des Plaines Ace Hardware. Des Plaines took the opener 920-917, but Hoffman closed fast for a 5-2 victory.

Ray Lofthouse fashioned a big 621 for Hoffman with games of 209-210-202. Dick Garchie had a 222 finish.

Barry Stjernberg rolled a 586 for Des Plaines Ace. Doug Verdonck had a 222 third game.

In action this week at Ten Pin, Buick-in-Evanston will face Morton Pontiac, Leone Swimming Pools will meet Gaare Oil Co., Uncle Andy's will square off with Hoffman Lanes, and Des Plaines Ace Hardware will meet Striker Lanes.
